THE

HISTORY

FACTION,

ALIAS

HYPOCRISY,

MODERATION.

From its first Rise down to its Present Toleration in these Kingdoms.

Wherein its ORIGINAL and INCREASE are fet forrh, its feveral CONTRI

VANCES to Subvert the CHURCH and STATE,

Apparently DETECTED, and the Steps it has made towards getting into the SUPREAM POWER, from the REFORMATION to the RISING of the last PARLIAMENT, are Consider'd.

Malus ubi Bonum simulas tunc eft Setfimus. Seneca.

It is certain that a Man shall not see such Horrible Monters in the Papacy, as where the Gospel is Preach'd, and Profess'd; for they will say, they are Reform'd, and yet they seem to be Devils Incarnate, neither have we need to go far off for such Sights. Calvin. Serm. 10. in Ep. ad Ephes.

LONDON: Printed, and Sold by Ben. Bragg, at the Blue Ball in Ave-Mary-Lane. 1705.

oi a la

THE

PREFACE.

THE Necessity of Such a Treatise as this carries its own xcuse with it; I shall theresore ve the Reader no Trouble to ask at a time of Day when the Press so Clogg'd by the Dissenting Par-, that every Man should rise in Defence of the Church and overnment Establish'd. What I ake a Present to the World of, is atter of Fact, and if Truth bas t Charms enough to recommend self Naked as it is, I shall acnesce in the satisfaction of bang done my Endeavours it should. The very Title of it may serve r its Explanation, and it will be needless to say any thing farther, than to shew that Care has been taken to Collect such Passage from the several Reigns, that are here made mention of, as may need there be Tedious nor Offensive to Good Manners. The Author has ever had Regard to the Royal Authority, and therefore hope to be Excus'd if he makes not street with their August Characters as is but too common with our. Modern Historians.

He has brought this Spawn of Sedition from her Cradle almost to her Throne, and is sorry the several Opportunities that offer themselves for its total Suppression from its Infancy to this time were not duly laid hold of; the he is not without hopes this Estate of his, may be of some use, convince the World that the Persons they are so tender of, under

far

bas

age

are nei

e t ba

Roya

ope

ters

M

no

mo fer

re

ime

the

Ella

, 1

Pel

nde

th

the Name of Protestant Dissenters, are not such Friends to the Protestant Interest, but they would lend a helping Hand to overthrow it for their own, and would enter into Confederacies with the Pope, the French, or any other Foreign Potentate, to be posses'd of the chief Places of Trust under them.

Religion is their Cry, but Money is their God; Liberty and Property their Pretence, Persecution and Slavery their Design; as is made appear during the whole Course of the following History, that gives their Demeanour from Authentick Records, and Approv'd Manuscripts, so far, as the Author cannot attest from his own Knowledge. He's a Manthat has not been altogether a Stranger to the publick Affairs, has liv'd long enough in the World to be weary weary of the Transactions that happen in it, and makes his Observations publick upon no other Account than from a Principle of.

doing Good.

This he hopes to accomplish, by shewing the Steps that Faction has all along made to get into the Administration; the Measures it has taken to rob the Church of its Birthright from its Original to this very Day, and the Ways and Means it is still concerting to unhinge the very Being of the Monarchy, and sling it off from that Basis it at present stands upon, into the confus d Chaos of a Common-wealth.

Tet if his Endeavours should prove unsuccessful, and the Nation after what he has Written to awaken them into a due sense of their Danger, should continue in their Lethargy, even when all

our

our Hopes depend upon the Queen's single Life, and we must never again expect the Opportunities that now seem to Court us for our Common Good, he has this to Comfort himself, that he is too Old to live to see the dismal Effects of it, and has done all that was in the Power of a crazy Constitution, ill state of Health, and a great Age, to prevent what may happen from the dismal Effects of it to Posterity.

i-

7-

7-

e

11

.

15

y

ig

e-1i-

ld

a-

272

Se

ie

ill

in

Though he is far from despairing that the same Good Providence that has hitherto preserved this our National Church from the Insults of her Enemies, may not still continue to Support her; especially since our Worthy Representatives that served her so faithfully in the last Session of Parliament, are in a

Capacity

Capacity to be Chosen again in the Ensuing; and those Electors must shut their Ears against the Voice of Merit, and Reason, that will not hear their past Good Services, which plead so powerful by in their Behalf.

THE

HISTORY

272 rs be at od

OF

Faction and Hypocrify,

From its First RISE,

Down to these Present Times, &c.

Saints of these Times call it, was born in the Year 1528: The City of Geneva was the Place of its Navity; Rebellion was the Parent that rought this Child of Darkness forth; and Self-interest the Father that begot it. ome Historians indeed, to shew their kill in Chronology, trace its Original such higher, and bring it down immediately from Cain the Fratficide; but I ontent my self to tell the Reader, That his I mean, like the French King, was sorn with Teeth, and was at Years of Understanding

The History of Faction, &c.

derstanding as soon as it was out of its Mother's Belly. As for God-fathers and God-mothers I never heard of any, it had Impudence enough to answer for itself without any Vouchers for its good Behaviour, but the Annals of those Times inform us, Nurses it had Two, Zuinglim and Calvin, that brought it up by Hand with the Spoon-meat of Contradiction, and one Chaplain or Tutor which was one Knox, the famous Scotch Man. It no fooner faw the Light, but cry'd out, Not Episcopari, and made the Bishop of the Ci ty withdraw himself from his See. Duke of Savoy for his part, fell a Threat ning like one that would fend it back a gain from whence it came, and with the Canton of Bern made a Noise at its shak ing off his Soveraignty, but all to little purpose, the Mob was of its Side, and hi Menaces did e'en as much as his Artillery which was just nothing at all; Indepen dency was the Word, and Independen they would be, for all that he could fay do to the End of the Chapter.

fancy; be it known therefore, to the who are inquisitive after the Transaction of Riper Years, that having so settled the Government of Affairs in its own Domin ons, as neither to fear the Thunder of the f its atican, or have the least Dread of the and eftoration of square Caps, Gowns, Lawnhad eeves, Rochets, or Surplices, it took a tfelf ancy to travel, and fow the Tears of Sediehaon in Germany, Switzerland, France and s inoland. The Journey fucceeded as it glim buld wish, andwhere-ever it came, no-Hand ing was to be heard of but Jealousies and , and ears, Discontents and Insurrections: Inone much, that there was not a Country it t no as'd through, but what felt the hateful Nol ffects of its Progress. God's Worship e Ci vas the Pretext this Incendiary made use The f, while its Emissaries were dishonouring reat he Creator, by folely taking Care of the ck a rofit and Advantage of the Creature. h sh roselytes brought in Money, and Money Chak arry'd on its Defigns in such a manner little s embroyl'd the Affairs of the greatest id hi rinces in Europe, and totally suppres'd llery he Distinction between Good and Evil, epen Right and Wrong, Soveraignty and Subnden ction. The Prince was exhorted to make Say o Converts of the People, and the People o take Arms against the Prince, till at of In aft War and Desolation grew into an Extho mple, and one Nation took Measures Pion rom another, how to destroy themselves hrough the Means of this Faction's premin tending

d th

no

D

pr h

t ed

i

0

tending to be sent Ambassador extraordinary from The Prince of Peace: In short, the Infection was almost grown Epidemical, and had dispers'd it self from the Lake Leman, more or less, the Scin over the Danube, the Rhine, the Mosell, and the Maes, the last of which, wholly slung off its Allegiance from its lawful Prince, and to have an Excuse for the general Description, made choice of one salse Worship for another, by way of Exchanging Superfition for Hypocrifie.

But to leave remoter Countries for our own, and to give an Account of its Reception here among us, of the British Nation, I mean the Euglish and Scotch, (tho) Calvin began to keep his Correspondencies with the first, long before its Union with the last) it may not be improper to fay this Piece of Sanctity, or whatever you'll call it, attempted to bring about fuch Purposes here in England, in the Year 1547, by the Means of Martin Bucer, who transmitted our Liturgy from hence to John Calvin, to stand his Test and deeifive Opinion: Honest John for his part, was not among those that compos'd it, and for that Cause could not approve of ir. 'Twas Popery and the Whore of Babetton all over, though it was compiled in the the Reign of a Prince that would allow of nothing like it; and his Acquaintance and Delegate Martin, was to make the most pressing Instances imaginable, with the hen Lord-Protector, the Duke of Somert, that he would give Order for his Corections and Amendments. To strengthn his Interest with the Duke, he sent is Highness a long Admonitory Epistle nder his own Hand; at last, finding the rotector's Stomach had no Relish at all or Puritanism, or Innovations in the Eablish'd Church's Form of Prayer or Ceremonies, he carried his Exhortations arther, and apply'd by way of Letter to is Nephew the King, and Council, both Houses of Parliament, the Convocation f the Clergy, the two Universities, &c. nion which with much ado prevail'd with the People by the Means of his Agents who kept their proper and distinct Circuits, to lislike that Form of Worship, which at he first was look'd on by them as an hearenly Treasure, compos'd by the especial Direction of the Holy Ghost: But this was to be imputed to the Eagerness of their Solicitations, more than any thing that was faulty in it; and it was brought under a Review, and alter'd to a farther Distance than it had been before from the Ri-B 3 art, it,

rdi ort,

mi

ake the

the

ung

nce, eral

orging

our

Re. Na-

tho'

den-

r to ever

bout

Year

ucer,

ence

de-

re of Bad in

the

The Reader perhaps may cavil at the last Assertion, because the Generality of Historians speak otherwise of the Contrivances then a foot against those two Noble Brothers, and the Lord Archbishop a bove-mention'd, and the People are fond of the Reputation of a certain Author who, in his History of the Reformation appears to be more tender of the Section have charg'd the Matter of Fact upon than to lay it at their Doors; but I have fufficient Authorities for what I have faid, having seen and transcrib'd a Letter at Zurick in Switzerland, which is taken for granted to be of Calvin's own writing to Martin Bucer.

:ho'

ing

tho-

flo r fore

mall

him

1 he

his

the

and ock;

ainfl

1 ta-

pard,

'em-

one.

with this ty of

ntri

No.

op a fond thor

tion

elt

pon

haw fu

The fecond Liturgy that fell short of Calvin's Intentions, was confirm'd by Act of Parliament, Anno 5, 6. Edw. 6. by the Tenour of which it may appear, First, That there was nothing contained in the faid Book, but what was agreeable to the Word of God, and the Primitive Church; very comfortable to all good People desiring to live in Christian Conversation, and most profitable to the Estate of this Realm. And, Secondly, That such Doubts as had been raised in the Use and Exercise thereof, proceeded rather from the Curiosity of the Minister and Mistakers, than of any other Cause. But this would not ferve Faction's Turn. the very Grant of its Request more exasperated the Party, than a down-right Denial; and they must have all things modell'd by the Form of the Geneva Cut, or else no Quiet was to be had. Which since they could not have in England under the Reign of King Edward, who liv'd but a fhort time after the fettling the fecond Liturgy, they refolv'd to pursue their Projects with all the Eagerness imaginable, during their Exile and Discountenance in the Days of Queen Mary. Such of the English indeed as retir'd to Embden, Strasbourgh, Basil, or any other Free and Imperial Cities, observ'd no Form of Wor-Thip in their publick Assemblies, but this fecond Liturgy; but fuch as approv'd not of it when in England, united themselves into a separate Congregation in the City of Franckfort, after having compos'd fuch a Form, or rather Medly, of Prayer, thro' the Affistance of their two Presbyters or Chiefs, Whittingham and Knox, that had neither Head, Tail, or any thing like Symetry in it. It was enough for them that it was introduc'd into their Church, as they were pleased to call a Community of Sinners, and receiv'd as Devotional in it. 'Twould fanctifie Blasphemy and Prophaneness under the Notion of Propagating God's holy Worship; and the Doctrines and Tenents laid down by the Compilers of it, could not but be of exceeding Edification to the Brethren, that held it for lawful that Princes are accountable to their Subjects, and upon any thing that shall be judg'd by them within the Verge of Administration, punishable with Death or Dethronement, Vid. Instit. Lib. 4. C. 10, 8, 31. To speak Evil of Digniin

the

ras.

[morthis

not

City

uch iro'

Or

had

Sy-

hat

as

of

it.

ro-

ga-

he

he

X-

at

it-

ng

he

th

ib.

es

ties was a Text altogether Evangelical, and put in Practice by them; and though the Princess they spoke Evil of, held the Reins of Government too furiously, and acted contrary to our Saviour's Precepts, who more than once enjoyers us to be compassionate and merciful; yet the high Power she was invested with, ought to have reminded them not to have curs'd the Lord's Anointed, or revil'd her with reproachful Language, as Calvin, who calls her Proserpine, or Queen of Hell; afluring us that all the Devils in Hell were not half so Mischievous, Cancillarius Proserpiues illius, que nunc in Anglia omnes Superat Diabolos: and Knows who could find her no better Titles than that of Fezabel, Mischievous Mary of the Spanish Blood, the profess'd Enemy of God. From hence it is, that Beza calls Mary Queen of Scots, by the Name of Medea, and Athaliah, of which one was no less Inamous in the Sacred, than the other was That the English in the Heathen Story. Puritans compared Queen Elizabeth to in Idle Slut, who swept the Middle of the Room, but left all the Dust and Filth thereof behind the Doors; that Didoclavius calls King James, Insentissimus Evangeii Hostis, the dreadfullest Enemy of the KingKingdom of Christ. I could give othe Instances of the like Nature, and exposite the Attempts of the Faction, and trace it Malignancy through the Course of this misguided Queen's Reign: But the Persecutions in it bearing no Proportion to he illustrious Extraction, out of Deserence to her Royal Sister who succeeded her not out of any Respect for those that continually conspir'd against her, I shall drop the ungrateful Remembrance of her blind Zeal, and pass on to the Party's execrable Practices against the glorious Queen Elizabeth.

At whose Accesson to the Throne, such as had liv'd in Exile among the Switzers or were Knox's Followers to Strasbourgh and Geneva, prepar'd to return home, be ing all most Confident of resetling their Communion under a Queen who had been fuspected to have no small Esteem for Calvin's Opinions. But those of the Reform'd English who made use of the Establish'd Liturgy at Franckfort, had done their Errand for 'em, and were before-hand with them in getting into the Royal Presence. Besides, the Queen, than whom no one could be more tender of the Crown Prerogatives, was of fuch a di-Atinguishing Judgment, as to be well as fur'd fur'd that a Religion which gave so much Authority to the Ministry, as to make it Independent, without being call'd to Account either by Prince or Bishop, was altogether distant from her Interest. fuch Men as these she was to give her self no hopes, but that they would proceed with her as they did with her Sifter, and be still entring into Confederacies against her Person and Government. therefore, by the Advice of her Privy Council, refolv'd to have an Eye upon 'em, and upon their Arrival in England, when great Multitudes reforted to 'em, issued out her Royal Proclamation, by which she gave Command, That no Innovation should be made in the State of Religion, and that all Persons for the Time present, should conform themselves to the Practices of her Majesty's Chappel, till it was otherwise appointed. Another Proclamation was alfo fet forth, by which all Preaching was prohibited, but by fuch as only were Licens'd by Authority; which was not like to Countenance any Men of fuch turbulent Spirits. These Proceedings gave no small Disappointment to the Brethren, though they comforted themselves with the receiv'd Opinion, That a Man may catch most Fish in troubled Water, and put 'em othe spok ce its erfe he

ence her

condrop

olind able

Eli

fuch zers

argh be heir

been

for Re-

the

had

be-

the

han the di-

l af

ir'd

'em in Hopes of making Poselytes through the Advantage of the Times. They were not wanting for Remonstrances; and Calvin was very Importunate by Letter with Secretary Cecil for an Alteration of the Form of Prayer after his Way. The Secretary was under no Deficiency of Prudential Measures, and kept Fair with him, well knowing that the Party he was the Head of, was too great to be Disoblig'd, and return'd him fair Speeches, and declar'd himself a Courtier, by shewing himself neither Hot nor Cold of either Side. When at last he was told the Liturgy had been revis'd and agreed upon, and it was the Queen's Command it should be Unalterable. What had Faction to do now but to cast its Skin, and take upon it self the Name of Puritanism; Dissimulation was the Weapon to be made use of, and the Party were but too Dextrous in the Handling of it. Their Business was to get in with the Court, cost what it would, knowing that if Godliness be Gain, there were few Courtiers but would take part with it; which prov'd true in the Earl of Leicester, the Queen's chief Fa-vourite, who yielded himself to be admitted their Head and Protector; they had also the Earl of Huntingdon, the Lord North.

BC3nt

re

th

he

eu

n,

he

nd

be

elf

le.

ad

as

n-

W

elf

on

nd

in

as

it

in,

ke

he

a.

id-

ey

ord

th,

North, anh others in the House of Peers; Sir Francis Knollis, Walfingham, and many others in the House of Commons, and no small Number of the Bishops; Bishop Hooper in particular, who were for revokng several Clauses in Acts of Parliament, that ty'd 'em up very closely to their good Behaviour. It had been order'd by the Bishops in their Convocation, That all the Clergy then Assembled should subscribe to the 39 Articles; and likewise by the Unanimous Confent of the Bishop and Clergy, that none should be admitted thenceforth into holy Orders, till he had first subscrib'd the same, and solemnly had oblig'd himself to defend the things therein contain'd, as confonant in all Points to the Word of God (Anno 1571, Lap. de Episcop.) But by the first Branch of the Act of Parliament, these Gentlemen who were concern'd in making of it, would have it meant, That Subscription seem'd to be no otherwise requir'd, than to such Articles alone as contained the Confession of the true Christian Faith, and the Doctrine of the Holy Sacraments. By which Explication all Articles relating to the Book of Homilies, the Form of Confecrating Archbishops and Bishops, the Church's Power for the imposing new Rites and Ceremomies, nies, and retaining those already made were omitted, as not within the Compass of the faid Subscription; and tho' no fuch Restriction occurs in the following Branches, by which Subscription is requir'd indefinitely to all the Articles, yet feem'd the first Branch to have such Influence over the rest, that it was made to serve the Turn of the Puritan Faction, whenfoever they were call'd upon to fubscribe to the Episcopal Government, the Publick Liturgy of the Church, or the Queen's Supremacy: But nothing more visibly difcover'd their Designs, and the great Power and Share their Patrons had in the Publick Administration, than the omitting the first Clause in the twentieth Article; in which it was declar'd, That the Church had Power to decree Rites and Ceremonies. and Authority in Controversies of Faith. Which Clause, though extant in the Regifters of the Convocation, as a Part of that Article, and printed as such both in Latin and English, Anno 1562, was totally left out in this new Impression; and was accordingly not made use of in any Harmonies of Confessions, which were either printed at Geneva, or where Calvinifm was of most Predominancy. And fo it was with us in England, till the Death ade pass fuch nchndeem'd ence erve enfo. oe to olick een's v dif ow. Pubz the ; in urch nies, aith. Rert of th in otaland any were alvi-And

eath

Q.

of the Earl of Leicester : After which, in the Year 1593, the Articles were Reprined, and that Clause resum'd according s it stands in the publick Registers. Concessions granted to the Puritans in this arl's Days, contributed very much to he Popish Seminaries we have abroad in hese, and had they been less tollerated, we in all Probability should have had no English Colleges at Doway, St. Omer's Rhemes, Paris, Rome, &c. for till these Times, the Papists had kept themselves n the Communion of the Church of Enland, and did in general as punctually atend all Divine Offices in the same, as the Vulgar Protestants. And it is probable enough, they might have held out much longer in their due Obedience, if first the Scandal which was given by the other Faction, and afterwards the Separation that follow'd at its Heels, had not taken them off. The Liturgy of the Church bad been exceedingly well fitted to their Approbation, by leaving out an offensive Passage against the Pope: Restoring the old Form of Words accustomably us'd in the Participation of the Holy Sacrament, the total expunging of a Rubrick that seem'd to make a Question of the Real Presence, the Situation of the Table at the Foot of the Altar; the reverend reverend Posture of Kneeling at it, or before it by all Communicants; and fingly h the Vestiments us'd by the Priest or Minifter at the time of that Divine Administration. So long as things continued in this Posture, they saw no Occasion of Defection or Separation from the rest of their Brethren in the Acts of Worship. But when all De cency and Order was turn'd out of the Church by the Heat and Indiscretion of these new and pretended Reformers; the holy Table brought into the Church like a common Table; the Communicants in Some Places sitting at it with as little Reverence as at a Festival the ancient Fasts and Feasts abrogated and laid aside, and Church-Vestiments thrown away as useless, and the Rags of Superstition they then began visibly to decline from their first Conformity. And yet they made no general Separation nor Defection, till the Genevian Brethren bad first made the Schism, and rather chose to meet in Woods and Barns, yea, and in open Fields, than to affociate This is the Sum of with their Brethren. what I extracted from a Manuscript at Doway, belonging to one Father Saunders, a Relation of that Saunders the Romish Priest, who first establish'd the English Seminary there on the afore-said Account. Yet

Yet notwithstanding these Indulgencies and Concessions from the Throne, in this impure Puritanism's Favour, notwithfanding her Majesty's Complyance in heir behalf, by the Mediation of the beore-mentioned Courtiers; What did they ot contrive; What did they not openly publish against her? There was not a lot but they were at the Bottom of it; ot an intended Rising but they concerted t; and it was with the Government of those Days as it now is with ours, those n Authority were amus'd with their Friendship, while if they would have oened their Eyes, they might have descrid the Tokens of their Enmity. They ad their Leicester, North, Walsingham, ind Knollis to be their Intercessors; and the Faction of these Days is not without s many more to render it Unblameable n the Royal Presence. But of this more at the Conclusion of this Treatise. proceed therefore by Way of Epitomy, in the Transactions of these Schismaticks, during the Reign of this pious Queen: The Favourite Earl had no sooner clos'd his Eyes, but her Majesty open'd hers, and bearing in Mind the Purport of their Factions, which had for their Titles, The Epistle to the Convocation-house; the Epitome;

Yet

9 01

lyh

Tini.

Ara.

this

tion bren

De.

urch.

and

ught

the

at it

val:

and

rown

tion

beir

000

Ge.

ism,

erns,

ciate

m of

t at aun-

Ro.

En-

faid

tome; The Demonstration of Discipline; The Supplication; Diotrephes; Martin's Minerals; Have you any Work for a Cooper? A Dialogne setting forth the Bishops Tyran nical Dealings against Goa's Children, with many others of the like Strain: She call'd their Authors to an Account, who were feverally punish'd according to their De merits. To rake in these filthy Puddles is beneath a Pen that is not of the same Com plexion with their own; but, I hope for Excuse, if I give the Reader to understand that these seditious Pamphlets gave no o ther Title to the Queen, than, The Supream Offender; Majesty disrob'd of its Attributes Heaven's Vice-gerent turn'd Hell's Empres &c. To the Archbishop, than Belzebub of Canterbury; Pope of Lambeth; A most bloody Opposer of God's Saints; a most vil and accursed Tyrant. To the Bishops in general, than, Unlawful, unnatural, falle and bastardly Governours of the Church, De vils incarnate, cogging, couzening Knaves and lying Dogs. To the inferiour Clergy than , Drunkards , Dolts , Hogs , Dogs Wolves, Foxes, an Uncircumcifed Crew of bloody Soul-murtherers, &c. To the Bi-Thops and Clergy affembled in Convocation, than, Right puissant, poison'd, perse cuting and terrible Priests; the holy Leagu of Subscription; horned Monsters of the Con-Piration-house; an Antichristian Swinish Rabble: To the Common-Prayer-Book, than, A Medly of Corruption, where the Sores and Ulcers of Idolatry are expos'd to blick View; the English Alcoran, the Connts whereof, are against the Law of God, ed the Injunctions of his holy Prophets: berein the Sacraments are prophan'd and ickedly manged, the Lord's Supper not ten, but made a Pageant or Stage-Play, nd the Form of Baptism is full of Childish d Superstitious Toys. These intollerable ibels against her Majesty's Person, her rchbishops, Bishops and Clergy, made e Queen procure and pass a Statute, by hich it was Enacted; That if any Person Persons, forty Days after the Session Parliament then fitting, should advidly devise, or write, or print, or set forth ly manner of Book, Rhyme, Ballad, Letr, or Writing, containing any falle, fetious or flanderous Matter, to the Defaation of the Queen's Majesty, or to the couraging, ftirring or moving of any. furrection or Rebellion within this lealm, or any of the Realms unto her beinging; or if any Person after the Time orefaid, as well within the Queen's Dounions, as in any other Place without ine; tin's per!

with all'd were ran-

Deles is

come for tand 100

ream

utes; pres.

ub of most

vik

ps in

Talse,

Deaves,

ergy

Dogs w

Bi-

roca. perse

eagu

the same, shou'd procure such Book, Rhime, Ballad, &c. to be written, printed, published or set forth, &c. (the said Offence not being within the Compass of Treason, by Virtue of any former Statute) that then the said Offenders upon sufficient Proof thereof by two lawful Witnesses, should suffer Death and Loss of Goods, as in Cases of Felony. But this Statute being made with Limitation to the Life of the Queen, it died with her; tho' had it been reviv'd, as it never has been since her Death, it might have prevented abundance of ill Consequences that have attended the subsequent Reigns.

Pursuant to this Act, several Offenders who ran counter to the Intent of it, were taken into Custody, and committed to the Fleet, Queen's Bench Prisons, &c. as Cartwright, Snape, and other Ring-leaders of the Male-contented Party. This immediately set the Brethren at work how to bring about their Deliverance; and as they were posses'd with Principles that render'd them infatuated, so to give the World a Specimen that they were so; One Hacket took upon him among all the rest to partake of the same Divine Nature with Almighty God; and gave out, That he was appointed by his

God

God to be King of Europe; and therefore look'd upon all Kings (but the Queen especially) as the Usurpers of the Throne which belong'd to him. As for Elizabeth, aid he (for he would give her no other ippellation) she had lost her Crown; and e spar'd not to do Execution upon her, n her Arms and Pictures, stabbing his Dagger into both where-ever he faw 'em. Amongst the rest of the Fools who gave Credit to him, two Gentlemen of confidetable Families, fwallowed down his poionous Notions, their Names Copipager and Arthington, who affirm'd, before the rest of those who were inclinable to his Do-Etrines, that Christ appear'd to them, not in his own Body as he fits in Heaven, but in that especial Spirit which he dwell'd in Hacket more than in any other. Hacket was the very Angel that should come before the Day of Judgment, with his Fan in one Hand and his Shepherd's Crook in the other, to distinguish the Sheep from the Goats, to tread down Satan and ruine the Kingdom of Antichrift. All Novelties take, especially such as we wish, and their Assertions went down pleasantly enough with such as were prepared to give them Entertainment. From hence they repair'd to their Idol Hacket, and fon, that

me,

ıbli-

fles,

be of

ad it fince

bun-

e at-

ders it,

mitons,

ther

Par-

iren

livewith

ted,

tea,

1 a-

ame

and

his

God

and in the Name of the Lord Jesus Christ would have anointed Hacket for their King; but he cunningly declin'd it, tel ling them, He was anointed already by the Holy Ghost, and ordain'd Coppinger to be his Prophet of Mercy, and Arthing ton his Prophet of Justice; commanding them in his Name, To go and tell up an down the City, That Jesus Christ was com with his Fan in his Hand to judge the World and if any ask'd them where he was? to di rect'em to his Place of Abode. He further more enjoyn'd'em, totell the People, if the would not believe them, they might come and fee whether they could kill him; for as fur as God is in Heaven, no les assuredly was Christ come to judge the World. Away flew the Messengers of their New Messias Command, crying out thro' every Street Christ is come ; Christ is come ; Repent, repent; till they came into Cheapside, where they mounted into an empty Cart (a proper Pulpit for fuch Preachers) proclaim ing from thence, That Hacket participated of Christ's glorified Body, and was now come with his Fan to propagate the Discipline, establish the Gospel, and settle in England a new Commonwealth: They added to this, That they were the two Prophets of Mercy and Justice; That Hacket Hacket was the Supream Monarch of the World; that all the Kings of the World, held of him as Vassals, and that therefore he only ought to be obey'd, and the Queen depos'd.

Christ

their

t, tel

dy by

pinger

hing.

nding

p and

COM

Torla

to di

t ber

c the e and

s Sur

way

Tias's

reet,

here

proaim-

cipa-

was the

and

Ith:

the hat

cket

No one has Reason to doubt but the Novelty of the Sermon drew abundance of Auditors about the Cart; though not one was fo mad among them all to cry out, God fave King Hacket. They would have proceeded, but the Encrease of the-Throng, and the Noise they made, hindred them from being heard; fo with much ado by the Help of their Friends of the Family of the Enthusiasts, they got off to Hacker's Lodgings, where a while after his Mock-Majesty and his two dutiful Subjects, were feiz'd by an Order from above, carried before the Council, to whom they shew'd so little Reverence, that they never gave their Hats, telling them, They were above all Magistrates whatfoever. Hacket was arraign'd and brought to his Tryal foon afterwards, and being found guilty, had Sentence pass'd upon him, which was put in Execution two Days afterwards. But neither the Judgment which had been given against him, nor the Fear of Death mitigated any thing of that Spirit of Infatuation wherewith the Devil had poffess'd him. He exclaim'd as he was drawn upon the Hurdle, in the most blasphemous manner, Jebovah, the Messias, Jehovah the Messias: Behold the Heaven is opened, behold the Son of the most high is coming down to deliver me: And when he was arriv'd at the Gallows, which was in the very place the Cart stood, in which he was proclaim'd King, Almighty and everlasting God, Jehovah, Alpha and Omega, Lord of Lords, King of Kings, the everlasting God, thou knowest that I am the true Jehovah whom thou hast fent, shew some Miracle from the Clouds, for the Conversion of these Insidels, and deliver me from mine Enemies. Therest is too horrid and impious to be mentioned or imparted to the Eyes of a fober Christian. Let it suffice therefore, that after some Strugglings with the Executioner, and impious Execrations against God and Man, he was hang'd and quarter'd as the Law directs in fuch Cases. As for his two Prophets, Coppinger starved himself in Prifon through a wiful Abstinence, but Arthington lived to see his Errour, was pardoned upon his Repentance, and publifled a Retraction of his Follies, and became a good Christian. To

4

De-

The History of Faction, &c.

To sum up their Proceedings during the Course of this excellent Queen's Reign, by way of Question:

Who conspir'd against her Person and Government? The Puritan.

n'd

the

the

the

me: Ws,

Cart

ing,

g of west bast

for leli-

too

ian.

ome

im-

lan,

aw

ro-

Pri-

Ar-

arbli-

be-

To

Who hinder'd the Decrease of Popery? The Puritan.

Who occasion'd the Spanish Invasion?
The Puritan.

Who made her sign the Queen of Scots Exution? The Puritan.

Who advis'd her to joyn with Scotch Rels against her Son, King James? The uritan.

Who caus'd Popish Seminaries to be ereed abroad? The Puritan.

Who put it into the Earl of Essex's Head aspire to her Throne, but the Puritan? So that all the Evils belonging to her dministration, ow'd their Rise to the emurness and Hypocrisie of a Party that retended to Holiness; while those, that ke the Publican, own'd themselves for inners, had no Share in 'em. To connice the Reader of this Assertion, let him in thro' the Annals of those Times, and e will find that where there was one Eissepal Protestant, or Popish Recusant affer'd for seditious Words and treasonale Practices, twenty of these wicked Puritans

ritans underwent the same Fate; which makes it beyond a Question, that either of the two former Religions is preserved ble, both for Honesty and Loyalty to the last.

Queen Elizabeth's Death was no foone made known, but her Successor James the Sixth of Scotland, was according to he last Will proclaim'd King of England, & which gave no fmall Encouragement t these turbulent Spirits to think the Da their own, and that all things for the Tim to come, would more than answer the Expectations. They were not infenfible how the Scots after the forc'd Refignation of his Mother, had render'd him under the Tuition of the Puritan Party; how he had been bred up from his Infancy, under the Discipline of the Kirk, and how low h had been brought by endeavouring to ad contrary to their Opinions in the Kingdon from whence he came, even fo much di spirited by their Behaviour, as to be hear to fay, before this happy Change, The had it not been for the hopes of the English Crown, he would have left Scotland, and enter'd himself a Noble Man of Venice But the Event fell much short of their Ex pectations, his Majesty had too good Memory not to bear in Mind the Di lovalty hich

the

fera-

o th

one

sth

he &c nt to

Da

Tim

thei

nfibl

ation

er th e had

er th

wh o ad gdon

ch di

heard Tha

ngli

ans

enice

ir Ex

ood

e Dil

loyalty of the Party, and though of a merciful Disposition (inherent in the Family he was descended from) had very little Thoughts of favouring them, who like the Serpent in the Country Man's Bosom, would fling him. He remember'd that a Scotland the same Pretenders to Sanctity ad deliver'd from the Pulpits in his own Royal Presence, That all Kings were the Devil's Bearns, and could not think that hose who held such detestible Doctrines for Orthodox Politions, would have any Reverence for him as their Lawful Moarch. Wherefore he resolv'd, as the Laws f England, and the Temper of the better ort of People allow'd him all the Preroatives of a Soveraign, so he would make Use of the Power of God and his Birthight had given him for the Good of his ubjects. At his first coming to England, he was heard to express himself after this nanner: That for the twelve Years last ast of his living in Scotland, he us'd to ray upon his Knees before every Sermon, hat he might hear nothing from the Preachr which might justly grieve bim; and that he Case was so well alter'd now he was in England, that he was us'd to pray that he night profit by what he heard. However his Ministry, who were well chosen, and of Orthodox Principles themselves, were allow'd to break the Ice, in order to bring over the Malecontents, if possible, to their Sentiments; but not being able to effect fuch a difficult Change, had Orden from his Majesty, upon some Complain against the Liturgy, to require to compose another, such as they thought might be generally accepted. The first Classic thereupon devis'd a new one, agreeable in most things to the Form of Geneva But this being rejected by a fecond, was referr'd to a third, who quarrell'd at their Alterations, when a fourth flarted up Ob jections against theirs: So that no likelihood (as had been before projected) appearing of any other Form of Worship, either better or worse to be agreed upon among them, the old one flood good, and these Complaints were dismiss'd, till they could agree better amongst themfelves.

Just so Pacuvius dealt with the People of Capua, when they resolv'd to put all their Senators to Death: For when he had advis'd them not to execute that Sentence upon any one Senator, till they were agreed upon another to supply the Place; there follow'd such a Division amongst them in the Choice of a New, and so were many Exceptions arose against every oring Man that was offer'd to them, that at le to flash it was resolv'd to let the old Senate Condition in the Change of the Persons. The King notwithstanding this dexterous Evasion of those about him, was easily erswaded; and whether to shew his earning, or out of a Defign to convince ese Backsliders by Force of Argument, and bring'em over to the Church, resolved to admit of a free Conference at Tampton-Court, between the Managers both Parties. The 14th of January was e Day appointed, and though his Preecessor, Queen Elizaleth, could never be duc'd to fuch a Concession, there attendd on the behalf of the Church, the Lord rchbishop of Canterbury, the Lords Binops of London, Winchester, Durham, Worefter, St. David's, Chichefter, Carlifle, and eterborough; the Deans of the Chappel of Christ's Church, St. Paul's, Worcester, Saisbury, Chester, and Windsor; as likewise Dr. King, Archdeacon of Nottingham, nd Dr. Field, afterwards Dean of Glouefter; all in their Robes and Habits, peuliar to their feveral Orders and Degrees. On the Side of the Sectaries were present, Dr. John Reynolds, and Dr. Spark of Oxford, rden lain

many

comight

laffi eable

2004

Was their

Ob keli-

ap-

hip, upon

, and

till

hem-

eople

it all

n he Sen-

were lace; ongli

nd fo

many

ford, Mr. Chatterton and Mr. Knowles of Cambridge; neither in Priests Gowns, or Canonical Vests, but in such as were then commonly worn by the Turky Merchants, as if they subscrib'd to an Opinion that had been reviv'd among 'em, That they ought rather to conform in all outward Ceremonics to the Turk than the Papist, When after all their fruitless Endeavours the Conference these Dissenters had so earneftly requested, ended in this, That the Bishops and Conformable Party went a way with an easie Victory; not only the King's Majesty, but the Lords of the Privy Council, being abundantly well fatisfy'd in such former Scruples as had been rais'd against the Church and Orders ofit, Let it suffice that this great Mountain from which they promis'd themselves fach great Advantages, was deliver'd of a Moufe, and the Brethren loft fo much of their Reputation, that the King was fo well fatisfy'd in the Weakness of their Objections, and the Injustice of their Cavils, that turning his Head towards fome of the Lords, If this be all, (said he) which they have to Jay, I will make them either conform themselves, or hurry them out of the Land, or do somewhat that is worse. Had his Actions come up to his Words, we had not knows

ľ

known the Calamities that have befallen us on their Account even unto this Day. Not but he had fuch Opportunities to do as have never shewn themselves since, eir Endeavours to Affassinate him in otland, which was happily detected fome me before his Accession to the Throne England, had so far put the Sword of uthority into his Hand, that he might we suppress'd 'em for ever, the Resettle. ent of Episcopacy in that ancient Kingom, the Change of the Ministry, and bhorrence his Chief Subjects had of at intended Murther, with the Disposion the late Queen of England had left e Generality of her People in, might we fix'd the Church of God in both Naons upon fuch a lasting Foundation, at the Gates of Hell should never preail against it. But his Majesty neither eld the Reins of Government with a instant Head, nor was very fortunate the Choice of his Ministers, after his d Councellours were worn out: but hang been kept to fuch hard Meat in Scotnd, he was so taken up with the Delicies of the English Court, that he abanon'd the Severities and Cares of the Adinistration, to enjoy the Pleasures of a rown. Yet tho' the King was supine, and they form

5 0

or hen

1erini-

That

2274

Dist.

urs,

ear.

the

nt a-

the

Pri-

atis

een

ofit,

rom

reat

ouse,

heir

well

ecti-

that

the

and, Acti-

not

OWB

and enjoy'd himself at Ease, Archbisho Bancroft, encourag'd by the Words afor faid, which had been spoken by the Kin at the Conference, fet himself at Wor requir'd a strict Conformity to the Rule of the Church, according to the Law in that behalf, and without sparing No conformists, or Half-conformists, at lea reduc'd them to that Point, that the must either leave their Churches, or ob The Author of the Ala the Church. of Damascus, a Book publish'd in the Days, fays that no fewer than three hu dred Ministers were ejected; but it a pears upon the Rolls brought in by Bish Bancroft before his Death, that there h been but forty nine depriv'd upon all 0 casions, (which shews that Occasion Conformity was breaking in upon us those Days) which in a Realm containing nine hundred Parishes would be no gre Matter. The Punishment of some fer of the Principals, struck such a gener Terror into all the rest, that Inconform ty grew out of Fashion in a less Time that could be eafily imagin'd. Hereupon for low'd a great Alteration in the Face Religion, and more Churches were n built, beautified and repair'd, in this goo Bishop's short Time of Government, the

n,

a

k,

The History of Faction, &c.

Tho

for

Kin

orl

Rul

Law

No

lea

the

obe

Alu

tho

hu

t a

ifho

e ha

110 fion

usi

inin

grea fer

enen

orm

e tha n fo re n

g00

, tha

· ha

ad been in many Years before. But his accessor Dr. George Abbot, unravell'd all ain, and rendred his great Zeal for God's onour of no Effect: He was no fooner vanc'd to the Episcopal See, but the ethren held up their Heads again under Protection; and it is not to be doubtfince the Earl of Dunbar, by whose Inest he got into the Primacy, was of Calvinifical Perswasion, the Bishop s advanc'd for that End, as one that d no Abhorrence for Calvin, himself: me will tell us, That the King himfelf, ing in a Confternation about the Gunwder Plot, then carry'd on by the Pats, and miraculously defeated, made n endeavour to advance this Faction a Ballance to the other: e or false, this is undisputable, that ey got to fuch a Head thereby, as feveof them (even to a Majority) being ofen Members of Parliament, made ld with his Prerogative, and render'd n under the Necessity of being unly during his Reign, under the Fre-ency of Parliaments. When, had he t in Practice the Advice he gave to his n, he might have obtain'd the Name a Glorious, as well as Peaceful, a Polik, as well as Learned, a Resolute, as well well as Merciful King. Which Advice in his own Words, (vide Baf. Doron Was to take heed of all Puritans, whom he calls, the very Pests of the Church an Commonwealth; whom no Deferts can of lige, neither Oaths nor Promises bind breathing nothing but Sedition and Calum nies; aspiring without Measure, railing without Reason, and making their own maginations the Square of their Confo ences: protesting before the great God, the be should never find among the High-land ers baser Thieves, greater Ingratitude, an more Lyes and vile Perjuries, than amon those Phanatical Spirits; which was full verified in the fad Catastrophe of the Prince's Reign whom it was directed To bring the Annals of this Mo narch's Government to a Conclusion: H beheld Sedition in its Declenfion at h coming to the Throne, and faw it rea vering its pristine Strength at his leaving it; he found but one Form of World almost in Practice in England, and the National, but left twenty, as Presbytt rians, Independents, Quakers, Anabap tists, &c. the last of which, had been po nish'd with Death, in his Predecessor Reign; witness eleven Dutch Men, and English Man at Norwich, that was burn

is

in

is luj N

av

isp

ro

nd

Wa

n it

ey ad

he

nor wn hel

rair

Reb

ate

o f

rade

o n

him

for 1

t W

ice on on an ob na

un

in

i ja

the end

ull th

Eta

Mo H H

eco

vio

· (Hi

th

yte

bap

po

Mori ada urn

for the Profession of it. He came to the Throne in a profound Peace, maitain'd it o for the greatest part, during Life, but left breaking out into an Intestine War, to is Son King Charles; who to ingratiate imself with this Faction, had plung'd is Father into a War with the House of lustria, by which he was brought under Necessity of calling a Parliament, and ave those Parliaments the Courage to ispute his Actions. For though they romis'd to fland by him with their Lives nd Fortunes in the Profecution of that Var, yet when they had engag'd him nit, they would not part with any Moey to defray the Charges of it, till they ad stripp'd him of the richest Jewels in he Regal Diadem. But he was much nore punish'd in the Consequence of his wn Example in affifting those of Robel against their King, whereby he rain'd up his Subjects in the School of Rebellion, and taught them to confedeate themselves with the Scots and Dutch, o seize upon his Forts and Castles, inrade the Patrimony of the Church, and o make use of his own Revenue against himself. In the former Reigns they were for submitting to a Form of Prayer, tho t was to be one of their own chufing;

б fer

fio

bf

co

too

dn dra

Ar

vai

n

DA

of :

elv

he poi

and

lan Ma

fen

Re

rai

ma

the

Me

but in this, no manner of Form was to be accepted of, the pious Brethren wen to pray with the Spirit, and make use of the Weapons of the Flesh, to carry of their Unchristian Designs. The Scot open'd their Mouths first, in order to di rect the Brethren in England, to know where the Scent lay. The King had the a stout Fleet of Ships at Sea, sufficients have block'd up all their Havens, and b destroying that small Trade they had mongst themselves, have reduc'd thems his Will and Pleasure. But they had I many Friends in the Council of Scotland repos'd fuch a Confidence in the Marquel of Hamilton, who was favour'd with the Royal Ear, and had fuch Encourage ment from their Partizans here in Em land, that they feared nothing less than the Power of the King, or to be enforce to Obedience by the Way of Arms. It Confidence of which, they despis'd all mo his Proclamations, which was the only Artillery he made use against the Tray tors, when their Disobedience call'd for other Instruments to reduce them. In wh short, those that were fent to bring them to their Duty, kept a Correspondence ole with them; and Hamilton, whom the High King had delegated his Authority to, as

to

en

OI OI

di

O

he

t ti

b

da

n t

1 1

1114 uel the

ige ing

for

the

, as his

his Majesty's High Commissioner, was fo far from doing the Business he was fent about, that he agreed to the Expulfion of the Bishops, and the Introduction of that Schism, they had been so long contending for. Hereupon his Majesty took Arms, and forc'd 'em to a Pacification: But his Troops were no fooner drawn from Scotland, but they broke the Articles they were fworn to the Observance of; and having kept their Troops n Pay, and fent for their Experienc'd Officers that had enter'd into the Service of foreign Countries, they apply'd themelves to the French Court, which thro' he Artifices of Cardinal Richelieu, supported 'em under Hand with Money and Ammunition: They invaded Eng-land with a powerful Army, whilst his has Majesty's Forces were disbanded and red fent to their respective Homes. As this In Rebellion of theirs had been concerted a-al mong the English, so the latter refus'd to raise sufficient Funds to appease it; which ay made his Majesty dissolve the Parliament then sitting. Hereupon the Rabble, In whose Creatures the Generality of the mem Members were, broke out into open Vi-olence; and to shew their Dislike of the Hierarchy, affaulted Lambeth-House, the

D)

be

be do lit

be

W

pe

ch

ſo

th

R

fiv

H

Pa

th

fo

fi

Ca

W

T

aı

N

П

1

38

Residence of the Archbishop; and afterwards broke open all the Prisons in South wark, and releas'd all the Prisoners whom they found committed for Non-conformi-But a Detachment of the Guards fup press'd this Insolence in due time, and their Ringleader, one Benstead, was appre hended, arraign'd, condemn'd and execu ted upon the Statute of the twenty fiftho King Edward the Third. This gave the King an Infight of what was then in Agi tation amongst his Graceless Subjects, and he was foon confirm'd in his Sentiment upon the Arrival of the Lords Mandevil and Howard of Escrigg at York, where he held his Royal Court, with a Petition, That the present War might be composit without Blood-shed; that a Parliament should be forthwith call'd for Redress of Grieveance, and that the Authors and Advisers of fuch Grievances as should be there complain'd of, should be brought to condign'd Punishment. All which the King, after having conven'd all the Peers for their Counsel consented to, by the Means of which, he invested the Parliament with the Executive Power, while he was to fit in the Throne with the Enfigns of Royalty, without the Exercise of it. The Scots upon this Compliance er.

th.

om

mi-

up-

neir

ore-

Cu

ho

the

lgi.

and ents

vil.

e he

on,

os'd

nent

s of

and

be

ght

rich

the

by

ar.

hile

En-

cife

nce

of

of the King's, were as ready to enter upon a Treaty, as the English were to demand it; the Management of which was chiefly left to those Lords, that brought the Petition; but the Stipulation being protracted, as it were by Consent, between the Commissioners of both Kingloms, till the Parliament was ready to it for the Dispatch of Business, the Members that had Votes in it, got leave to djourn their Proceedings to London, which gave the Scots Opportunity to tamper and cabal, viva Voce, with their Brethren in that City, and fettle Matters so as they should not fail of Success for the Time to come. I forgot to tell the Reader, That the King had two expenfive Wars besides this Rebellion upon his Hands, before the Dissolution of the last Parliament, one with Spain, and another with France; and was forc'd to diffolve several, on Account of their refufing the Subfidies that were necessary to carry them on. By these Means the King was oblig'd to make two disadvantagious Treaties of Peace with those two Kings, and to find out particular Ways to raife Money without a Parliament, as Shipmoney, &c. all which amounted but to a llender Sum, in respect to the many Millions lions that have been fince expended upona more unnecessary Account; I mean, by bringing France to fuch an Accommoda tion, as by the fourth Article at Reswick, was enough to entail War upon us and our Posterity for ever. How small soever the Grievance was, it was enough for them, that it had a Handle to be laid hold on; accordingly they fet their Emissaries at Work, to rail publickly at what had been done through the Force of those Neceffities, which themselves had occasion'd. The Members of this new Parliament had no fooner chosen a Speaker, and taken their Places, but a Motion was made, to Impeach the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Earl of Stafford. I should have given the last the Precedency, because he was made away, and fent into the Arms of his Redcemer first. No Bishops, was the Cry at St. Stephen's Chappel-Doors, and at the King's Coach where-ever he went; and if any Accident fell out, to cause Displeasure of the Vulgar, if things did not run on in the fame Channel they would have it, the Bishops were in the Fault of it. The Rife of any Commodity, the Lowering of Labourers Wages, and the Decay of Trade, was all imputed to them; and if

one

one the

the

An

va

re

Da

rgg fo

nd

ou ut

ve te.

fte

Lau

en

vas

or

Wa

em

o a xto ifie

Day

his

nqu

uri cardill (

na

by

a ck.

nd

rer for old ies

ad Ie-

fi-

·li.

er,

on

h-

he ly,

er

te-

ny of

he

he

1g

of if

ne

one ask'd a Tripe-woman, or a Fish-wife the Reason of their Goods lying upon their Hands; they were not to feek for an Answer, but were instructed to say, It was all along of the plaguy Bishops. renzy had posses'd 'em so far in those Days, that an Alderman's Daughter, readng St. Peter's Saying, Christ the Bishop four Souls, blotted out the Word Bilbop, nd incerted the Word Presbyterian of our ouls; another zealous Sifter expung'd out of her Bible the Word Lord wherefover she found it, Because the ungodly Pretes were styl'd after that manner. fter the Impeachment of Archbishop and, prevail'd for the Commitment of en Bishops more, the House of Lords vas fo thin, and the King fo weak, the lords, at last, consented to the taking way their Votes in Parliament. Nothing emain'd but his Majesty should pass it ino an Act by his Royal Affent, which was xtorted from him at Canterbury, and figified by his Message to the Houses eight Days after they had pass'd the Bill. Tho' his Condescention of his, caus'd such an nquietude in his Temper and Conscience, uring the rest of his Life, that he could carce truly boast of one Day's Felicity, Ill God was pleas'd to put a final End to the

pe ar

Va

Ca

vit

b t

re

ng ier

ar

b l

me

vhe

end

ear

uni

ob

rea

he

03

DAI

ew enc

The

o b ain

vin prese

42

the Pressures he labour'd under. For the next Vote after this, depriv'd him of hi Negative Voice, and put the whole Militia into his Enemies Hands. Which Miscariage we may find him truly sens ble of, if we read him in his Eine Barthi after this manner, That the Injury he ha done to the Bishops of England, did as much grate upon his Conscience, as either the per mitting of a wrong Worship to be set up in Scotland, or Suffering Innocent Blood to shed under Colour of Justice. His Roya Father's Words were to be verified, and no Bishop no King, was by his Example to be admitted for a Maxim of receive Authority. His faithful Councellor, th Earl of Stafford being taken off from a fifting him, by the Sword of Justice, an his Oracle in all Adversities; the Lon Archbishop of Canterbury remov'd from his Presence; he found himself oblig'db his Enemies to pass the Triennial Bil to fling away the Rights of the Sta Chamber, the High Commission, and the Coercive Power of Bishops; to part with all his Claim to Topnage and Poundage to Ship-money, and the Act for Knight hood, and by retrenching the Walks his Forrests and Chases, to leave h Game to the Destruction of each Boor and No Peasant.

į.

ch

ıſi

12 uc

per-

i

ol

oya

and

iv'

th a

an

ron db

Bill

Star

d th

No

Now it was that his Majesty began to pen his Eyes, too late; and upon the Parament's infifting on having the Royal lavy, the Tower of London, and all aftles and Forts in their Possession, notvithflanding his most gracious Message o this Effect, That he would equal, if not sceed all Acts of Favour which any of his redecessors had extended to the People of ngland; He retir'd to York, where the entlemen of the County, for the greatest art, were fo Loyal, as to offer themselves be his Majesty's Guard. The Parliment had before taken one for theirs, but whether they imagin'd the King's Innoence was fuch, as to need none, or they ear'd they should want another Opporunity to take Arms at; they voted this reachers were instantly order'd to sound he Trumpet of Sedition, and cry'd out o your Tents, O Israel; the Godly were nvited to bring in their Money, Plate, ewels and other Moveables, under prewith ence of carrying on the Cause of God: The People of all Counties were reported ight to be under a general Dissatisfaction against the Bishops and Liturgy; when to e his wince the contrary, several Petitions were ar an presented to his Majesty, while at Tork, and

h

n

e

0

le

he

u

f

h V

he

0 ble

lel wh

wa

of . bei roi

be i

ny ike

and which were printed and fubscribe by two hundred eighty two Lords and Knights, one thousand seven hundred and forty Esquires and Gentlemen of Note fix hundred and thirty one Doctors of D vinity, and no fewer than forty four thou fand five hundred and fifty Free-holder to shew however misguided the Rabbi were, and biggotted to their pretende Inspiration-Mongers, the Majority of the Better fort of People were for the Religio and Law establish'd. Remonstrances Declarations and Manifesto's are the Fore-runners of Acts of Hostilities. And there were not wanting Publications that Nature, to varnish over their dete fled Rebellion; Texts of Scripture flew about like Hail in their feveral Congre gations, and the Prophets and Apostla were brought in Head and Shoulders vindicate the Cause which these Fiend in Saints Cloathing were going to under take; and he was a Malignant that dar'd to fay they were not Fighting the Lords to a Battles, while they were at War with the ned They were ready to are Lord's Anointed. prove the Legality of it from St. Paul to the the Hebrews, where it is faid, Without Mun shedding of Blood there is no Remission experience the Text as much as they did the fult and

and

Ott D

101

en

obl

de

gio

the People by the means of it. To enter into the Detail of these Rebels, would be needless; what makes to our Purpose, is ot to take notice of the Journals of Batles or Sieges, nor to be particular as to he Occurrences that befel either Party; ut to shew that Injustice got the better f Right, Faction of Loyalty, and Anarhy of Decency and Order, fo far, that Wickedness being fanctified with Success, he best of Kings was sold as a Sacrifice the othose that sought after his Life, as our helds Saviour had been before him, and leliver'd into the Hands of his Enemies, her whose very Mercies were cruel. Nor her was it enough for them to be posses'd gn of his Person and Estate, and to bind still beir King with Chains, as was boasted from the Pulpit; they knew Villains cou'd end be never fafe, while the Objects of Villader ny were so, and took Counsel together, ike the Jews against the blessed Jesus, how order to destroy him. When Death is determithe ned, the Means how to bring it about are seldom difficult to be contrived; neighbor ther wanted those any long Study to turn that Murtherers, that had been so prompt and sexpeditious in shewing themselves Rebels. If did The People had been taught, it was Lawthe ful to take Arms against their Prince, and

10 e le

vh

h

Cr

li:

in

los

he

ne

f

Gre

Th

Bre

lep

ıgi

kep

Raj

m

he

God

defe

phe

Dec

and

Calvin's Doctrine of being Major Singula sed Minor Universis (and for that Reaso accountable to them who hold all the Privileges and Immunities from his Row al Favour) had been fo very often incu cated to them, that even the Authority the Scripture gave way to it, and the Go pel that fays, He that resisteth the Power receiveth unto himself Damnation, Wa flung afide to forward its Admission in the room of it. Not to dwell upon a Traged the past Age will ever be mention'd with Indignation for, the present Abhors (ex cepting fuch, who being of the same cor rupt Principles with the Regicides of those Days, are in Love with their Practi ces) and that which is to come, will rea with Confusion and Amazement; he wa adjudg'd by a Pretended High Court Justice, had Things that he knew not las to his Charge; was declar'd a Traytor by his trayterous Subjects, was found guilt of High Treason by the worst of Crimi nals, and had Sentence pass'd on him, a if according to Law, when he himfell was the Fountain of all Law and Justice His own Domesticks were with-held from him, during his Preparations for Eternity, his Chaplains denied him till the last Moments, the Priviledge of an ordinary Offeneli lo

hei

cul

y o Gol

wer

Wa

th

vit

ex-

0 acti

read

Wa

to lai

r by

rilty imi as tice.

rom

rni

laft

ary

fen-

offender refus'd him, when he was led orth as a Sheep to the Slaughter, who before be Shearers is dumb, so he open'd not his South, because it was God's doing: When e ascended from the Scaffold into those lessed Regions prepared for the Just, there he now converses with the Prohets, Saints and Martyrs, and enjoys a frown he can never be disposses'd of. lis Enemies and rebellious Subjects, haing in one thing kept their Words with im (viz.) That they would make him a lorious King: Though they denied him he Funeral Rites of being buried like ne, by not giving Leave but to some few f his Domesticks, to see him laid in the Ground even as a private Gentleman. Thus died all that was valuable, and the Breath of our Nostrils, the Beauty of Israel leparted from us; with him the true Reigion was exil'd, and Justice that still kept him Company, fled away, leaving Rapines and Devastion, Prophaneness and Impiety, Tyranny and Oppression to fill up the Measure of our Iniquity. Till it pleas'd God, after the Death of the Usurper, to defeat the Counsels of these vain Achitophels, and in Pursuance of his Heavenly Decrees, to restore our Native, Rightful and Lawful Soveraign King Charles the Second.

Second, after being with-held from his Inheritance fomewhat more than twelve This Prince was call'd to the Throne at a Juncture, when his Enemie not fo much as dream'd of it, and was re ceiv'd by the joynt Consent of those ver Persons who had devoted his sacred Head to a perpetual Exile. The Nobility, Gen try, the Citizens and the Commonals frove to out do one another in the Teff monies of their Affection, and those that before bawl'd out their Crucifige's, fung Hosannah's openly. With what Sincerin they did it, those that are better acquain ted with their Practices can inform us but that they did it, hundred of Eyes and Ears now in being can testify. This Prince came over with all the Opportunities that could have been wish'd for, of totally Suppressing this Viperous Brood. The Re fentment of his Father's Death, the barbarous Usage of himself, the Murther of his chief Friends who took Arms for him against the Usurper, cry'd out for Vengeance; but he had learn'd fo much from his Father's Example, to do Good to those that despightfully us'd him, that he contented himself, with satisfying the Manes of the Dead with a few of the Regicides. Some People impute this to General Monk's Ad. vice,

oid

hi

èl

0 lty

e l

to

yth

and

e I

IV

dge

C

as t

elve

nies

revery

ien

altr

efti

that

ung

rity

ain

us

and

inc

that

ally

Re

bar

er of

him

nge.

that

nted

the

ome

Advice,

ce, who having been a rigid Puritan mfelf, retain'd fome Tenderness for the arty, whose Doctrines he had not then tolly forfaken, which made him interceed ith his Majesty on their behalf; others y, That the Gentlemen who were outw'd with his Majesty, and compos'd his ere little Privy Council beyond the Seas, rgiving their Opinion, that he ought to efer and oblige his Enemies, in bringing em over to his Interest, fince his Friends ould be his Friends still, and those that d flood by him till his Accession to the hrone without any Reward, would connue under the same Dispositions of Loyy, till another Opportunity should offer elf for their Advancement. The last of hich Opinions feems the most probable, o'he seem'd to take both. For his Maty was no fooner fix'd at Whitehall, but e Lords Manchester, Say and Sele, and Anthony Ashley Cooper were admitted to his most Honourable Privy Council. the Means of which Ministers, not withanding the Act for Uniformity, they had e Liberty of exercifing their unapostoli-Worship, and were let into the Knowdge of every thing that was in Agitation Court. These were their Intercessors on any Breach of the Law, and the King as told from their Mouths, That what had been done, might be done again. A a noble Peer in our Days, has fince word ed it, When insteod of giving the Roy Affent to an Act of Indemnity, had hed ftroy'd all the Rigicides and Parricide and pass'd a Law to confiscate all the states of such who were any way concern in the late horrid Rebellion, with a Clau in the faid Act, to disable all Officers the Army from a Collonel and upwards, Lawyers, from a Barrifter at Law and wards, all Clergy-men, from a Batchel of Divinity and upwards, with all Civil ans, who had ever subscrib'd to the Parl amentary Authority, or taken the Cove nant, from bearing any publick Employ ment in the three Kingdoms; the Faction entirely been broken and disfolv'd, and the King been rendred able to provide for h honest Friends, who had faithfully stud to the Cause of the Crown, the Church stablish'd, and the Laws of the Land, be ing despoil'd of their Fortunes and Estate on Account of their Loyalty. But the Ad of Indemnity being pass'd in England, and a confide sometime after in Scotland, rable Man among the Rebels, faid in my Hearing, at Edenborough, upon the Regu lating the Corporation there, That it made all People equal in the King's Esteem, which at that time gave Occasion to a Melancho

p

r

Ì

C

16

V

hi

hi

ot

be

m

m

ev

ha

of

th

fin

Wa

La

en

10

Oy

e de

e I

ern

lauf

rso

is,a d up

ivil

Parl

Cove

ploy

Etia

dth

or h tud

ch e

, be

tate

: Ad

, and fide

n my

egu

made

hid

ncho

ly Reflexion. We are to understand that fuch Ministers as the King brought over with him, had been Strangers to Mony for fome Years, and they were too intent upon getting it into their Possession, to mind the King's or their Country's Interest. Faction was Rich, and their ill-gotten Pelf broke thro' the Ties of Engagements they were under to their own Party, and found ways of preferring all or most of those who had any share of Power in the late Usurpation. Accordingly some were made Barronets, some Knights, some had Preferments at Court, Offices of Trust and Places of great Profit, while the poor Cavileer made his Suit to no purpose, and having no Cloaths to his Back, contented himself with wearing this Motto about him, Mea Virtute, me involvo, This and other Miscarriages, by late Historians have been imputed to Chancellor Hide's parsimonious and provident Temper, tho' it matters not who did it, that it was done is even apparent in these Days, the Children having fince prov'd disobedient by reason of the ill Treatment of their Fathers. From thence fprung the many Miseries we have fince undergone, from thence that our King was forc'd once more to visit a strange Land, and have his Support from an Alien's Table, from thence, that Plots came

G

ho Ro

n ga f,

ei

va

f

er

hto

Me

uc

he

em

o l

Ma

he

Mo

f E

al

was

nd

ind hou

tian

de ri

ras

in Fashion again, and Sedition, notwithstanding its late Suppression, dar'd openly to fliew its Face; for his Majesty had not fat long upon the Throne, but they were for playing the old Game again, and un der Pretence of removing evil Councellon from him, and advancing his Honour and Interest; an Impeachment was drawn up against the Earl of Clarendon, his chief Mi nister, by the Parliament then sitting, the King was forc'd to part with the best and most faithful Servant that belong'd to him and that noble Lord who knew the Spring and Movements of the Party, and was more conversant in their subtile Device than any Royalist beside, was forc'd to end his Days in another Exile, and in the fame Kingdom where his Mafter and his persecuted Family had before found a ge nerous Entertainment.

This bold Stroke made them pass onto one more insolent and daring, and taking Advantage of the King's Compliance with them, so far, as not to have Courage to skreen his chief Minister, and his only Brother's Father-in-Law; they resolv'd to strike at the Royal Authority, in the Person of the Duke of Tork, after having infinuated to the People, 'That it was upon his Account the great Sickness and the Fire of London broke out. The first, He was he remote Cause of by calling down God's Judment upon the Land, by his Aoffacy to the Church of Rome, when they hemselves occasion'd the Change of his Religion, by making him feek his Bread na foreign Country: And the last, They ave out, He was the immediate Occasion f, when several Incendiaries of their own ernicious Sect were arraign'd, try'd, found uilty at the Old Baily for it, and aftervards executed at Tyhurn, as the Gazets f those times will inform us. These Serentine Suggestions, that were whisper'd nto the Men of Innovations Ears, by the Means of the Earl of Shaftsbury, carry'd uch Force with them, that a Majority of he House of Commons gave Credit to em, and after they had in vain attempted o bring the Duke of Tork, nay, even his Majesty, into a Plot against themselves, by he Means of that infamous Affidavit-Monster, Titus Oates, they fix'd upon a Bill of Exclusion to bring about their unnatuwas a Sting that continually gawl'd them, and the only Yoke (besides Episcopacy and the ten Commandments) they hought incompatiable with their Chritian, or rather Antichristian Liberty. To be rid therefore of this Bondage, no Stone was to be left unturn'd, no Villany unattended. tempted.

not ere un

th.

nly

lon and up

Mi the

and im. ring

Was ices

d to the his ge.

n to ing vith

Broto

er-

h

o V

te

Bu

Le

ed

or

he

no

ho

ng

col

00

Ho

Go

to

the

Co

mo

and

vai

fen

the

the

we

fin

age

wh

par

tempted. The right Heir was to be laid afide, and all Hereditary Claim to be postpon'd, that the Kingdom might be made Elective, and they give an Example to Pofterity, by raifing a King of their own making. The Tool they pitch'd upon for their Choice (I forbear to name him out of Respect to his Father's Memory) had neither Parts sufficient to countermine their Contrivances, nor Interest enough to oppose their Commands, whensoever they should be pleas'd to call him toan Account with a Redde Rationem Villicationis tua; and his Title to the Soveraignty being m better than their own, by the same Power they could create him, they could also a nihilate him, which would be a certain and infallible way to bring the Constitution upon the Foot of a Commonwealth, and put the Exercise of a Despotical and more than Regal Authority once more into their Hands. I speak from my own Experience, being a Member of Parliament when the Bill was brought into the House, and also one of Shaftsbury's Creatures some time, till I perceiv'd what he drove at, under the Notion of confulting Ways and Means to redrefs Grievances and Abuses, that had crept into the Administration, which made me leave him and his Accomplices, and come over to id oft.

ide

Po-

Wn

for

t of

nei-

eir

op.

ney

ınt,

ia;

no

ver

2.

ain

tu-

th,

nd

in-

VI

ia-

he

a.

he

ıg

es

d.

m

to

he Court-party. As Faction had as many Shapes as Proteus, fo it was resolv'd o have more Names, and was call'd Whiggism at this Juncture, in order to coneal its old Practices under a new Title. But the Lords discover'd the old forty one Leer in its Countenance, and how it squined towards intestine Commotions, whereore the Bill was no fooner brought up to heir House from the Commons, but (tho' not without a God-a-mercy to the Bihops) they kick'd it out and fent it packng from whence it came. Since Matters could not be brought to bear to their Purpose, under the Form of Law, it was to be done under a Pretext of maintaining the Gospel. It was whisper'd from one Ear to another, that the King was an Atheift, the Duke an Idoltor, and the whole Court was over-run with Weeds of Immorality and Prophaneness, that Whores and Dogs had abundance of more Observance shewn 'em than his Majesty's Diffenting Subjects, that the Patta Conventa, the Contract between the King and the People was actually broken, that they were absolv'd from their Allegiance, and fince they could expect much worse Usuage from the Successor of the Son of Nebat who made Israel to fin, they ought to extirpate 'em out of the Land of the Living. Such

Such was the Cant among the pretended Brethren, and my good Lord Shaftsbury, for the Edification of the Saints, caus'd two Sermons to be preach'd, the one in the Morning, the other in the Afternoon: The first from the Words of the Apostle, Who will deliver me from this Body of Sin! The last from the Answer of Reboboan to the Congregation of Israel, My least Part [ball be bigger than my Father's Loyns; Now where as my Father did hurthen you with an heavy Toke, I will yet make your Toke heavier: My Father hath chastiz'd you with Rods; but I will correct you with Scorpions. Both which Texts was wrested and tortured to fuch an End, that it was not long before Rumbald, and the rest of his Conspirators form'd that horrid Assassination at the Rye-house, and the Protestant Joyner and the rest of his righteous Fellow-Communicants, arm'd themselves to take off those illustrious Remora's, that hindred the Progress of the wicked Contrivances they had taken in hand, to subvert the Government and Church Establish'd, and over-whelm both with an Inundation of Impiety and Prophaneness. But it pleas'd God to detect these Consultations, and grand cause them to fall into the Pit they had Con digg'd for their Soveraign and his Brother. Chu The Conspirators were exemplarily puni- pir Thed, hed ll t fa d luc OV r'c re ati he DVE

v 1 he y C hd on atio bge Vh v'c

nti WI alle info ft

re he

ed

ry,

he

n:

le,

n?

am ast

35; ith

24-ith ns.

tu-

ng onion

red

anthe

hed,

hed, and the Master Key that unlock'd I their Secrets, and was at the Bottom f all their Designs, fled over to Holland dye there amongst Rebels that had so nuch trespass'd upon the Mildness of the overnment, as not to deserve to be sufr'd to live any longer among 'em here. reason ceas'd to be in Being, while the atron of it ceas'd to shew himself among he Traytors, and their Fear of being difover'd, not the Principles, made the Parv leave off being troublesome, during ne rest of this Monarch's Reign, who y commanding the Laws aginst Sectaries nd Nonconformists to be put in Execuion, and by being against an Act of Tole-ation, which kept them from Caballing ogether at their unlawful Assemblies: which if he had not done, he might have w'd the rest of his Time very Peaceably, nticipated the Fate of his Successor by his wn, and for all that I know, might have allen under the same Dilemma with his infortunate Brother! Who, was a Prince f their Vows and their Hopes, as their Adresses speak, which they presented him at.
he Beginning of his Reign, when he had ranted em free Liberty of Conscience. A had Concession that made them Equal to the church of England, in his Favour, and in pir'd'em with such a Spirit of Ambition,

Dr

CC 5]

V

e

d

OV

te

isco

rot

m.

ing ift a

W

58 that they could not rest, till they wereup permost, and had the Power in their Hand In order to this, they joyn'd with the Pa pifts to take of the Penal Laws and the Test; and to shew that nothing should wanting in them to deftroy the Church enter'd into a Confederacy with those ver Recufants from whose Liturgies the found Fault with our Institutions for by ing deriv'd. But as all Mankind leans wards their own Perswasions, so this u happy Prince, not to be an Exception to general Rule, was indulgent to his own and thinking it enough, and as much they pretended to defire, that they ha the true Exercise of their Religion, und the Enjoyment of the Royal Protection step'd a little aside from the Practice of h Ancestors, and admitted some few of the Romish Communion amongst his Prop stant Domesticks, as the Earl of Peterh rough, and others that ferv'd him who The Whigs were the fir Duke of York. that took Alarm at these Proceedings, and Love tho' they had all they ask'd for, in a Tole ng A ration granted 'em by their Sovereign urle Indulgence, to shew they had not so much vher as they hop'd for, they cry'd out upon the Infringements of the Law, when accorded to ing to their Sense and Acceptation, no State of the state had been violated, had they been producce ferred hers ads

th

db

rch

7en

he bo

1 to

un

to

W

ha

ha

nde

tion

fh

fth

rote

erbo

vha

fire

, and

Cole

ign

nuch

red in the Roman Catholicks stead, tho' were under the same Predicament as Places of Trust and Preferment with Papifts, the same Laws that excluded e, excluding both. The Duke of Monouth was still living, though under Exin Holland, and one who had been in onspiracies against his Father, was to be couraged to rife up in Rebellion against 'Twas not thought conveni-King. t at that Juncture to lay the Stress their Grievances upon his Majesty's your to Popish Diffenters, lest he might equally thought blameable for what he d granted to them. They had more ovoking Pretences to lay hold of, the te King was poison'd, was their daily iscourse, and who should do it but his tother, who was the next to succeed im. Besides, he and his Troops were riing away with Liberty and Property, as ift as their Legs could carry them, and was against Magna Charta, Hengham, dovendan and Plonden to keep up a standng Army, tho' he pay'd all out of his own urle, without one Pennyworth of Taxes, the when these very Men would have consenord ed to one, nay, what is more, were ear-Sta left for it at the Peoples Expence, in his pre pucceffor's Days: Upon this, and some ohers Perswasions, who look'd upon him ft fe

offen

u

th

in

in

is d lb

en

tra

rd

fta

igh

an

it (

ort

dge

ep

e F

ille,

arat

as an Obstacle to their ambitious Design the poor deluded Duke of Monmouth and himself, while the same Hands that su nish'd him with Ammunition and Stor in Holland, gave Notice of every Motion and what Station his Ships were to take not fo much out of Kindness to his Mai fty as themselves, having then Matters the same Nature upon their Hands, h intended to be better concerted. his Pretentions to the Crown were fall his Declaration barbarous, and his Crin unnatural, so he met with the same Fa he was unhappily deferving of, and h Rebellion being crush'd before it wasg to a Head, the Duke was taken Prisone and executed as in Causes of Out-lawn for High Treason, with several more the Conspirators. At which the Dissen blers address'd his Majesty again with bundance of feeming Joy, for their ow The King, who in h Disappointments. own Temper was the best of Princes, wa told by the Priefts, by whom he fuffer himself to be too much directed, That h had nothing to fear after this Defeat; the he ought lay hold on this Opportunity establish their Religion, and bring us un der the See of Rome again; and he gave fuch implicite Faith to his Confessor and the rest about him, that he introduc'd the function take

/Iai

ers

, bu

ut a fall

rin Fat

dl

is go

WI

re

Ten

th

OW n hi

Wa

Fer'

at h

tha

tyto

s un

gave

and

d th

firl

It into the Council, who gave fuch an fence to several Protestant Peers of that off Honourable Affembly, as to make em fling up their Places and leave the ourt, which were fill'd by Gentlemen their own Communion. The Council ing thus purg'd of the Pillars that fuprted the Church, 'twill not be difficult imagine that the Refult of it for the fure, would in no wife be for its Advane. Accordingly a High Commission s given out in Relation to Ecclesiastical fairs. Magdalene Colledge in Oxford, is made a Seminary for Popish Priests d Jesuits, and the Bishops imprison'd. by the Advice of the Earl of Sunderland, en Secrerary of State, who, Judas like, tray'd his Master with a Kiss, and venrd his own Damnation, by turning Astate from the true Religion, that he ight ruine his Prince for being of the fc. A States-man finish'd in Infideliand Hypocrifie, without Honesty, witht Gratitude, without any thing Praiseorthy, but a deep Infight into the Knowdge of the most refin'd Politicks. Every ep that was made at the English Court, as by his Means communicated to that of e Hazne, and tho' the Marquess of Albaille, gave timely Notice of the Dutch Prearations to invade us; the King was fo lull'd

E

he

he dh

lea

afi or

ede

ift

itu

ut

ro

thu

age

ab.

The

er,

he

lan

Cros

esta 113

Iull'd asleep by this Syren of a Minis that they were ready to fet Sail, before Majesty thought of drawing his For together to receive them. My Regim was then in Kent, and quarter'd at Can bury, Deal, Feversham, and the Places jacent, and I had no Orders to march three Days after the News was brow the Enemy was landed at Torbey, wh in my Opinion was a great Mistake; had our Regular Forces been dispos'dt Way, as our Envoy at the Hague, by intercepted Letters, had got Advice their Defigns directed, and gave Notice Sunderland, if they had miscarry'd in the Attempts, and been forc'd to put to again, Re in facta. But Providence for der'd it, that this honest Secretary of St preferr'd the Good of his Country, bei his Allegience to his King, and had for par'd his Conscience for the Publick that he did not make known the Purp ofthose Letters to his Majesty before it w too late, and the Prince of Orange had ken Possession of Exeter. The Ecclesian cal Commission had been abolish'd, depriv'd Members of Magdalen Colle had been restor'd, and the Bishops releas at the Rumour of this Invasion, but the did not abate the the Resentments of

iniA

ore

For gime

cesa

on,

wh

e;i dt

tice

n th tos for

Sta

befo

o p

k

urpo

it w adi

eople, tho' it took from the Grievances of e Subject, and they look'd upon it as an At of Justice done out of mere Necessity, nd the Exigence of the Times, not out any voluntary Impulse of the King's isposition: Wherefore they joyn'd his lighness of Orange's Forces on all sides. iro' the Encouragement of having a Free arliament, &c. in that Prince's Declation, Whigg and Tory were once in neir Lives of the same side, tho' not with e fame Intentions. The Church-Men ther'd to the Prince, in Hopes by his eans to fettle themselves upon the same asis of Authority, which was allow'd or their undoubted Right in the preedent Reign, and that all Male-admiistrations should be redress'd for the iture, were they of what Nature soever. ut the Dissenters had a far more different rospect in View, they joyn'd with the thurch to be enabled to get the Advanage over her, and render themselves caable of obtaining Means to deftroy her. They knew that their Saviour and Delivethey knew that their Saviour and Delived, ther, would yield to the Importunities of he good People, though he made not this he less langerous Expedition for the fake of the lattice Crown, but the Preservation of the Proestant Religion, they were satisfy'd that his Education was in the Calvinistical is Education was in the Calvinistical

C

for

he

he

in wii

wh

nig

t V

eri

tic

qu

lra

ion

nd

he

ou

of t

his

B

ind

who

Prin

une

n C

had

heve

Perswasion, and question'd not but h would have a more than ordinary Refpe for the Principles he had been bred up the Practice of; they were in hopes the Father's Part in him would have had fu an Ascendant over his Mother's, that m one Virtue belonging to the Stuarts, would thew that he deriv'd his Descent from them, and that he would fuffer no other Religion to be uppermost, but such bore the Resemblance of his own. Th push'd 'em forward to give out, Th King James the Second had forfeited the Crown, and at last made the Throne that unfortunate Monarch be declar'd Va cant. Not but feveral worthy Member were of the fame Opinion, and out Gratitude to their Deliverer, were h prefenting him with the Imperial Da dem; but as I have intimated before for quite different Ends, so that between Defertion and Abdication down fell that Prince's Authority, that his eldest Daugh ter, Nephew and Son-in-law might be invested with it, while the late King and his afflicted Family, after unheard of Indignities offer'd him by his own Sub jects, was oblig'd once more to be Penfience oners to the French-Court. The Executive in tive Power was in King William; and lave the first thing that fell heavy upon the ment Church pet

pi

th

fud

no

oul

TO

the

h a

Th

Th

l th

eo

Va ber

t'd

fo

Dia

fore

veen

irch

Church, which was the greatest of her Misfortunes, was the unhappy Divisions among her own Sons. An Oath was to be taken to heir new Elected Majesties, by all Persons n Offices and Employments whatfoever. within fuch a limited Time; and no one, whether Clergy-man, or Lay-man, from the highest to the lowest? Degree that refus'd t was not to be continued in any Place, Preerment, or Trust. Several of the Ecclesiatical Order, as well as the Civil, were queamish; among the former, Dr. Sherock, Master of the Temple, but a Penny. ram or two of Bishop Overal's Oil of Evaon having been administred to him, that, nd the Deanery of St. Paul's, drove down he Bone that stuck in his Throat, and he ould have fwallowed half a hundred more of the same Nature when his Hand was in, his made his Way fo glibly.

But those who had been the Ornaments and Lights of the Church; the Majority of whom for their Non-compliance with their whom for their Non-compliance with their light princes Commands, against the sacred Inunctions of their God, were called, The Gold-in Candlesticks, were now set at nought, and had in no more Estimation, than if they had never undergone Imprisonment for Conscience sake. They are Headstrong Prelates, said the miscreant Sons of Belial, or they might have dissembled with King James's Governthement as medial advised him made him Prothe ment, as we did, adris'd him, made him Pro-

miles

2c

w an'e

W

do

fti

kr

it,

in

CI

the

N

mo if vir

on fuf

thi

enc

int

oft

Ap

gli

non mit

Ho

mu

con

Cu!

mises of Life and Fortune, done whatever he bid 'em, and yet left him in the Lurch, like a great many others of the same Coat. But they are scrupulous, and much Good may their Scruples do em. These were the Meek, Pious and Learn. ed Dr. Sancroft, Lord Archbishop of Canter. bury, the Seraphick Dr. Ken, Bishop of Bath and Wells, the Evangelical Dr. Turner, Bishop of Ely, the Vigilant Dr. Lake, Bishop of Chichester, the Resolute and Undaunted Dr. White, Bishop of Peterborough, the Unchangeable Dr. Lloyd, Bishop of Norwith, and the Irreproachable Dr. Frampton, Bishop of Worcester, with Dr. Hicks, Dean of Wor. cefter , Dr. Fitzwilliams , Prebendary of Windfor, and many others of leffer Note and Distinction. That these differ'd in Opinions from the rest of their Brethren, was of great Detriment to the Church, fince no one but will allow fuch valuable Names would have kept her from losing that Esteem she has got rid of by the Means of fome of their Successors. It is neither civil nor fafe to point out who they are, but a Man may affirm without Offence to good Manners or Truth, had all the Brethren that remain'd undepriv'd, shar'd half the Zeal of these bright Luminaries of Faith and Sincerity, we had not been to feek at this Day, for the farther Security of the Protestant Religion, as establish'd by Act of Parliament. But the Government was pleas'd to make d

at

u-

do

n-

er.

th

Bi-

op

ed

n.

ch,

юр

or-

of

ote

in

en, ce

nes

E-

of

vil

t a

bod

hat

eal

inay,

Re-

ent.

ake

em

em Delinquents, and we are not to interfer with their August Deliberations, tho' had they been continued in their Bishopricks and Benefices, and a Dispensation allow'd 'em for fome time longer, before they were wholly remov'd, to try their Behaviour in, doubtless it would have been found as Chriftian and Exemplary in Office, as it has been known to be Inoffensive and Harmless out of it, nay, more, fince the Necessity and pinching Circumstances of some of the inferiour Clergy, have made 'em have Recourse to their Pens to get Money, by justifying their Non-concurrence with their Brethren, as more than few have done of late Years; when if they had not been ejected from their Livings, no Argument by way of Contradiction had been brought to amuse the Vulgar, or suspend the good Opinion they conceived of this or that Perswasive to an implicit Obedience. I would not here be mistaken, or call'd into Question, for suspecting the Legality of the Government set over us by God's own Appointment; I am neither fo bad an English Man as to entertain a single Thought contrary to the Good of the Constitution now in being, nor so presumptuous to commit that Thought to the Publick, if I did : However, to go on with my Discourse, I must ask-Leave to repeat an old Story that comes within the Sphere of my own particular Knowledge, and may not feem much · from

to ni

R

at

fo

ar

SI

A

N

ar

le

W

fe!

A

to

th

pt Pr

hi

A

ni

th

Ti

toi

W

br

T

as

At

an

en

from the Purpose of the foregoing Relation, In Oliver's Days, a certain honest Country Parson, who had fall'n under the Statute of Sequestration, was conven'd before the Council for preaching to a felect Congregation without a License, and ask'd his Reafons for fo doing. He told his Red-Nos'd Highness, he would fetch them-presently, they were but at the Stair's Head, and in he came with his Wife and Children in his Hand, and offer'd to leave them with the Usurper and his Council, who were able to keep 'em without Preaching for their daily Bread, fince it was not in his Power to do Come, come, Friend, faid Oliver, this is no Place to be jocofe in : Will you give me your Word to offend no more in this Nature, or you must away to Prison? Which he did with much ado; but as he was going away mutter'd out to himself, If I must keep my Word, the Commonwealth shall dearly pay for it. Please your Highness, cry'd one of the fanctify'd Sinners, at the Board, He threatens to do us a Mischief. With that he was call'd back again, and ask'd, What it was he fo mifchievously mumbled out by himself? Nothing but the Commonwealth should pay dearly for bu being silenc'd. How, Sirrah, reply'd the Man that never paid his Landlord for the Rent of his Palace, Sure you won't be as good as you Word. Yes, but I will, reply'd Orthodox, for · I must get Bread for my Family, and defist 11.

y

of

he

a-

a-

ly,

he

his

he

to

ily

do

s is

OUT

you ith

ut.

ord, tt.

Eti.

s to

ll'd

mi[-

bing

r bis

Man

lent

your s, for lefigi

to turn Quack-Doctor, and if one Pill does not do more Harm than ten Texts, Goodnight to my Understanding, I have no Right to Divination. The Usurper smil'd at his Answer, gave him a License to preach, fo as he meddl'd not with State-Affairs, and and order'd him a hundred Pounds for the Sublistance of himself and Family. Application comes naturally enough to the Non-jurors of these Days, and to those that are over and above preffing upon them, I leave it. To return to the Methods that were taken by the Party to Elbow themselves into the Government under this King's Administration: It may not be improper to lay down for unquestionable Authority, that Sunderland, tho' he did not appear as a publick Minister of State, because of the Prejudice the Church had conceiv'd against him, by reason of his Treachery, manag'd Affairs behind the Curtain from the beginning, and in order to ingratiate himself with the Diffenters, who might be faid to love the Treason, while they could not hate the Traytor, being of their own Complexion, made what Interest he could with his Majesty to bring 'em into Credit and Esteem at Court. The Tolleration-Bill was pass'd into an Act, as previous to their Advancement, several Attainders and Outlawries were revers'd, and they could ask nothing that was denied 'em, thro' that noble Peer's Intercession. The Bi-

ha

G

at

ny

an

th

jui

Sea

to

Bu

lan

mi

the

Blo

vir

fes

wl

we

fho

Re

thi

Co

La

me

Co

VO

tha

app

the

on vet

Ch

Bishopricks that had been declar'd Vacant, were fill'd up with Men of Moderation, for now that Name was in Fashion, and the Primate of England was supposed to be their Patron and Protector, infomuch, that Mr. Tho. Firmin, a known Socinian and Diffenter, was frequently feen fitting with him in his Coach, and more often at his Table. His Closet was open to their Confultations; and things were fo manag'd while he continued Head of the Church, that scarce a Deanery or Archdeaconry was given away, but by Recommendation to the Throne and Suffragan Bilhop, it fell into fuch a Hand as wish'd well to Comprehension. This was done in order to get a Majority in the lower House of Convocation, and model 'em so that in Cafe a Union should be recommended once more between the Church and the Diffenters, that House might be no longer a Stumbling-block to the Saints, but comply with them in their Ceremonies, their Religion, nay even their Benefices upon a fitting Occa-To keep the Church Establish'd in a good Humour, the Marquess of H----, and the D— of L— prefided fuccessively in the Council; for those of the other Interest, had render'd 'em jealous of each other, to be at one and the same time at the Board together; neither was it for their Service it should; for either of them had been a Counterpoise for the Earl of Sunderland had had the Benefit of the King's Ear. The Great Seal was manag'd by Commission, till at last a certain Gentleman, who had many more Skilful in the Law, whose Age and Experience might have recommended them to the Royal Favour before himself. jump'd over all their Heads into the first Seat of Justice. 'Twas now Matters began to shew themselves more openly, and the Bufiness of the Church being done in Scotland, Episcopacy suppress'd, Lay-elders admitted into the Choirs and Cathedrals, and the poor Glencoe Men massacred in cold Blood for no Offence, unless it was for receiving fuch barbarous Guests into their Houfes and Homes, and by, no one dare fay, 'Twas high Time, our whose Command. well-natur'd Brethren faid, the Tables should be turn'd upon us here in England. Removal upon Removal, gave us Caufe to think we should have no Friends left at Court in a little Time. Lampoon upon Lampoon accosted the Members of Parliament that had any Interest in the House of Commons, and it was almost Criminal to vote against the Encroachments of a Power that prey'd upon the Publick Treasury, misapply'd the Funds, and enrich'd itself by the Necessities of the People. Reformation was the Pretence of these Depredations, yet after all these Changes and Places in the Church and State, so far were the three Nations oit

1(

a-

0:

as h,

as

ad

or

e-

an

d

in

le

in

ce

n-

n.

th

n,

a-

1a

nd

in

A,

to

and

ad

tions from their promis'd and expected Reformation, that they grew daily worse and op worse, and sickning upon the Physicians ese Hands, fell at last into a kind of Libertinism tio and Prophaneness. These pretended Resor-ofe mers indeed, made a thorough Resormation in our Purses, but never endeavour'd bli to procure it either in Church or Common-gri wealth, but rather crucify'd both with dr St. Peter's Crucifixion, the Heels upwards spa and the Head downwards. For as for the one, tho' they cast out the unclean Spiritof In, Popery, yet they brought in not seven (as the the Gospel speaketh) but rather seventy of the unclean Spirits more wicked than the T former. So that this Island was a Panthe on, a Temple for all Gods and Religions the Of which Reformation-Men we may truly seed fay with the Author of the History of Indepency, (Part 1 p. 140.) These are the diagram with Hananiah brake the wooden Tollar. that with Hananiah brake the wooden You ur a from our Neck, (Jer. 28. 13.) and put on a sque Yoak of Iron; free us from a little Ship-mon ace thrice in an Age, and impose as much at one me for a Monthly Tax, quit us of the Monopolin ries of Tobacco, and set up Excise upon Bread and he S. Beer. The first easeth the wanton, riotous, rid the Man, and the latter grindeth the Needy and ajest Poor. Tet these are thy Gods, O London ough these are the Idol Calves the People have set a fince and do worship: These be the Molochs to whom very as sacrifice. Our Fleets, our Treasures, ou ant I Troop le Poops, nay even that very Liberty and nd operty they gave 'emselves out to be such ans esenders of, were altogether at their Defm stion, till it pleas'd God a Parliament was for ofen, which was neither over aw'd or o-na r-numbred from making Inquest into m'd blick Miscarriages. The King of Spain's gring Indisposition grew upon him more with d more, so that his Recovery was wholly ards spair'd of, which made the French King the ok about him, in Relation to the Succeiited in, that in all likelihood would devolve (as the House of Austria, especially if he the Time of his Majesty's Decease. This ob-the 'dhim to make some Overtures for a Peace th Spain separately; but those not taking feet with the Spaniards, who were too ateful to Desert the Confederacy, after it the dlaid such Obligations upon em, Montrol ur d' Calliere, the French Agent at the one ague, had Orders to offer Conditions of one ace to all the Potentates that had taken one ms against his Master. The Plenipoten-polit ries arriv'd, and the Preliminaries settled. l an he Short-liv'd Peace was concluded at last rich the Palace of Reswick, and his Gallick and ajesty had the Satisfaction to see, that don ough all the Ministers of the Protestant fet a inces in Europe were present at Reswick, whom very little Care was taken of the Prote-, ou ant Interest, that the fourth Article would foon coop

7

hy

m

u

Pa

0 ar

to

, 1

ne

th

foon Embroil their Affairs again with any other Accident. And yet this very table ticle was fign'd and fubscrib'd to, by tab Ministers of King William, who wast avow'd Protector of the Protestant Cau and had taken fuch Pains to deliver us the fake of the Protestant Religion. T Peace was fworn to on all fides to be Pen tual, and Embaffies were exchang'd w France, in order to keep up a Corresponding dence between the two Kings. Though cannot pass by this Observation, The K. W. to shew his great Love to the B glish Nation, would pitch upon no oth than a Foreigner to be his Ambassadors was traordinary, either because England had at Gentlemen of Sense, Wit, Quality, and A dress enough to carry on the Negotiationan or because this Gentleman had concert some Affairs between the Marshal de B flers and himself, that were not to be comes, municated to another Hand. Whater far the Reason was, never was such a Publish Entry made as then, the Magnificence his Coaches and Liveries, the Number his led Horses, with each a Groom tologaster it, and the noble Appearance of English Gentlemen that attended him to Publick Audience, and composed his Reyulinue, was so surprizing, that France is never seen the like in any Age before. Twist Success of this noble Peer's Negoriations Districtions Success of this noble Peer's Negotiations Dis

usf

T

Pen

The B

by able Question, Whether the Advantavast the English Nation gain'd by it, would Can by wife answer the Expence of it: How-, he return'd home, after having spent mmense Sum, doubtless for our Good, ugh we ought to thank him if we knew articulars) got the Name of a Gentle-of Address and Greatness of Spirit, and an Indelible Reproach upon the English the French Nation, who gave out in ick, that we should be forc'd to send oth to Holland for another Ambassador, we had none among our selves capable had at Employment. We are not to imand A, for Civility's fake, but that this Gentiation an defray'd his own Charges; he was he Bank of Amsterdam to answer those Ex-be co es, if they had stood him in fourscore hater fand Pounds, as had been reported, out hater fand Pounds, as had been reported, out his English Acquisitions; for the King been very liberal to him, (though he appily miss'd of the Prncipality of tolo les) in his Donations, and he had that dom and Fore-sight, to turn all his at of the Forseited Estates into Ready his key. But some People will not hold roce have be it never so dangerous and livised, and give out the Nation paid all bisbursements, and Bills were drawn the Treasury for that Purpose; though the the

The History of Faction, &c. the Reader must pardon me, if I leave a mute Point, and declare that I am Old, and he's too Rich for me to run Risque of a Premunire on that Account. the part of the King of France, came of as Ambassador Extraordinary, the Co de Tallard (now Marshal of France, and Majesty's Prisoner of War at Nottingh who was no fooner arriv'd, but the h who were then declining in the Houle Commons, and who flood in need of fices to support themselves, gave out, he brought over vast Sums in Bills and cie, to distribute among the Antagon which were fuch Members as were in Church's Interest, for all such as were citous for its Welfare and Security, would not blindly submit to their nents, and run Headlong towards the K dom's Impoverishment, in leaving all the to the Discretion of the Ministry, were led Church-Papists, Jacobites, and Fre Pensioners. This was given out in a cer printed Ballad, faid to be written by a tain Club of Great Men, which was held not far from the King's Head Ta in Holbourn, wherein all that shew'd Concern for the Legal Constitution, or the Courage to stem the Tide of the ftry, which was then rowling in upor were branded with Infamy. Such a be the Edward Seymour, Sir Christopher Muss

m

n.

h gh

Tai

ke

efs

7 1 ir I

5 01

ese

Robert Harley, Sir Bartholomew Shore, Harcourt (now Sir Simon) &c. The b took the Hint, for they had learn'd r Cue to a Tittle, and gave it out for pel in an Instant, nay, the Story was imy'd, and gather'd like a Snow-ball, as it pulh'd forward, there were not wanfuch as would enter into Particulars, us, That this very Distribution was de at an Appointment at Cards, nam'd the House, which was a certain Great as, who bore a part in the Bribery with n, pointed out the Game they play'd at, would take their Oaths as to the very n, the Count's Losings or Gifts, which all one in their Language, were paid in; printed Papers were dispers'd down he respective Countries, Cities and Boghs at the Party's Charge, and their Efaries in every Place were order'd to ke use of them to the Disadvantage of Loyal Gentlemen, who represented m only to preferve them from the Mifefs that threatn'd 'em. Liberty and Prowas the tempting Morsel they baited r Hook with, though Arbitrary Power ew'd son the Point of it, and Innovations in the N efe were the Measures they took to preethe People for a new Parliament, for began to be uneasie, and too boisterous Muss them to rule; wherefore there must be fome rc.

veit

am

run

unt.

ne or

e Co

and

ingh

he Pr

-Ioul

of

out,

ands

agon

e in

verel

ity,

neir

he K

all th

were

Fre

a cer

by a wast

d Tan

ip h

it,

o HI

nt

di

ni

nu

an

he

sto

se d er f

Er fup

ft

re f ler mpe ule (

eref

nce.

fome Pretence or other to lay 'em afide,a this of Corruption feem'd fo plaufible, the nothing could possibly hinder it from taking Effect, tho' it may be observ'd here, the no one amongst them all had prevailed Votes in his Favour, for taking 60000 Secret Service-money out of the Treasury, batter down the Walls of the Church with and worm themselves into the whole M nagement of a Kingdom they had neith Abilities nor Honesty enough to sit at a Helm of. Witness the Partition-Tra carry'd on and brought to a Conclusion their Advice and Conduct; a Treaty in its Circumstances more fatal to us and Allies, than a down-right Declaration War, and that could not but be attended the worst Consequences: The French Ki fore-faw the Event of it, before he oppos it, and was well affur'd that without for Provocation or other, which ought to be the highest Nature, the King of Sp would leave the Succession in the Imper He therefore gave Orders to Ministers at London and the Hague, to Ministers at London and the Hague, too oin ter into this Negotiation, well knowing the if it should take Effect, the Spaniards, wig's are the most jealous People in the World of the losing their Prerogatives, would resent it he I the last Degree. Divide & Impera, was the total of the last Degree. Maxim of Truth and Authority, Time onton of Mind, and it was next to a Certain ke of kin

th 'df

000 ry,

would have its usual Effects now. The perour would be disgusted at it, the En-h and Dutch would lose a Confederate it, and the whole Knot of those Powers o had enter'd into a League Offensive Defensive against his farther Encroach-nts upon the Liberties of Europe, would mis upon the Liberties of Europe, would will dissolve by this Artifice of State, and the miards who never consulted their Interest much as their Revenge, would find some at the ans or other to overthrow the Designs he Treaty, by calling one of his Grandsto sto sit upon the Throne, after the Design sto sit upon the Throne, after the Design series of their King; which in a sew Months and the result of the story of the series of the se h Ki is stood fair enough for his Family; they pposse se sensible the English and Dutch were the Engagements quite opposite of their be in the Engagements quite opposite of their obe in the per and Establishment, and for that special s an el

ai

f

00 nd aff

sa

1 itt

ella

ngr

anc

ad

lian

hat

ifit.

age

nd i

gair

hem

ition

hat 1

uch

af

his Grandson to accept it without any So ple; and by the means of our wife Minis was arriv'd as near the Universal Mon chy, as if Count Tallara had been a scan ing his Bags of Pistoles, even among that gave out that others had receiv'd' As the Consequences of this Treaty was ready known, fo it was but Equitable to Enquiry should be made after the Caufe it, as became good Patriots, with wh the Libertes of the People, and every this elfe that was valuable was intrusted. Parliament took the Business in hand. A after mature Deliberations, which became to August a Body, voted an Impeachm against the Authors of it. This put 'em to fuch a Consternation, that nothing on be like it; they were fure of the King, he had given his Consent to the faid It ty, were not without an Interest among those of their own Body, and had not to do but to render those that voted the peachment odious, and blacken 'em tot When the Word was give Commons. and all their Mercenary Scribes gave the Appearance; the Devil was to be rais'd support his own Cause, and set his Ha to a certain Remonstrance or Defamato Libel directed to the House of Commo by fubscribing Legion at the Bottom of But this would not do their Business, the worthy Gentlemen receiv'd it with

7 Sq

inif

/Ion

Catt

g

Was

le t

uses

who

thi

T A

ecar

hme

emi

COL

g, Tr

non

othi

hel

tot

giv e th s'd

Ha

empt that was due to it, without any Reard to the two hundred thousand Devils fleffer Note, which was given out should ack it. His Diabolical Eminence being thus isappointed, it was wholly necessary they hould make a fecond Attempt, and out ame a Rude Address from Maidstone, in ent, brought up by five as Ignorant and orward Mellengers as were ever fent on a ool's Errand fince the Creation; Mr. C ----per the Doughty Champion, that fights Duels by Indictments at Hicks's Hall, and nd the Affizes, was the Chief of this Emaffy, who had no fooner told his Tale, but sa Caution for him to bring more Brains Town with him for the future, was comitted to the Gate-house, with the rest of his ellow-travellers, to have their Pictures grav'd in the same Mettle as their Countemees were made of. The Commitment ade 'em grow famous, as the Burning of diana's Temple made the pitiful Fellow at did it talk'd of, and they did not want istants of all Sorts and Degrees, to encouage them to persevere in their Impudence, nd to continue to exasperate the Country gainst their Representatives for denying hem Leave to affront them by way of Peition. Nor had they any Reason to think hat the Court would discountenance 'em in the court would discountenance 'em in the court who is a sworn Servant to the Crown, was order'd der'd to write a Poem in their Commenda tion, call'd, The Kentish Worthies: Which he durft not have done, without Encourage The ment, or Order from his Superiours. Kentish Worthies had no sooner seen the Light, but out came The History of the Ken tish Petition, suppos'd to be written by Daniel de Foe; and Jura Populi Anglicani two Pamphlets that shew'd the Fore-head of the Party to the utmost Demensions, and made appear, that those who have no h flice have no Shame. To add to these Pape Vindications, and allow of the Subject Right of Petitioning (I should have fai Scandalizing) the chief Citizens of London among whom some of those Worthy Gentle men that had fitten in the Chair, invite em to a noble Entertainment at Merce Hall, where there was nothing wantingt Thew their Respects to them, and the Ca of Sedition they were carrying on; no, not much as fome of the Nobility themselves give a Stamp of Authority to what had be done contrary to all Law, good Manners, And now the Day came, whe Prudence. those who had been impeach'd by the Con mons, were to take their Trials. To which end Preparation had been made in We minster hall, and the several Noble Person that lay under the Imputation of being Cr minals, appear'd accordingly. When not from the Commons attending, pursuant cha the voi

he

Pa bo hi he

Wi he by

he no he

Cre 000 Car

ns hat

lad ion

he vhi

enc her

mp elv

oar ets

N

he Order of their House, they were discharged from any further Profecution, tho' the Commons were of another Opinion, and voted, That no Right had been done 'em, &c.

da-

ich

ge The

the

Cen-

ani, head

and

F

per

· fair

uanti

This Profecution thus happily over, as the Party gave out, tho' the Profecutors (as above) did not think fo, they thought nohing could hurt them for the future. But he Commons had another Game to play with them yet before they would fling up he Cards, and having been dissolv'd twice, by their Perswasions, were resolutely bent he third time of their being call'd to sit, to inquire into publick Mismanagements. All heir Endeavours by their Emissaries and creatures in the Country, all their Lam-ents soons and Invectives, their Black Lists, their with Cursory Remarks, their pretended Vindicatierce mof certain Gentlemen, among which was ngt hat of the Earl of Rochester in particular, Can had no other Effects than the new Commisnot lions of the Peace, which they had advis'd vest the King to give out by recalling the old;
I be which was to add to the Peoples Abhorers, ence of em, and confirm the very Choice whe hey had made. Their Libels contain'd fuch commpudent Falshoods in 'em, as gave themwhice elves the Lye, without having any Recourse West oany Proofs to convict 'em; and their new ersof Justices of Peace advanc'd from lowing Criortunes and lower Characters, gave such not National Offence, that even those Counff al

hey

he Va

es f 1

wh

nt

nu

y

nto

vol

he

ial

ub rie

on

ers tto

S V

arr

la

end

oel

o b

vit

o fi

ein

our ion

on

ties and Corporations, that had been us' to fend up Members of moderate Principle (as they term the Phanaticks of those Days) to represent 'em, now made a quite diffe rent Choice, and had Recourse to the Church to supply them with Men of Abi lities, Truth and Integrity. Matters this carry'd against 'em, and the Detachments Queries they had fent abroad to intercent the Enemies Votes, being too weak to com up to their Injunctions. The King was per Iwaded to recommend Union from the Throne between the two Parties, who he did very Pathetically, and in fuch Term as could not but be received with Approba tion and Applause from all Parties. Butth Delign and the Stile had their different A ceptations, and tho' the prevailing Party which was that of the Church, could m but have a just Difference for the Poignan cy of Thought, the Vivacity of Expression and the Force of Persuasion his Majesty's Speech carry'd with it, yet they knew that Opportunities were not to be neglected, and fince they had it in their Power to be ferviceable to the Nation in Despight of its & nemies, they thought themselves oblig'd by the Ties of Conscience, and the Trust that was repos'd in them by their feveral Electors, to render 'em such an Account of their Proceedings, that they might know ur how the Money had been employ'd, which they pla

15'd

iffe

the

Abi

hus

it of

cept

OMe

per the

hich

rm;

oba

the

Ac

rty,

not nan ion,

ty's that and

ig'd

hey

hey freely contributed to, for the Use of he Publick. Some Persons of considerable Names, had made fuch use of the Advantaes they had to enrich themselves in Places f Truft, as to rob the Publick of vaft Sums. which had all along made the Funds deficint in this King's Reign, which by how nuch it was of pernicious Consequences, y fo much ought the more to be enquir'd nto. Accordingly before this Assembly would enter into Consultations to raise more lony, they prudently advis'd together how he last had been spent; and having undeiable Proofs from the Commissioners of the ublick Accounts of Embezelment, and rievous Misdemeanors, by which the Naor had been highly injur'd, they gave Orers that Inquest should be made, and the swere suppos'd to be guilty of these Misarriages. The Party upon this took the larm, as before, and to obviate this in-ended Profecution, made a Discharge, ochorn like, of all their Artillery, in order fer o bully 'em, and let fly France and Spain's E with all the stink Pots of Lists and Queries, o suffocate 'em all at once; but these not rust eing of sufficient Strength, they had re-eral ourse to their old Method of Dissimula-t of ion, and betook themselves to Stratagem now surprize and the Credit of the King. hich Mob had been fufficiently terrify'd thro'

ag

he

ho

th

e f

ad

he

Cra

elv

he

ffe

sb

Cor

ye he

hei

Peo

hey

vho

inc

nd

ot

y E

T

abl

Dir'

vere

Ind

breh

han

tion

were

nov

the Apprehension of Popery and wooden Shoet and were to be comforted again with the Sove. raign Remedy these State-Quacks had for all Ail. ings call'd the King: The King was to be entry. fted with a standing Army, and what not, to keep the Bugbears of Popery and Slavery from them; the King was to do what he faw fit in his own Eyes towards their Preservation, the Kim was to have the Liberty of the Subject in his own Hands, as being best able to protect 'em, and al their Rights and Immunities should be invested in the Soveraign Authority. But the Parliament who had given him that Authority under co. tain Restrictions would not put it in his Power to abuse it; and though they knew him to be good Prince, and one that had been a great Stick ler against Tyrannical and Arbitrary Poweri others, they could not be affur'd that he would not change his Temperament of Mind and Be haviour, when he was arriv'd at that Pinacled Authority himself. Besides, his Majesty was not Immortal, and some other after him in the Course of Succession might be of a more untoward Genius, and abuse those Concessions of the People, and turn the Compliment they maded submitting their Privileges to his Disposal, to the Peoples Disadvantage. This Article being render'd ineffectual, they fell to weeping like Crocodiles over the Mischiefs they had done and were to do. They lamented in most pathecick Strains, the Unhappiness of our Condition, and aggravate the Misfortune of being divided among ourselves, which gave such a fatal Damp to the Salutary Influence of the King's most efficacious and all-healing Genius. They told us that this was no Crim Time for Retrospections and Enquiries into Pec- of, the cadillo's, snadvertencies, Slips and slight Misma- to Conagements, be fa

Oes!

Ve.

Ail:

m.

to

On his

ing

DWI

d all Itel

nent

cer-Wet,

be a ick erin

ould Be-led

s not

the

into-

f the

deof 1, to being like

done

athe-

agements, and proclaim'd all those Enemies to he King, and Betrayers of their Country, who hought fit to proceed against 'em, at a Time then their whole Study and Contrivance should etaken up in disappointing the Measures that ad been concerted between France and Spain for he Universal Monarchy. By which Piece of traft, they thought they had fecur'd to themelves Impunity for past Misdemeanors, or laid he Odium of those Facts upon those who should ffer to call 'em to Account, by Reproaching 'em s being Enemies to the Government and in a Conspiracy against the Liberty of Europe; and yeither way to have destroy'd their Credit with he People. As an Addition to this Artifice of heirs while they endeavour'd to dispose the People to be govern'd absolutely by the King. hey prepar'd and advis'd the King to be directed sholly by themselves, as the only Friends he had, ince it was thro' the Malignity of the Jacobites nd Tories (for all had those Names that were ot posses'd of their Natures) that all his mighy Designs miscarry'd.

Thus far the Thread of their Plot was reafoably fine spun, but a coarser Twist was repir'd for vulgar Use. These Amuzements vere calculated for the Meridian of unpolish'd Inderstandings, and the Mobs uncultivated Apprehensions, stood in need of broader Signs ition, than fly Innuendo's and subtile malicious Insinuwided ations. Matters of Fact, and Letters at length were to be laid before 'em, that they might mus and know who the dangerous Men, and what their crimes were, and those they never stood in want of Pecof, thro' the Diligence of the Party, who spar'd issand to Cost to point out to them who were to nents, be sacrific'd. But neither this unheard of as of

fe

fe

or hi

Ju

pr

C

m

H

Reth

Go

Bu

of

co

ma far

пр

rac

wi

Ne

Can Par

to Mo

Pro

Piece of Impudence which was commit nicated from Hand to Hand, to support the finking Spirits of their Adherents, & vail'd'em any thing, nor their Sollicitati ons with his Majesty to send over for the Electoress Dowager, and Electoral Princed Hannover, while the presumptive Heires to the Crown was living, in good Health and capable of furnishing the Royal Line with a further Issue. Tho' when all other Means had fail'd'em, they did this on pur pose to draw off the People's Affection from the Princess of Denmark, now their mon gracious Soveraign. For they were fent ble that the Princess Sophia's Dowry, and the young Prince his Appanage, as Heir Ap parent to the Electorate of Hannover, joyn's with 50000 l. per Ann. which they ender vour'd should be paid 'em upon the Footof our Establishment, would have render 'em capable of keeping a greater House that her Royal Highness, who had no more coming in than her bare Allowance, and bestow ing fuch Bounties as should not only draw the Nobility and Gentry from St. James's, (for Courtiers are like Flies, who frequent that Place where the most Purchase is) but might have made those two foreign Princes ingratiate themselves so far into the goodlikingo the Mercenaries among us (and God know a great Man is not always born with an Aversion nmu.

por

5, 2

itati.

r the

ceof

iref

alth

Line

other

рш.

from

mof

ens.

and Ap

yn'd

dea-

t of

er'd

om-

百百年

gh

go

W$

ion

aversion for Money) as might have been of the worst Consequence to Her prefent Majesty's Affairs. For this End. feveral Pamphlets were written, and one Toland, who made a Postitute of his Pen upon all Occasions, against Justice and Religion, was fet at work, to press home this Invitation, with all the Cogency and force of Argument he was master of: 'Twas Publickly given out, Hampton-Court was fitting up for their Reception, and a Theater, which of all things His Majesty had no manner of Good-will for, was Erected for their Entertainment in the Palace aforesaid. But notwithstanding all this Assassin of reveal d Truth could Urge for their coming over, the Parliament hew'd no manner of Inclination to be at unnecelfary Expences; and the King had enough upon his Hands, to form a new Confederacy, to make preparations for a Rupture with France, and to draw over the Neutral Princes into the Alliance, not to take the Charge upon himfelf. Which cans'd a mighty disatisfaction in the Party, and was no small disappointment to their Scribe, who promis'd himself Mountains, and one of the first Places of Profit and Dignity under Her Highnels, and Her

de

ell

tl

Th

tn

le

ve

hi

act

on

y t all

ent

fter erv

real

heir

ras

ires

ot (

iver

he I

y N

n th

heir

Ordi

uer

irriv

Pour

Her Grandson. The Proposal was as Ridiculous as unsuccessful; for who could not have feen the disparity between feven and Thirty, and Seventy, to be such, that no rational Man, but must have concluded, that without any unforfeen Accidents (which God forbid for the Good of his Church) Her Majely could not but live a considerable timea. fter the Princess Sophia's Decease. The Party were sensible of this, but they were for inviting 'em over for the Reafons aforesaid, which some of 'em, and those not a few, were in hopes would have prevail'd, had not King William, whom they thought they had Interest enough in, to draw Him over to their fide, departed this Life, to their Unspeakable Grief, and the Nation's Loss, on the 8th of March following. A Day that made us Ample amends for the Death of the King, in the Advance ment of a Princess to the Throne, whole Heart was entirely English, whose Fervency of Devotion would draw down those Bieffings upon us, that had for faken us in the last Reign, and whole unalterable Affection for the Establish Church, would forward the Advance ment of fuch Ministers as had been laid alide

10

e-

y,

ut

ny

oid

fty

ea-

he

ey

ez

and

uld

am,

reft

neir

Un-

ofs,

Day

the nce-

nose

Fer-

DWD

for-hole

Gde

de, through the Intrigues of Evil Counellors, for their constant adherence to Such was the Situation of Affairs tHer Majesty's happy Accession to the throne of Her Royal Ancestors, though may not be Improper to return a litle unto the Precedent Reigns, and run ver some Mistakes in Government, hich, in my Opinion, leffen'd the Chader of Prudence, a certain Prince is mightily cry'd up for. King William, ythe Perswasions of I know not whom, all'd to the Ministry such as were Indient, and of none, or very small Estates, fter having dismiss'd such from the ervice of their Country, who were ealthy and capable of Affifting us with peir Purfes, as well as Counsels, which as a great Cause of the publick Treaares being misapply'd, and the Funds ot coming up to the Intent they were iven for; fince they could not keep up to he Port, which was requisite to be kept y Men in their Stations, by Subsisting ntheir bare Salaries, without finking heir Fingers, somewhat Deeper than Ordinary, into the Cash of the Exchein'd quer; and 'twas not possible for 'emto nice arrive at seven or eight Thousand laid Pounds per Annum in a few Years, out 84

The History of Faction, &c. of fifteen Hundred or two Thousand. Nor would it have been possible, that the Commissioners of the Navy, in his Days; as well as other Offices proportionable, should fave twenty thirty or forty Thousand Pounds a piece, out of a Salary of 500 Pounds, which is Evident they did, during the thirteen Years of this Prince's Reign. These we must take for Mistakes, for it is indecent as well as ungenerous to the Memory of the Deceas'd, to call them otherwise: though some People that malign'd his Character, would look upon 'em as lo many Acts of Policy and Craft. Forby these means He enrich'd the Party to fuch a Degree, that they bore all before em for the first ten Years of His Reign and neither Mayors nor Sheriffs were chosen, but such as were in His Confident's Interest. (I don't say His, for Rpublicans are against all Regal Author ritey) By these means several Worth Gentlemen were post-pon'd in the Lawful Rights, and as the Court was purg'd of fuch as had a Veneration for the Church, and the Family of the Stuarts: from which his Majesty Himsel was descended by the Mother's Side so the City was to undergo the fam Courl

¥

H

ft

th

CE

ar

CU

th

B

fir

fo

th

Ho

evi

La

Ea

bo

cal

for

En

Co

Rej

(fo

can fan

min

Stal

Sar

d.

at 115

70

rty

out

is

een

we

ent

of

ife:

his

· fo

rby

y to

fore

eign

were

Con-

, for

tho

orth

their

E Was

n for

f the

imsel

fam

Course of Physick, and Sir Jonathan Raymond, one of the eldest Aldermen. was forc'd to fling off his Gown, fince He could not wear it with Honour, after having been often Rejected from the Mayoralty whenit was histurn to fucceed to the Chair, Sir Samuel Dashwood, and the rest of his Brethren, who concurr'd not with the Diffenters, met with the same. Usage, though they did not hew the same Courage, even when the first of 'em was not chosen till just before the Death of King William, while the Sword was carry'd to the Meeting-House in Publick without Impunity. even when it was contrary to the known Laws of this Realm; and Sir Humphry Edwin the Numerical Person who had it born before him, was permitted to carry the very same Ensign of State before his Majesty, at His Triumphanc Entry into the City of London, after the Conclusion of the perpetual Peace at Reswick. The Ministry of this Reign (for the Maxim, that fays, the King can do no wrong, was allow'd by the fame Faction, during this Prince's Administration) were under another Mi. stake, which truly was one without a Side Sarcasm, in Advising his Majesty upon Courl a flight Occasion to take the then Princess of Denmark's Guards away, and difrobe Her of what of Right belong'd to Her as apparent Heiress to the Crown; for instead of embittening the Subjects against Her, and rendring Her Criminal to the People, their Devices had a quite contrary Effect, and the fight of that Illustrious Lady's going to the Service of God, to Her Parish-Church, unattended, unless it were by two or three Footmen, had fuch an Influence upon their Resentments, as to leave the Odium where it was not defign'd, and make other great Personages suspected of some indirect Methods, which they were supposed to be then carrying on to Her Royal Highness's disadvantage Which gave matter of Offence to a great number of the Nobility and Gentry, who had a due Sence of Her Accomplishments and Vertues, and perhaps was one of the greatest Occasions, that the Party fell short in their Designs, which they afterwards form'd against Her. Not that I introduce this Oblervation to blacken the King's Memory; His Actions are so conspicuous, and his Glorious Atchievements fo diffusive of Light, that they want no Shadows like thele,

O

a

ti

re

of

ci

th

an

25

Go

The History of Faction, &c. these, to reflect a Brightness upon the Liveliness of their Colours.

C.

hen

vay,

be-

the

the

Her

ices

ght

the

ch,

or

nce

the

ind

ted

ney on

ge

a en-

mps

1at

ns,

nst

er.

y;

of

ke

le,

His Majesty's Breath was no sooner out of his Body, but even those that were almost Idolaters of him when living, made it their Endeavour to sofget him as soon as Dead, and a certain great Man took Coach immediately, to carry the News to Her present Majesty, and ingratiate himself with the very Successor, whom he had given, but too plain indications to, that he had no great Affection, for, during the Life of the late King. Of which the Poet took notice in the Golden Age, which was published soon after in these Words;

Dissembling Satesmen shall before thee stand, And H— be first will kiss thy hand.

Though he had only his Journey for his Pains, besides what was mention'd in the foregoing Couplet, and return'd home with the Mortisication of hearing her Majesty declare in Council, Her stedfast Purposes of adhering to the Doctrine of the Church of England, and giving Her Royal Countenance to such as should be most Exemplary in the Profession of the Faith Establish'd.

The

in

a

tl

A

re

la

Fi

W

le

th

ca

ric

hi

lo

dij it,

di

He

N

Di

Ro

Wi

88

The first Step this excellent Princess made, was in imitation of Her Predecessor of Glorious Memory, Queen Elizabeth, to chuse a Wise and an able Council, them whose Largeness of Fortune, and Capaciousness of Understanding should be of strength enough to bassle the Designs, and disappoint the Intrigues of her Enemies, both Foreign and Domestick; after having made a Declaration in their Presence, against baving Offices Bought and Sold, belonging to Her House-bold.

A Practice that some Gentlemen belonging to the Court, during the late Reign, stood in need of, but was altogether unnecessary in this, where there were no Jejune, and hungry Appetites admitted. If Matters have since been carry'd directly opposite to her Royal Injunctions, her Majesty has been kept Ignorant as to the Proceedings, and if any thing has fall'n out disagreeable to her Will and Pleasure, it cannot be imputed to her Administration.

Semper Eadem, was the Motto she made choice of, to shew She was fix'd and Immoveable as to her Opinion in Religious Matters, and would continue

The History of Faction, &c. in the same Profession she put in Pradice, when a Subject, now she was a Sovereign.

ess

re-

cn

ole

of

er-

gh

int

oth

ice,

be-

be-

ate al-

ere

gry

ave

to has

edout

ure,

ini-

fhe

x'd

in

nue

30

To give undeniable Proofs of her Constancy, the Earl of Rochester, who through the misrepresentations of the Adverse Party had been laid aside, and remov'd from his Lieutenancy of Ireland, was consirm'd in that Post; his Fidelity and Loyalty having been too well known to her Majesty, to be neglected at a time of Emergency, when the safety of her Majesty's Dominions, call'd upon Gentlemen of his Experience, to sit at the Helm.

His very Character was a damp to his Enemies Spirits, and we need to look no farther for it, than in Faction display'd, A Poem that came as near to it, as any thing in Expression can, to discribe what is beyond it. The Description runs thus:

He never knew to prostitute the State,

Never by being Guilty to be Great.

Nor yet when publick Storms come rowling on,

Did He, or Danger, or His Duty shun.

Rome's subtle Priests with Sophistry Esfay'd

With Wealth and Honour in the ballance (lay'd,

To shock his Faith, but nothing could controll The firm Resolves of his unbays d Soul, True to his Conscience, as the Needle to (the Pole)

a

ta

as

h on m th

tra

att

his

Fl

all

on,

ble

Acc

hin

Pri

Ho

gui

as i

ôf

ject

wh

fup

Ally'd in Blood and Friendship to the Throng. He nobly makes his Country's Cause his own; Whilst others keep their interest still in View, And meaner Spirits, meaner ends persue. So the fix'd Stars harmoniously comply, With the first publick Motion of the Sky, Whilst wandring Planets Oppositely move Within the narrow Orbs of Private Love.

The Great Seal was continued in the Hands of Sir Nathan Wright, a Gentle man whose Education in the Church, and whose Spotless Integrity in managing that high Trust, had caus'd him many Enemies of a different Perswasion, and who was then treading upon Slippery Ground, through the means of some disbanded Courtiers who had interest behind the Curtain, notwith standing, an Address of Parliament for 'em to be remov'd from the late King's Presence and Council for ever.

The Lord Godolphin had the Office of Lord high Treasurer Conferr d upon him, as a person of an untainted Reputation, and one whose Experience in every Branch of the Revenue, was as Eminen

oul)

tof

ole.)

rone

ieu,

e.

2.

the

atle-

rch,

naghim

ion,

Slip-

in ith-

for ngs

e of pon

Re

e in

s as

1en

Eminent as his Fidelity, which no one durst charge with so much as Leaning towards a Change. The Earl of Marlbotough (now Duke) was call'd from his Retirement from Publick Business, to take upon him the Command of Her Majesty's and the Confederate Armies, as Captain General, having difus'd himself from Conquests some Years, on account of a Difgust that had no manner of Foundation, and through the Envy of Evil Tongues that always traduce those Excellencies they cannot attain to, had no other Reward for his Services in the Wars of Ireland and Flanders, for his early venturing his all in defence of the Protestant Religion, than to be depriv'd of his Offices and Commands, and render'd uncapable of any farther Eclipfing the boafted Acquisitions of Foreign Generals. With him was admitted into Her Majesty's Privy Council as Comptroller of Her Houshold, Sir Edward Seymour, as distinguilhed by the Steddiness of his Temper, is he was by his great Endowments of Mind, and who, though he had rejected all Offers that had been made while a Motley Ministry was in Being, supported himself under the uncomfortable

bi

fp

ec

ft

I

ab

ve

m

P

V

cid

OU

fh

on

tic

an

of

ma

en

ba

an

thi

the

laf

Tr

Ha

Lil

boi

table Pressures of Old Age, a crazy Constitution of Body, and the Infirmities that bear it Company, to serve the Queen and Kingdom in the Crifs of the Nation's Affairs, with his · Counsels and Advice. I had very near omitted the Marquessof Normanby (now Duke) Lord Privy-Seal, and the Indefatigable and Watchful Earl of Nottingham, then Principal Secretary of State, but though they are introduc'd as the last thro' my Inadvertency, and want of Memory, they come up to the first in my Esteem, and will be To in that of all Good Men, whether in Places of Trust, or not, whether in Favour, or in Difgrace. There inviolable Affection for her Majesty s Person and Government; their Endeavours to Suppress all Seditious Principles; their uninterested Defire of bringing poa mif-led Creatures within the Pale of the Church, might be an Example to some of the chief Pastors of it, who are for Indulging fuch as Deviate from the National Communion, and excite 'emin their feveral Stations to make use of the perswasive Rhetorick they are Masters of, not in defence of Separatifts, butagainst 'em, in order to reclaim 'em, and bring

ZY

ni-

the

ifis

his ear

OW

In-

of

ary

10-cy,

up

be

her

in 10-

COR

to eit

oor

of

to

are

the

n in

the

ters

ta-

and

ng

93

bring 'em to their due obedience. I speak not this by way of Flattery, for the Frowns and Smiles of Great Men are equal to me in my present Circumstances; nor when I was Tomger than I am, and conversant in Employments about the Court, did I ever descend so very Low, as to attend at any Nobleman's Levee, whose Ears were open to Parasitical Discourses; but where the Virtues of the Noble and well-descended may be of use to provoke the Vicious to turn Proselytes to 'em, there I should be unpardonable in the omission, should I agree with the Dispositions of the Patriots they belong to, and conceal 'em from the Knowledge of the Publick.

The Choice of these Great Men made their Antagonists look about 'em, and Clubs were appointed, Cabals form'd, Intrigues set on Foot, and Consultations held how to weather this Storm that seemd to threaten them from this New Promotion. At last, it was concluded that the old Trade of Bullying should be taken in Hand again, and their Papers call'd Libels were Discharg'd to to rattle about our Ears once more.

The

. The Pack of deep-mouth'd Hawkers they kept to run down the Church with, were to be up to their Knees in Dirt again for their Service, and poor Virgil had his Sicilides Muse so mangled and inverted for their use, that had he been in the State of the Living to have feen it, he would have rerepented of ever Writing it.

m

rh

ou

Ha

hat

ain

d

no

0

Par

lie,

of t

beer

nen

nur

ey

uffi

of I

T

lle

but oud

Unc

o l

T

Pr

Reb

Sent

et-fh

This was their Flag of Defiance, wherein they gave broad Innendo's against the Persons employ'd in the Queen's Service, that had no Inclination for their Sentiments, cast an 0dium upon her Majesty, set a Mark upon such Members of both Houses as were not in their Interest, and intimated as much as if the Church-Party's Design was to bring in the P. of Wales. But the noise of this being foon blown over, and the Impreffion it made upon the People lasting but a while, their Heads were at work to find out fomething more durable, and that would awaken the remembrance of its mischievous Exhortations from time to time. A Weekly Paper was agreed to be Written, ftyl'd, The Observator; but whom to Mar pitch upon for the Author remain'd unrs h, ad

II 7-

ed

ıg

6-

a-

he

12-

0-apas

iti-

ch.

P

be-

resing

at

indecided for a confiderable while. The Laureat Squire Tate, was too Timeous, Bashful and Slow, to make any land of it; and Mr. Row had so exausted his Spirits in writing Tamerain for 'em, nothing could be expectd from him more than once a Twelvenonth. Mr. Congreve was referv'd o make a Pastoral Elegy upon the Party in case their Project should ie, and Pastora was to be the Name f the Deceas d. Mr. Dennis's Lungs had een defective ever fince his Trenendous Poem upon the taking of Nanur, and 'twas impossible Mr. D'urey could get out Scandal enough to uffice 'em twice a Week, by reason f his STUTTERING.

These Considerations made 'em seek elsewhere; at last a Fellow was found out at a Derby-Alebonse, who had Imoudence enough to carry on their Undertaking, and Ignorance enough duto be led by the Nose by them.

This Frontispiece of Sedition had been a Practitioner of Treason in Monmonth's eek Rebellion, for which he was Try'd, and ten, Sentenc'd to be whipp d through the Market-Towns of Dorsetsbire, or Somerin'd to-shire, (I don't know which) if not hoth both.

both. Whereupon he Petition'd His late Majesty, K. James the II. to be Hang'd, at which the King not only remitted him all Corporal Punishment, but out of his Innate Goodness, gave him a full Pardon for all Offences committed against the Crown to that time.

t

tl

V.

al

01 fa

W

Se

all

Si

no

mi

wh

at

am

def

Go

So

Such

that upon

prop

certe

figns

Effe

whi

little

T

To shew his Gratitude, he was no fooner let at Liberty, but he gave his Tongue, and his Pen the Loofe and recompene'd His Majesty with the most bitter Invectives, and not content with his being under Banishment, and in a State of Exile from his own Kingdoms, nor fatisfied with the world of Misfortunes, that he was support ed at the Expence of a Foreign Po tentate, he pursued him in his Person and Family, reproach'd him and the Queen now Reigning, in the Memor of the Royal Martyr, and traduct even his very Ashes, which the ver worst of Heathens would have ha so much Regard to, as to have fpar'd.

on all Occasions, and he was enter into Pay accordingly, with this Pro mise, That is he should stand in nee

The History of Faction, &c. of Supplies, or Auxiliary Sentences, they should be convey'd to him, for the Party were neither in want of Civil or Common Lawyers, Divines and Casuists to carry on their Factious Undertakings. About the very same time that Her Majesty declar'd War against France and Spain, their Secretary, or rather Scavenger of all all the Party's Scandal, weilded the Shovel of Mutiny and Sedition, to give notice that he would be at open Enmity with Loyalty and Religion.

His

be

nly

fh-

od-

all

wn

no ave

ofe,

the

on-

ent.

DWD

orl

ort

Po

rion

the

non

luc

ver

ha

hav

1 up

nter

The deceas'd King's Encomium was what he was enjoyn'd to dwell upon, at first, in order to raise Disconcents among the People, and bring 'em to despair of Success under their New Governours. King William had done so and so, and had form'd such and such Expeditions, and had laid Schemes that would have provid Infallible, but upon his Demise; When now for want of proper Instruments to put his well concerted Measures in Execution, his Defigns would prove abortive, and of no Effect.

This was the Burthen of his Song; which having no Impression, or very net little upon the People, he was forc'd

H

to

to have Recourse to his Country-man Roger (for his first Papers were not writ by way of Dialogue) to bring in his Oaken Towel to his Assistance. They talk'd notable things together for some time, till the Clown had benefited fo much by his Master's Conversation over his October, that he grew a perfect Statesman, and could talk Latin to a mighry Degree. When meither they nor their Party being able to get the D. of Sch nor the E. of G-- into the Earl of Marlborough's Post, nor the E. of 0into Sir George Rook's, the Campaign was begun in Flanders, where the fint acquir'd Immortal Honour by finishing it very Gloriously, and the last set Sail for Cadiz, to put one of King William's Schemes in Practice, and return Home fuccessful for accomplishing one of his own. For the Spanish Descent had been render'd Impracticable, thro the Preparations of the Enemy, who had receiv'd Intimation of their de fign'd Attempt as foon as it was con certed, there being some defect or o ther in that Prince's Councils that was an Impediment to all his Glori ous Undertakings, and the Town o Cadin

(

a

tl

it ha

ta

Se

on

ton

ou

evie

mo

mi

bur

tho

was his

Ril

fect it w

cers

Solo

The History of Faction, &c. Cadiz was too well Garrison'd and Fortified, to be taken by Force of Arms.

Yet though King William and his Ministry had form'd this Expedition, though both the General, and the Admiral kept np to their Seal'd Orders, which had been Projected. and drawn up before His Majesty's Decease, even to the Minutest Article : the Faction would have it, because it was unprosperous, that the Scheme had been alter'd, that Resolutions were taken contrary to the Late King's Sentiments, and laid all the Blame upon the New Ministry. Mr. Observator, and his Companion Roger gave out in their next Paper, that we should every Day find the want of King William more and more. That Sir George Rook might bave laid the Town in Albes, and burn'd the Ships in the Puntal if he had thought fit, only the Smell of Gunpowder was what he had an Antipathy for from his very Cradle; with abundance of fuch Ribaldry, when, if there was any D:fect, (as it is but too plain there was) it was altogether owing to the Officers of Land, who by giving their soldiers too great a Liberty, even to H 2 the

1

of

gn

ng fet

Vil-

um one cent

hro who

de

con

r o

Hori

0 0

Cadin

the Prophanation of Consecrated Places, Sacriledge, &c. rais'd such an Aversion against 'em in the Spaniards, that those who would otherwise have join'd 'em became their utter Enemies.

However, Sir George Rook was a High-Churchman, which is worse than a Papist among the Saints of their Crew, and he must be in the Fault, Right or Wrong; twas none of King William's Project, because it did not answer the Purposes it was contrivid for, and 'twas given about in every Coffee-House, and Place of Resort, that this Misfortune was a plain Demonstration, that all the remaining part of the present Queen's Reign would be of a piece with this, while she retain'd such and such Persons in the Ministry, and in the Command of the Navy Royal. But when the News arriv'd of the Clorious Success at Vigo, and of the Burning the French Squadron of Men of War, and the Spanish Galeons, then all the Honour of the Day was given to the Land-Forces, on purpose to keep the Commander of the Royal · Navy from having any Share in it.

a

t

V

n

16

m

th

ti

He

to nui

Vi

fen

Ari

The Report ran among us by their means, that Sir George Rook would have Steer'd his Course directly Home. that he infifted upon the Foulness of the Queen's Shipping, that he made use of all Evasions to dedine coming to Action, but the Duke over-rul'd him by upbraiding him with Cowardise, and neglect of the Nation's Service, and by the very force of his Invectives (which I never heard His Grace was Famous for) drew him into an Engagement, which had such an Effect upon the Party's Temper, that it alter'd the Cry, and made that which was Queen Ann's Project before, now lose its Appellation, and be called King William's again.

ve

e-

a

an eir ılt,

ing

not

for,

ee-

this

ion,

fent

with

Tuch

om-

hen

ious

ning

War,

all iven

fe to

Oya

it.

Th

This had its intended Influence among their Creatures the Mob, and the Sons of Dirt and Ignorance had their Instructions from the chief Mutineers, to take very little notice of Her Majesty in Her Pious Cavalcade to St. Paul's to render Thanks to Alnighty God, who is the Givet of all Victories, for the Bleffings had been fent down that Campaign upon Her Armies and Navies, but to rattle out their Acclamations of Joy when the

H 3

Duke

Duke of Ormand should pass by 'em, As for Sir George Rook, who gave his Attendance on that Days Solemnity with the Nobility and Gentry, that Man was no longer to bear the Name of a true Protestant that pay'd any Respect to him; 'twould be a direct Acknowledgment of his Merit, and would prevent his being laid aside, which they hop'd to accomplish by the finister Ends they had been always very dextrous at. Which, in my Opinion, did not favour of the most refin'd Policy some of their Leaders have the Reputation of being Posses'd of. For, in the first place, if they intended any Good-will (as I am apt to believe they did) to the Duke of Ormond, their Applause was very ill tim'd in Her Majesty's Presence, because it has been the known Practice of the wifest Courts, when a Subject grew too Popular, to do what in them lay to depress him in his superb Character, and have such a Mistrust of his growing Greatness, as to take Care, by keeping him from all Places of Dignity, that he might not make use of the Power he had over the Minds of the People to the Covernment's difadvantage. And

I

a

tl

Se

th

Ea

Gi

lik

tui

Ki

Blo

hir

nir

Sak

Ch

her

(th

And in the second place, if they would have deserv'd the Name of accurate Statesmen, they should have disguis'd their Sentiments in Relation to Sir George Rook, and prais'd him to choose, that they might have the more easily displac'd him; for the Queen was not unacquainted with their Disposition, which shew'd it self too apparent not to be taken Notice of.

However she was sensible, though they pretended to be fure of the Duke, that he was altogether in her Service, and upon the Refignation of the Lieutenancy of Ireland by the Earl of Rochester, made a Present of that high Trust and Dignity to His Grace, who could never get any thing like it, for his long Services to King William, the Consumption of his Fortunes and Estate for the Good of these Kingdoms, and the loss of his Noble Blood in defence of a Prince that gave him little or no Recompence for running the rifque of his Life for his Sake.

It gave Occasion of Grief to the Church, and that very Justly, to see her chiefest Detender, next Her Majesty, (the Bishops themselves not excepted) with withdraw himself from Court, and made Her Members more than ordinarily solicitous about the Reasons of it, but it being above my Sphere to enquire into it, especially to make that Enquiry publick, my Design being to write nothing that shall give Offence to any Branch of the Ministry while I enjoy the Benign Insluence of the best of Governments, I shall drop all manner of Conjectures about it.

Y

um

fee

rec

wit

the

con

abr

triv

No

thir

in I

but

and

Beh

and of r eith

in t

ing

which ed c

bey

n S

hey

beat

or

ded

ways

oppo

It's enough that he has left the publick Bufiness without any private Gain, that it is not in the power of Satan, nor his Hellish Tribe, to fix any thing that was Fraudulent, Dishonest or Treacherous upon him, and that he has left none Superiour to him in his Fervent Wishes for the Prosperity of this Realm in its Ecclesiastical and Civil Establishment, and very few (if any)

that are his Equals.

Nor can any one Charge him with any unwholesome Advice he ever gave the Queen that turn'd to Her Majesty's or her Kingdom's Detriment, which is a Character I could wish all profess'd States men could arrive at, that they might bring about in these our Days the things that belong unto our Peace, and are at present hidden from our Eyes. On

•

f

.

e

1c

ft.

at

is of

i-

y)

ve y's is

'd

ey.

the

ore On

On the contrary, the Whigs Triumph'd over this great Officer, who feem'd to Pave them a way for their recovering their Esteem at Court, tho' without any Grounds for fo doing, and the Chiefs of the Party who were confulted as Oracles by the rest, spread abroad that they were the fole Contrivers, and at the bottom of this Nobleman's Difgrace. They had nothing to do now but to pick holes in the Earl of Nottingham's Character, but he carried himself so Evenly, and was Master of that Prudential Behaviour as baffled their Attempts, and render'd their enfnaring demeanour of no Effect. When finding themselves either incapable of raising Disturbances ir the Kingdom of England, or wiling to tread in the very fame Steps which their Rebellious Ancestors marked out for them in the Year 1641; they selt the Pulse of their Brethren in Scotland, in order to know how hey were disposid, and whether it beat towards an Alarm. The Brethren for their Part, were never unprovided for Mischievous Designs, and always prepar'd to catch hold of any ppportunity that Squinted towards a Change. For the Kirk had in the Days of King William Profes'd them. felves Fifth-Monarchy-Men, and were for none but King Jesus, as may be feen in the following Prayer, which was made use of by one that was a great Man among 'em, and a Head of a Cellege, before his Sermon.

in

m

at

we.

od

eve fer eist d bin

pin

but

i

OW

us

V

e I

roi

orre

ell'

but

ip

th

ed

pea

God, Thou hast bidden us Pray for Kings, and very Fasious (troublesome) Company, Lord: Either make them Good, or else make us quit of their Company. They Say, that this New King W Thou hast sent us takes the Sacrament Kneeling, and from the Hands of a Bishop. Oh that's Black! that's foul Work! Lord deliver him from Papacy, and Prelacy, from a DUTCH Confit. ence, and from the Heartedness of the Stuprts; and let as never be tryfted (Encounter'd) again with the Bag and Baggage of the Family, the black Band of Bishops to trouble, and Lord it over Thy Church and Heritage : Good Lord fend back our Old King of poor Scotland; Restore Him to his Throne and Dignity, to his absolute Power and Supremacy, from which he has been so long and so unjustly Banish'd : Lord, you ken ann nibal

c,

the

em.

Pray

ious

heir

nba

hat King I mean, I do not mean ing James, nay for sooth, I do not mean be hat I mean, I mean, sweet King Jesus, aich at's been long kept out of his own as a wenanted Kingdom, by the Bishops, and of odless Act of Supremacy. Lord, I we more Tales to tell you, but I must fer 'em all till You and I be at more eisure, and I will not end without that Musty Prayer that they now call make hime, Lord.

Wherefore fince they were of this pinion in His Late Majesty's Days publics they would not recede from in this Queen's. She was a low, lown Lover of Episcopacy; a zeathe Worship, a Glorious Desender of Faith, and upon this Account, and breespondents in this Kingdom as over ell the Disgust they had taken aout Trade (which truly was a hardout Trade (which truly was a hardip upon em, but not to be imputed this, but a Late Reign) seven Huned Men well appointed and Arm'd, opear'd at Noon-day in a Mutinous ken annee, and fix'd up Declarations in mobile Royal

Royal Borroughs, even in the Face of the Sun, and the Magistracy, remouncing Ann Princess of Denmark M in words at Length, from being their Queen because the had promis'd to G maintain Episcopacy in England; which having been once a Covenanted Poor so pie, they declard themselves obliga by their Covenant to bring them to the Be again.

This Declaration, with the Cove fo nant renew'd by both their Proving for cial Synods in this Reign have been from Printed here; and this Covenant a ter first but Voluntary, like their first So (w Icum League, is now as that was made, about Compuliory, and forc'd upon their ho Ministers on pain of Deprivation ho But our Good Friends fail'd of fer their Aim here, their Caledonian Bre thren contented themselves with ma king a stir, by giving 'em to under fland they knew the Watch Word, and did no more for this time than toth turn again to their respective Homes

etic Ri

of hac

the

liar

of

Sala

was mo

Though this was the highest Ad of Presumption could have been done by a People, and gives us reason to suspect that there were some fall Loons in certain Places of Authority

Face

mader

and

o rees.

Ad

one

1 to

alfe

ity

-11

in the Kingdom who disappointed Her , re-Majesty's Expectation of Loyalty from nant their em; or those that fate at the Helm of d to Government would have made Enqui-which ries after the Authors of this Trea-fonable Tumult, not hush'd up the bligt Matter as if they were Abbettors of it. Being disappointed of Sectland, be-Cove for their Purpose, and they lay in wait for some more plausible Occasions, been from the Heats between the two contra tending Parties in the Scotch Parliament, (which were risen to such a Ferment nade, about the Succession, as gave 'em great their hopes of Intestine Divisions) they laid tion hold of an Opportunity that was offerd em here in England, of raising.
Bre Discontents among their Fellow-Labourers in Sedition. The Scandalons Pratice of the Party's Conforming to the Rites and Ceremonies of the Church of England pro Tempore for an Office, had been justly taken notice of by the People's Representatives in Parliament, and to prevent the growth of Hypocrifie, and even forward their Salvation against their own Wilis, a Bill. was brought into the House of Commons to prevent all Occosional Conformity.

mity, which fet'em a Bellowing to sue a Degree, that every thing seem'dithe last Confusion among em.

I

all t

of '

to g upp

thei

Pof

Dif

froi

mer

ow rest

me

dur

lian sho

wh

ver

ver

the

Ap

it the rig

the

the

fo

W:

The Mercinary Scribblers were aga call'd together to receive fresh Inst ctions, and Orders were given to ha Recourse to their Dernier Resort, at and cry out Red hot Popery and Slav ry, and Burning Persecution; the Sign was hoisted, and the Observator three ned the Parliament in Print with h Countryman's Marston-Moor Sword, an Edgehill Musquet, and afferted th Rights of the People's taking Arms gainst the Government upon Innov tions in matters of Religion, Oppress ons, &c. Tho' how this Bill could fa under the Name of Innovation or 0 pression, is beyond my my reach i discoveries of this Nature, since it was built upon such a Foundation that would in no wife fet afide the Inten of the Toleration-Act, but rathe strengthen their several separate Con gregations, For, it was not to b doubted but Men who pretended to do every thing for Conscience, would not violate their Conscience so far a to submit to the Terms contain'd is the faid Bill, but would rather renound n'di aga

nltt

bar , an

ı hi

an th

l fa

00 ı i

Wa tha

ten

the

Con

b

to ould ra

in DO

of full their pretences to Offices and places of Trust, all their Cabals and Intrigues to get their Wives and themselves the appermost Pews in the Church during their continuance in their respective Posts, but would acquiesce under the Dispensations of the Government, from which they defir'd no more in former Reigns than to serve God after their own way. They were Rich enough to rest contented out of publick Employments, having been possess'd of 'em during the whole Reign of King Wilms: liam, and it was but equitable the Church hould come in for a share, especially when She had a Right to all by sewhen She had a Right to all by feveral Acts of Parliament that have never been Repeal'd.

But though they had almost Engross'd the whole Wealth of the Nation, their Appetites were craving for more, and it was not in their Nature to leave off the pursuit of the Mammon of Unrighteousness till they had got all the current Coin of the Land into their possession, which would of course invest 'em with the Supream Power.

All Hands and Heads were at work for this purpose, and though this Bill was of fuch useful and equitable Confequences.

quences as to pass the House of Commons, it did not want for Impediment to make it stick in another place.

Two very Exemplary Gentlemen for Life and Conversation, stood up to oppose it its progress, and by the means of two very Learned Speeches, the one to prove Occasional Conformity to be a very Laudable practice from his one Method of Compliance with the Ellablish'd Churches of Rome, Switzerland and Geneva; the other to make appear from what has been, may be, that inposing upon People's Consciences might be of the worst Consequence. When it might have been reply d to the fift, that it ought to be so much the more avoided because one of his Complexion had made use of it; and to the last, that he that has been found Guilty of Indirect practices when a Knight is not beyond a possibility of concerting finister Measures when a L ---, neither is it to besuppos'd that any Person, who has Indirectly gotten himself possess of a Nephew's Estate while he was his Guardian, to be enabled to fit in the is so very much H--- of C-Establish'd in Falshood to his Trust, that he may not make fome Additions to it

t

e

r

li

k

b

ty

th

CC

a

fc

CE

pl

af

W

The History of Faction, &c. 113 in his Management in the H of P --- But there are that have other Sentiments of this very worthy Gentleman's Behaviour, and conclude with Senera, who says, Prospe-

Com

ient

emen

p to eans

One

o be

Own

Elta

and.

pear im-

ight

hen

irft,

ore

exi-

the

uil-

ght

ing

her

vho

fs'd

his

the

uch

hat

it

in

rum & felix Scelus virtus Vocatur, That a Man cannot be call'd Wicked, who has gain'd his Ends in being fo.

Wherefore to leave a Subject that cannot but be afflicting, when we confider that those who were intrusted with the Government of the Church, acted Diametrically opposite to its Interest, when the Cause of God and the Religion they pretended to Profess, called for their Assistance; it may not be amiss to Comment upon the Party's way of Behaviour when the Parliament was rifen, and our Fleets and Armies were in Quest of Action.

The Duke of Marlborough did all that the Ablest General, and of the most Consummate Experience could do, in order to draw the Enemy to a Battle; but was hinder'd by their sculking behind their Lines, and inaccessible Entrenchments from accomplishing his Desires. Which made him after forcing the Chapter of Cologn, who had entred into a strict Neutrality, lity to recede from their Engagements with the French King, fit down before Bon, which he took, though a Place of very great Strength, without the French Troops daring fo much as to attempt to relieve it; Huy and Limburgh, two Places of great Confequence, likewise fell into their Hands, and he never fail'd of Success whatsoever Fortress he raised his Batteries against, which extended his Winter-Quarters fo advantagiously for the common Intetest, that a considerable Army might be Drawn together to prevent any Infults from the Enemy's in twenty four Hours time. It must be confess'd, indeed, that the French and Bavarians reap'd great Advantages upon the Rhine and Danube, that the Battle of Spireback, which was follow'd by the Surrender of Landan to the Mareshal de Tallard, and old Brifack to the Duke of Burgundy were of the highest Importance, that the Face of Affairs was chang'd in Italy ever fince the absence of Prince Eugene of Savoy from those Parts, and the Duke of Savoy was forc'd to be upon the defensive; that Mareschal Boufflers had been too hard for the Sieur Opdam at Ecko-

1

C

0

CL

D

fe

0

Je

hi

fid

to

To it;

ly.

an

in lick

tru

my,

Eckeren in Flanders, but none of these Disasters were to be imputed to any want of Diligence in the Duke of Marlborough.

e

'd

he

ck

he

of

1CE

voy

ot dead

e at

cko-

This the Faction knew very well, but when Occasion requires, they make no scruple of knowing no such thing. Their Secretary, Mr. Observator, recelv'd his Orders, and secret Service Money, to decry the whole Measures of the Campaign, to turn into Ridicule the Progress had been made by Her Majesty's Arms, to point out the Duke of Marlborough in particular, to let forth the great Perquisites of his Office of Captain General, to make a lest of the Medal had been struck for him, which had his Effigies on one fide of it with fine Clade Victor, which was inscrib'd on it to shew his Merciful and Compassionate Demeanour to the Inhabitants of the Conquer'd Towns that were on the Reverse of it; nay, to make appear that he wholly took his Leave of all Modesty as an unnecessary Qualification for a Man in his Post; he gave it out in Publick Print, That if the Queen would intrust him with the Command of her Army, he desired but One Thousand Pounds for 1 1 bis his Equipage and Salary, and he would bring the French to a Battle on Forfeiture of his Life. When had her Majesty gave Orders he should have been made one of the Provost's Men, she had rais'd him to the very height of his Abilities ; for his Countenance shews him to be much more fit to handle a Halter than a Battoon of Command. But the Party, and their Secretary were both equally disappointed; he Writ to be taken notice of, publickly gave out in his Weekly Papers that the Queen ought to be calld to be call'd to an Account for allowing the Dutchess of Tyrconnel to come over to the place of her Nativity, and live quietly under the Government; ftruck at her Title, and the very Effence of her Royalty, in making Her Co-ordinate with Her Subjects, and declaring Her, contrary to several Acts of Parliament, which say the King and the Three Estates; (as in particular, that for the Form of Prayer on the Fifth of November,) one of the Three Estates in the Kingdom; Impeach'd Her Royal Confort, and his Council of Mis-managements in the Concerns of the Navy, inveigh'd against Her Ministry,

1

f

W

V

0

to

W

Q

Pa

an

on

Af

Ministry, all Her Admirals and Generals by Sea and Land, and every Superiour as well as fubordinate Officer of Trust that was not of the Calvenistical Perswasion. Even Her Majesty's Speeches were taken to pieces, and whenfoever he could light upon Peace and Union, which had ever been recommended from the Throne to forward the Dispatch of Business, this Wretch of a Commentator would fo perplex the Text with his Marginal Notes that it lost its Signification, like many fmart and pithy Sentences in Holland, that Evaporate through the means of their Interpreter; and infer from those Words, that the Queen was altogether on their Side; fince they were of moderate Principles, no Tantivy-Men (when the very Name has its Original from them) nor High-Flyers, whom the Exhortation was directed to. When the receiv'd Intention of those Words was to prevent any Piques and Quarrels between the two Houses of Parliament, about the respective Rights and Priviledges which had more than once been a hindrance to the Publick Affairs in Her Predecessors Reign.

0

ir

.

f,

a-

V-

ne

nd

t;

ler

le.

of

nd

ar,

the

ree

h'd

ncil

erns Her

try,

What

What made the Schismaticks carry their Heads higher than ordinary was the Defection of one of the Church-Party's chiefest Champions, Dr. D-, who personated his own Tom Double, and by relinquishing the side of those Gentlemen, who by their own Generosity to him in his greatest Necessities, had he been Master of any Gratitude, might have entirely devoted him to their Service; but a Mercenary Temper inclines always to those who bid most, and never respects the Cause, but the Money. Twelve Hundred Purchase Pounds per Annum was what he had not been us'd to, and it was no fooner offer'd, but he parted with his Morals to catch hold of it, and out came Ef-Says upon Peace at Home, and War Abroad, to give us a Sketch of his Playing a State Protess, and with what Flexibility he could bend, like the Needle to the North Pole, or like the Devination-Rod, make the Place where the Money lay, the Center to which he Inclin'd. What he had urg'd before in Defence of Church Principles, and unlimited Loyalty, was now circumscrib'd within certain Bounds, and his Resumption of Grants, &c. which the Whigs

d

Whigs had got Possession of, was flung aside for a Lecture of Moderation.

No fuch thing as Parties ought to be enter'd into now, he had deserted his for a good Salary, and Peace and Union was what had been earnestly recommended to both Houses of Parliament, and the whole Nation ought to give Ear to that Admonition which had been Inculcated into their Representatives. It was not enough that they had brought over a Scribe, who might in time, if necessity requir'd it, club Seditious Sentences with their Trufty and Wellbeloved Observator, their Aim was against some Gentlemen of greater Figure yet, and whose removal might give a Countenance to some Lies that were forging upon their Anvil of Moderation. But what they could not bring about by Stratagem, they faw done to their Hands by the Refignation of the Earl of Nottingham, and Sir Edward Seymonn, who furrender'd up their Places into Her Majelty's Hrnds.

We are neither to enquire into the cause of this turn of State, nor to give our Suggestions upon it, tho probably they did not leave the Court upon slight Reasons; what I have to do, is to give the Reader matter of Fact, and leave him to remark upon it. I might indeed Infinuate as if they were diffatisfied with some People's Management, who had made use of the Royal Ear to their disadvantage, that they saw some certain Persons in the World recover the Footing they had lost in some Great Men's Opinion, by reason of their great Wealth and their Abilities to promote the Publick Loans, and upon that account could not Affociate themselves with fuch as had not been able to have fill'd up the Royal Treasury in this Reign, had they not been capacitated to do it by having formerly exhaulted it in another.

4 hay

But I am neither able to Cope with such as may take offence at such Surmises, neither if I were, should I be willing to enter the Lists with em at this critical Juncture. What relates to my Purpose, is to make known the Effects, and leave others to judge what are their Causes, being well assured that those Ministers of State that have all along Voted for the Passing the Bill against Occasional Conformity into an Act, will never depretiate the high Efteem of und F

ftee

Maj on For

and Duk Trea

Chu the our quest lue ure,

oinio em

Reli ease

To nd ily

ing

ire

121 steem they have gain'd from the Sons of the Church for so doing, as to act under-hand to bring it about.

Heavens be prais'd we have Men of fuch Illustrious Characters about Her Majesty, that we have nothing to fear on that fide, though we have had the Fortune of losing the Presence of some of our Chiefest Champions at Court, and as long as His Royal Highness, the Duke of Marlborough, the Lord High Treasurer, &c. give their Votes for the Church, we shall no longer repine at he Apostacy of the greatest part of s. For, it's not to be question'd but their Example will in ue time be of such an attractive Naure, as to draw others into a just Obinion of their Sentiments, and make em declare themselves in favour of Religion, that most of those who now ease to adhere to, have had the Hoour to be brought up in.

To return from the Court, to the Camp and Ocean, all things went as hapily as we could wish under our Church commanders; There, the Duke of sarlborough had recover'd the decliing Condition the Emperor and Emire were in, after having made a

March

March that Times to come will scarce give Credit to, and led his Conque the ring Forces from the Maese up to the man Danube, where he Fought, and won all two such Battles that Ages past could never exceed, and those that are to make come will never equal. And here single George Rook, after having suffer'd the most dreadful Storms that ever were the heard of, by the taking of the Important Fortress of Gibraltar, got the single Footing in Spain for his Royal Passenger His Catholick Majesty, and afterwards put to Flight the whole Naval Power of France, with Ships altogether unprovided for an Engagement ut,

This was a terrible Blow to the poor well Non-Cons, who had much rather have also heard of our Misfortunes by Sea and with Land, than Victories gain'd by their two Commanders. But the first was so uncontravertibly manifest, that they might have as well denied the Sun's he of shining at Noon-day, as to offer to que find the Truth of it. Wherefore two should be adopted for their Creature this since they could do no manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good and the manner of good against him under the notion of a teser was the manner of good and the manner of good and

Th

rce

ue-

the

Sir

Th

The Cry ran against him before, but hese were two such Fighting Stories as made the Observator, and his Man Roger on almost out of his Wits at the Reuld hearfal of 'em. Who but the Duke of to Marlborough, and his Iron Dumplins for Sir confiderable time after, and not a the Paper after this by Order of those that vert et him to Work was to mention any port nore of his being fine Clade Victor.

first De Fae, another deep-mouth'd Scanet him to Work was to mention any len al-monger, employ'd by the Party, iter was to Rhime his Grace into a good avail Opinion of their Respects to him at his oge unival, and the Hymn to Victory came ont out, to shew they never make any uestion to rail against a dead Benehave after to get into the Good-will of a and living Enemy; for their former Treat-these tent had given him an Occosion to be King William was no more than they Jack-a Nokes, or Tom-a-Stiles now, Sun's de Goddess Victoria had been Banish'd que om these Kingdoms during his Glotwa ous Reign, and was return'd to make Duke er Compliments of Congratulation this, and they would be the first to good repetuate his Memory with the noble of a resent of Woodstock, and the Mannor Woodson, in hopes the Church-Party would

E

th

G

R

th

al

G

W

br

Co

wl

Blo

it

of

he

Th

riv

the

to

por

gai

tho

ous

and

Cor

bric

fhak

they

Ingi

muc

would be against Donations of that Nature, as they were in the beginning of Her Majesty's Reign; but they found themselves altogether mistaken, their Antagonists were as ready to do Justice to true Merit as they were, and clos'd with 'em Nemine Coutradicente at the Addresses were coming first Motion. up from all Parts to Congratulate Her Majesty upon the conclusion of this Glorious Campaign, and fince the Duke had fo won the Affection of the People as to make it beyond a Poffibility of drawing it from him, unless some Ac cident should Intervene to damp their Joy for the future, their Emissaries made what Interest they could in all Countries, Cities, and Boroughs, that no mention should be made to Her Ma jesty of the Success of Her Fleets a Sea, or the Renown'd Commander, Si George Rook; tho' notwithstanding all their Arifices and Infinuations to the contrary, the Majority of Addresses took notice of his Important Servi vices, and gave the Reduction of Gi braltar the due Applause a Conquesto fo general a Concern deserv'd. their Observator was enjoin'd to lesse it as much as possible to ridicule th Engage

that

ning

ound

heir

Nice

os'd

the

ning

Her

this

uke

ople

y of

Ac-

heir

ries

all

that

Ma

s at

, Sit

effes

rvi

Gi

(to

Ye

esse

age

Engagement for not being the Sharpest that ever was feen, to beat down Sir George Rook's Character with Admiral Ruffel's (now Earl of O.) when it was this very Numerical Sir George Burn'd all the Ships at La Hogne, which the Gazetts of those Time will bear him Witness, and to speak slightly of Gibraltar, as a Place of no Strength or Convenience for the Grand Alliance, when it may be observ'd from the Blood and Treasure it has cost to keep it in our Hands; that the Ministry are of a quite different Opinion, though he sets up for so Irrefragable a Statesman. They were satisfied the Duke was so rivetted in the Good Liking both of the Queen and People, that they ought to stay till some more convenient Opportunity offer'd it felf to Complain against him; but as for the Admiral, though he had the Honour of a Gracious Reception both from the Queen and the Prince, he was not so Fix'd but Contumelies, Reproaches, and Opprobrious Invectives, if they could not hake him, might weary him out. And they gain'd their End at last, for their Ingratitude shock'd his Temper so very much, that he refolv'd to leave the Defence fence of fuch Wretches at Sea to him that thought fit to undertake it, and so flung up his Place of Commander in t, a Chief of Her Majesty's Navies, that up their Favourite, Sir Cloudsley Shovel nor might try an Experiment upon their Good Nature, and make appear at his Return from the Mediterranean, that he had Fought a sharper Battle with the French than the last Engagement in the Heighth of Malaga, and taken a stronger Fortress from Spain than the Impregnable Gibraltar. Having gain'd this Point, they thought of nothing less than the Removal of all such from Her Majesty's Councils and Presence as obstructed their Anarchical Scheme of Government. Especially after their Ob-Servator had been Try'd, found Guilty, and afterwards Acquitted for his Impudence. By whose Means, that's a Secret; but it was Secundum ulum Clericorum, to mistake the Days of the Month, wherefore much good may it do them if they had any thing for their Pains.

To add to their increase of Arrogance, the Occasional-Conformity Bill had been kick'd out of the H - of P-even in the Queen's Presence, after

T

er a

had

of I

d, tid

nd

ent

Paffi

be 00

upp

pret ind

lian

n

ret vha

dv

T

vera

Nati

rete

Arm

oc.

of P

nanc

imi

and

neir

he

ter

er a certain Huge Pillar of the Church ad read a long Remonstrance against that impose in order to blacken them amod mong the Conformists) that the D:— M—— and the Lord H——T his were at the bottom of its being reject-he d, when it's well known they both; the did what in them lay to forward it the and accordingly were both actually pre-ent, and gave their Votes for the his he Promoter of their Party, and it's he wonder that they endeavour to her happort it by Untruths. Their Apaffing it. But the Father of Lyes is ob- prehensions lest the Bill should Pass, of ind they be forc'd to be good Chri-lians, was no sooner blown over, but an Accident happen'd among their his methren in Scotland, which they did that what they could to Improve to their dwantage.

the The Scots had added to their ferrit teral other Affronts upon the English for Nation, some Acts of Parliament under retence of the Publick Security, to Arm and Discipline their several Shires, Bill oc. and were grown to such a heighth of Presumption through the Counteaf- nance of some of the same Kidney here

among

among us, as to feize upon one of our East-India Ships, call'd the Worcester, and Condemn her as Prize, detaining the Captain and Ship's Crew in Prison under Pretence of a groundless Mur ther committed on the Commander and Crew of a Scotch Ship call'd the Anan The Owners of the English Ship had made Remonstrance upon Remon strance to no effect, both here and i Scotland; when our Parliament wa pleas'd to take their Infolence in Hand and fince they had made an Att of & curity, to iconfider of such Ways an Means as might contribute toward their own.

I

b

d

A

de

W

ty

th

In

te

fo

Co

ha

lef

She

an

W

Br

D

he

an

flor

Bu

Ho

on fev

vei

Ari

Accordingly a Bill was brought in fo the Effectual Security of the Kingdom England, from the Appareut Dangers the may arise from several Acts lately Pasi in the Parliament of Scotland. Upo which the Observator began again t open, making use of this Opportun ty to embroil Affairs as much as possib between both Nations, and bring Ma ters again, if possible, into the o Covenant Posture, as in the Days of the never to be forgotten Forty One. The Native Strength, and the Posse of the People was to be Arm'd, and the KEE BULLIE

The History of Faction, &c.
BULLIES and other employ'd in the COLLIERY at New-Castle, whose Numbers were Incredible, should be provided with Weapons of War from Her Majesty's Arsenal in the Tower of London, &c. When the Number of these were so great, as to amount to Forty Thousand, and two Thirds of them were Scots; the Rankest, most Inveterate, Cruel and Bitter Presbyterians that the whole Kingdom affords.

der.

ing

on.

lur

and

hi

on

Wa

ind

an

ard

fo

the

ısi

po

1.t

un

Via

ol

th

Th

th

EE

IE

Here was Forty One again in Lively Colours! The Tower of London must have been Disarm'd, and Her Majesty left Naked to the same Clemency as was shewn to Her Martyr'd Grandfather; and the Weapons and Ammunition of War put into the Hands of their Dear Brethren at New-Castle, to join their Dear Brethren of Scotland, help them to Invade England again, and bring the unspeakable Comforts that flow from the Covenant into our Borders. But the Wisdom of the Honourable House of Commons had more than once put a Spoak in the Wheel of their feveral Disloyal Contrivances, and even now, when it was propos'd to Arm the Northern Counties, which K would would put it into the Power of the Factious, who abound there, to disturb the Publick Peace, fuppress'd the very Thought of it for the future, almost by an unanimous Vote to the contrary. For the Beginnings in Scotland are a fure Indication of what the Party defign to bring about in England. Yet all this while thefe true Protestant Brethren of theirs are against the Protestant Interest in the Succession of the House of Hannover, to which an Hereditary Entail of the Kingdoms of England and Ireland, and the Dominions belonging to them have been made over by the late King and both Houses of Parliament; because, in their Sense, it would be an Infraction upon the Freedom of the Election of the People, and make their Ancient Kingdom, which has been fo from the Beginning, once again Hereditary. And this lets us fee an Inch farther into the Millstone, why the Succession did not pass in Scotland the last Session, though most EAR-NESTLY Recommended by the Queen. For this Word Hereditary made 'em oppose the Queen's own Succession, and still put them further off their beloved Puss, a Common-wealth.

Where-

M

an

th

bit bai

W

Ho

wa:

no

ftin

of i

ferv

ciou

only very tulh

Pro

chri

King

he

only

not (

othe:

ance,

beir

only

Peop

Wherefore the Party has been very Modest, in blaming the Scots in not agreeing with us in fettling the Succession upon the House of Hannover, and rather excuse 'em in it, to throw the Odium upon the Papists and Faco-Their Expectations being thus baulk'd by the Interventions of our Wife Representatives in the Lower House of Parliament, the Upper House was to have all their Encomiums, and no Appellations were wanting to difinguish them as the only Preservers of the Liberty of the People, and Conlervators of every thing that was Precious and Dear to them. To them only was ascrib'd, that Popery and Slavery was kept out at Arms length from whing in upon them; to them that Provision was made to destroy Antithrist, and his Eldest Son, the French king, even when the Commons rais'd he Funds for so doing, and to them poly that the Nation was in a Capacity, ot only to defend it self, but to relieve others who stood in need of our Affistince, without so much as a word of beir own Representatives, who ought only to be call'd the Guardians of the cople, from their fitting in Parliament, K 2

f

e-

d

h

ee

17

11-

R-

n.

m

m,

e-90

re-

towithstand any Encroachment should be made from above on their Priviledges, and their having actually withstood some Invasions that had been made upon their Right by the very same Power they now pay their ComK

N

cu.

Pa

pu

ral

and

fet

per

to ren the

I

ty

E

ny

na

m

2 fu

ty

ver

th

fer

Blo

pliments to.

However, they they had other Fill to Fry yet in Scotland, though the last Ruck upon their Hands; and notwith ftanding the New Affociation which wa concerted with the Brethren in England had fail'd of its intended Effect, 'twa resolv'd to Animate, and Stir 'em u to perfever in the Faith, and carry of the fame Laudable Undertaking. Where Exhibitations were dispatch'd to the West of Scotland (for in those Parts the are the most violent against the Church and State) for this End their Defires wer comply'd with as readily as if they ha been form'd by themselves. After seven Meetings, and admonitory Speeches, the agreed upon their old Expedient of Arm ing themselves with all the Expedition and Secrecy that was possible to be mad use of, and Articles were drawn up be communicated to the rest of the Fit ternity, that were dispers'd, though 60 knows not diffres'd, through the who King

Kingdom, These Articles bore the Name and Title of Overtures for the Security of the Country regainst the present Danger it lies under from the Designs of Papists and Jacobites; for all Rebellions put on the best Face they can, and make the Grouads of their taking Arms, generally speaking, to be the Glory of God, and the Honour of their Sovereign.

The Overtures were these, which I set down verbatim as they were dispers'd abroad, to give those that are apt to be favourable in their Opinions of them, an Insight into, and an Abhorrence of their Endeavours to destroy the Church Root and Branch.

1. That the Popish and Jacobite Party have a Design against the present Establishment, may easily appear to any thinking Man, from many too pregnant Instances not needful here to be mention'd.

old

vi-

th-

een

ery

m-

911 laft

ith

wa

ind.

wa

ı u

y or

rere

th

the

urch

wer

y had vera

the

Arm

mad

up t e Fra

who

King

2dly. 'That it seems reasonable that such as love their Religion and Liberty, and wish well to Her Majesty's Government and Person should be upon their Guard, and use all Lawful and Necessary means for their own Defence, looking always unto God for His Blessing upon their Endeavours. And K2 it's it's thought needful,

1st. 'That all necessary Methods be fallen upon to awaken the People, and

" shew 'em their Danger.

2d. 'That Means be fallen upon to find out what State the well-affected of this Nation are in, (viz.) What is their Number in each Paroch or Shire,

' if they be Arm'd, what condition

' their Arms are in, and what Arms are wanting.

3dly. 'That a way be fallen upon to provide such of them as want ei-their Arms or Ammunition.

4thly. 'That a Correspondence be begun, and kept among them through the Nation, and that they may be united in case of an Insult from Enemies; and if possible, that they may be taught in the use of Arms.

5thly. That Methods be fallen upon to obtain the Countenance of the Covernment for that Effect.

But in the mean time, that People be not wanting in their private Capacities to do do what in them lies in a Legal way, to provide against a Mischief. And for the first, 'tis pro-pos'd, that fuch as have any Impreffion of their present Danger, would labou

labour to have a due Sence of their own Sins, and the Sins of the Land, which are the procuring Cause of our Miseries, and would not fail to awaken and rouse up their Friends and Acquaintance to have the fame Impression both by Discourse and Writing; and by difperfing away pertinent Papers that come from Abroad on that Subject. For the Second, it is propos'd, that two or three Heretors, or Elders in each Paroch, that can have access to Examination-Rolls of each Paroch, do meet together and get through these Rolls; and in their going through, do pitch out such as are undoubtedly wellaffected to the present Government of this Nation, and certainly would employ their Arms for the Defence against a Popish Successor, and take the Number of them, and that being done they divide the Paroch among themselves. And that each go thro' ' his own Quarter, and in a private ' and prudent way, make enquiry amongst the Persons pitch'd upon as well-affected, and know who of 'em ' have Arms, and if any of them have spare Arms, and how many, and what K 4 conditi

be

to

is ire,

ion

on

ei-

be agh

e unenay

Liuj

up-

the

ple

Ca-

lies ıst a

pro

oref-

OUN

· to

· N

· R

if

275

th.

77

a.

f t

. (

· d

· S

6.1

6 T

1

condition these Arms are in, and if ' there be an equal Bore, and what of the well-affected People are not able to buy Arms for themselves. This ' Answer being taken, that they give in ' the same to a Trustee or Confident in the head Burrough of each Shire where these Parochs do lie, or as e near the head Burrough as they can, who can transmit them to a Trustee at Edinburgh. By this means it will appear what number of well-affected People are in the Country, how they are Arm'd, how many Arms are ' are wanting through the Nation, and ' so who need be provided either at · Home, or Abroad; and how much secommon Fund will be needful for fur-' nishing such as are not able to fur-' nish themselves. To the Third, it is proposed, that each well-affected · Person contribute to his Ability, for buying Arms and Ammunition to fuch s as want, and are not able to buy; and that it may be done effectually, it is propos'd, That in each Shire one or two honest, substantial Perfons be chosen, in whose Hands the ' Contribution may be lodg'd, and that for the Security of the Contributors The History of Faction, &c. toward the right applying of their Money, to be advanced, they do give Receipt thereof to the Contributors.

if they require it, in these Terms.

'I A. B. grant me to have received from, &c. the Sum of, &c. which I oblige me to ware or bestow for him according to the Directions presently given by him to me, and to hold Count to him, therefore as Witness my Hand, &c. But if the Persons willing to Contribute have not present Money, and the Trustee be willing to give him 'Credit for some time, that the Trustee draw upon the Contributor for the Sum that he is willing to contribute, to this Effect, Pay to me or Order, the Sum of. &c. Value in Account ; and let the Contributor accept to a certain Day. It is hop'd that a Cautioner would not be found necessary, then the former Method feems fafer, and more Close than a multitude of Sub-'s scriptions at one Paper, and can ne-'ver be discover'd, seeing none are privy thereto but the Trustee and Contributor; and let these Confidents remit the same to two or three Confidents at Edinburgh, who may give account thereof to their Trustees in the

t

1

t

the Shires in the above-written Term ' is defir'd, and may bestow the Money by providing Arms at Home, and b Employing Merchauts therewith the bring Arms and Ammunition from A broad, and conform to the Contribu tions of the feveral Shires may fend Arms and Ammunition to the * Trustees, which Trustees may distribut them to their Parochs within their Shires according as they need, and Receipt of the Number of Arms from or two Honest Men of the Paroch, shall Exoner the Trustees. To the found it is propos'd, That in each Shire or County side or Bounds of a Pres bytery, two or three Persons be cho 'fen, as is said, for Trustees, who may keep Correspondence with the Trustee at Edinburgh from time to time in a close a manner as can be, and under fland what is doing in every Place and concert what is farther needful and in particular, it will be fit, that in order to be in readiness in call any Emergency occur, that in each 'two or three, or more Paroches, fi Persons be chosen to be Captains and they to chose their own Subal

f terns and Serjeants, and in case there erm

oney

d b

h t

m A

ribu

thei

but

hei

nd a

ron

Mal

urtl

hir

res

cho

may tee

12 a.

der

ace ful

ha

case

ach

ins

bal

ere

be any Irruption that may occasion 'a general appearance amongst Honest People, that they resolve themselves to be pitch'd on to be a Standing Force, and that the Persons not pitch'd on, 'shall bear their proportion of the 'Charges with the Persons pitch'd on for their meeting together, and that the Places of meeting and Officers to be made known to all the well affected in the Shires. And that likewise a Place of general Meeting be conde-'s scended on; and it will be requisite that these Persons pitch'd upon for Officers, in the Conjunction with other prudent and Intelligent Men in the Bounds, have a Watchful Eye over those whom they judge ill-affected, and ready to join the Enemy at their appearing, and that upon the first report of any Irruption, they do feize upon such Persons, and decline them. For the Fifth, any of our great People, who are well-affected, especially those in the Government, should be spoken to for that purpose, and that very speedi-'ly as can be. If the Government's Concurrence be not speedily gotten, and that Merchants for fear of being obnoxious to the Government, shall make scruple

' scruple to give Commission for Arms and Ammunition; it is propos'd for 11

b

à i

d

C

P

fe tl

t

V fi

an Expedient, that the Arms be fent for in the Names of the Cities of Edinburgh, Glascow, and other Royal Burroughs, whose Magistrates are well-affected, and who will willingly concur.

" And it's thought that Merchants without hazard, may bring home small · Quantities, not exceeding a Thousand a piece, and Ammunition also. But in fuch Towns and Parochs where they are very well-affected; fuch as are Inclin'd, may prudently deal wirh others as they apprehend may be brought in without discovery at first of the whole Design, and to use their own way and Prudence in the Management, for the Directory cannot be universalfollow'd, but in some part it may.

Thus ended their Overtures, which were not so much propos'd for the Security of themselves, as they fasely gave out, as to disturb the Tranquility of What Success they have had in the advance of them is yet a Secret, the Project being no older than the 14th of October last, tho' it is not to be doubted they found Encouragement enough in a Country which is the readiest

The History of Faction, &c. diest to take Alarm upon false Appearances of any in Christendom. But this being too weighty, and too confiderate à piece of Mischief to be put in Practice in a Minute: The Godly in this Kingdom could not stand Idle till 'twas ripe. Wherefore they fet up their Throats to ery Fire, Fire, and if possible, to Impeach the great Care of the House of Commons, who had, during their three feveral Sessions been very Exemplary in their Zeal for the discovery of Frauds and Mis-managements. They had too lately own'd their high Obligations to the Duke of Marlborough to fall foul upon his Places of Trust, though they might as well have found fault with his being pay'd his Salary, as Mafter of the Ordnance, when he had not given his Attendance as fuch during the War, as with Admiral, Churchill, his Brother, whose small Pittance of Three Thousand one Hundred Forty two Pound per Annum, was represented as a Grievance, even when the Captain General had done fuch things for the Nation as might have easily swallow'd up so poor a Trifle as his staying at Home, without publick Notice being taken thereof.

IDS

for

ent

n-

Ir-

ct-

ır. h-

ıll

nd

ut

re

re

)-

96

of

'n

But

But Petty Grievances must be enquir'd into, that a fearch into those which are of a higher Nature might be prevented. In order to this, who but the L-s for Patriots in their Opinions for finding out that the Navy had exceeded its Charge, allow'd by Parliament, 366032 1. 17 s. and 2 d. When, had they look'd three Years back, and made an Estimate of what had been expended over and above the Funds that were given for that Purpole in a late Reign, they would have found above twice as much laid out, tho' perhaps not in the same Service. That so Just, so Good, so Gracious, so Mild, and so Gentle a Government should be charg'd with fo inconfiderable a Sum, was but a poor Argument of their Wishes for the Continuance of it, tho' it might be of their Prudence; for I question not but the L-of the Cknew which way they crept into fair Estates by Fingering of the Publick Treasure, and now would make other Persons as Guilty, &c. that they might come off the easier.

To fall upon the Prince in his Council, favour d likewise of Ingratitude; especially when His Royal Highness has

ever

7

even

wh

Que

ites

alla

war

whe

ion

Mif-

d.

o r

Pira

ed fo

he 1

mp

real

wife

y ei

men

t tl

blair ible

Effec

ow!

ent 1

ime

Que

rorf

T

this

wer fince his being Lord High-Admiral, which has been ever fince the present Queen's Reign, allow'd all the Perquises of his Office, as well as the fix'd allary, which is 7000 l. per Annum towards the Expences of the Navy, and when in five Years time during the long there was actually Embezzel'd, or Mis-apply'd, — 10875893 l. 17 s. and d. halfpenny.

li

e-

le

15

-

1-

1,

d

n

19

n

d

)

lt

e

1,

r

,

I

r

k

r

t

5

These Complaints of theirs bring ino my Mind the Story of Alexander's Pirate, that was Condemn'd to be Hangd for Robbing in a small Vessel, whilst e himself, with his great Fleets Trimph'd in spoiling and ruining of the reatest Cities. But who can expect othervife, when the Whigs have Authoriy enough to create Divisions in Parlianent, which Her Majesty in Her Speech t the Conclusion of the Session comlains of under the Terms of Unreasonble Humour, and Animosity, the fatal feets of which we have even now so naronly escap'd, that it ought to be a sufficint Warning against any dangerous Expeiment. I pray God keep this best of Queens from being Influenc'd by the worst of M -- fuch as are Abettors of

144 The History of Faction, &c. this accurred Faction, and that no O-P--- S--- or H---- be admitted to fuck up the Blood and Vitals of this Nation in its Treasure any more, but that all Offenders may be call'd to a speedy Account, that the World may determine between us which has been the Honestest, and continues in its Principles of being fo, the Church or Whig Party. For if all things grow worse and worse (according to the Poet's Affertion) to what stupendious Wickedness will this Faction come, it any longer tolerated to fow the Tare of Division among us. If Caligula suck's Blood when an Infant, they might suppose him to be a Cruel Monster when a Man. If the Puritans at first Rebell'd against, Imprison'd and Murther'd their King, clap'd up their Bishops, seiz'd upon their Lands, and those of the Loyal Gentry, bloodily destroy'd the best Subjects, 'and cares'd the worst; if at the beginning of Rule they Multiplied Religion into fo many Herefies, that every House seem'd like a Family at the Hagne in Holland, composed of seven different Religions If when they were Inferiours they dust call Her Majesty's Grandfather's Action

Scan

T

h

N

G

aı

ar pl

ol

fv

W

G

M

Pr

Tr

COI

to

der

fol

an

In

Scandalous, Impudent, False, Wicked, Tyrannical, &c. And after Martyring him, Impose wicked Oaths upon the Nations, and Violate all Laws: Good God, what as yet unheard of Villany and Impiety will there be invented and found out to please the Disciplinarian Pallates, if ever they should obtain Superiority, or have the chief sway in these Kingdoms once more! Which no Honest Man can desire, all Good Men are bound to oppose, and all Men of Loyalty and Religion ought to Pray against.

tted

of

ore,

rid has

in

rch row

Po-

Ous

, il

ares

ck'd

ght Ster

first fur-

neir and

lily Is'd

ule

any

like

om

ons

urf

on

an-

APPENDIX.

Having unhappily slip'd some material Passages in the foregoing Treatise, and some fresh Papers having come to my Hands since its being put to the Press, I must defire the Reader's favourable Reception of what sollows, though it falls not into such an Order as might have been expected. In the first Place, it may not be improper proper (fince Common Justice to the Memory of this Excellent, tho' much abus'd Person, requires it) to Answer all the Cavils rais'd against Sir George Rook by the Malignant Party, especially that Wretch of a Secretary, the Author of the Weekly Observators, by the Character the Speaker of the House of Commons gave him at his taking his Place the first time in the House, after the Glorious Snccess of Her Majesty's Forces by Sea and Land at Vigo, after this manner.

CIR George Rook, you are return'd to this House after a most Glorious Expedition: Her Majesty began Her Reign with a Declaration, that Her Heart was entirely English, and Heaven hath made Her to Triumph over the Enemies of England; for this, Thanks have been return'd in the most solemn manner to Almighty God. There remains yet a Debt of Gratitude to those that have been the Instruments of so wonderful a Victory, the Duke of Ormand and your felf, who had the Command of the Sea and Land-Forces. "In former times, Admirals and Gene-

h

ľ

lê

1-

0,

0-

e-

n,

sh,

rid;

id

1-

2 ve

er-

nd

mes

16-

315

rals have had Success against France and Spain fingly, but this Action at 'Vigo hath been a Victory over them 'Confederated together. You have ' not only spoil'd our Enemies, but you have also Enrich'd your own Coun-' try. Common Victories bring only 'Terrour to the Conquer'd, but you brought Destruction npon them, and Additional Strength to England. France had endeavoured to support its Ambition by the Riches of India: 'Your Success, has left them the Bur-' then of Spain, and Stript them of the Assistance of it. The Wealth of Spain, and Ships of France, are, by this Victory, brought over to our ' Juster Cause. This is an Action so Glorious in the Performance, and fo 'extensive in its Consequence, that as 'all times will preserve the Memory of it, so every Day will more and ' more inform us of the Benefit. No ' doubt, Sir, in France you are Writ in Remarkable Characters, in the BLACK LIST of those who have taken French Gold, and 'tis a Justice due to the Duke of Ormand's and Your Merit, that You should Rand Recorded in the Registers of this

House,

' House, as the Instruments of this Glorious Victory; therefore the House

· have come to this Resolution,

That the Thanks of the House be given to His Grace the Duke of Otmond, and Sir George Rook, for the great and signal Services perform'd by them to the Nation at Sea and Land.

To which Incomparable and Pithy Speech, the Renown'd Admiral to give an Instance of his great Abilities, Tam Marte quam Mercurio, return'd this Pathetick Answer.

Difficulty how to express my self upon this very great Occasion. I think my self very happy that in Zeal and Duty to your Service, it hath been my good Fortune to be the Instrument of that which may describe your Notice, and much more the Return of your Thanks. I am extreamly sensible of this great Honour, and shall take all the Care I can to preserve it to my Grave, and convey it to my Posterity without Spot or Blemish, by a Constant, Affectionate and Zealous Perseverance in the Queen's and your Service.

b

'Sir, No Man hath the Command of Fortune, but every Man hath Virtue 'at his Will. And though I may not always be fuccessful in Your Service, 'yet I will presume to assure you,

I shall never be more Faulty.

at

ny

in

it

be

ay

ore am

10-

e I

out Af-

nce

Sir,

'I must repeat my Inabilities to express my self on this Occasion, but as I have a due Sense of the great Honour this House has been pleas'd to do me, so I shall always retain a due and grateful Memory of it. And though my Duty and Allegiance are strong Obligations upon me to do the best in the Service of my Country, yet I shall always take this as a particular Tye upon me to do Right and Justice to Your Services upon all Occasions.

But neither Eloquence, Reason, or Truth can effect any thing upon Men that are Deaf to the Voice of the Charmer, Charm he never so Wisely; that will give Ear to nothing but their own Mobbish Incantations, and like Owls, are blinded with that Light which is taken for the greatest Blessing by others. Sir George excus'd himself from suture Accidents, in saying, No Man hath the Cammand of Fortune; wherefore it was the Mob's Opinion, that they ought to have him at theirs. Though this worthy Gentleman did what could be expected from him in Alarming the French Sea-Port Towns, the following Campaign, harraffing their Troops from Coast to Coast, and forcing them to Marches and Counter-Marches in fuch a manner, that those mighty Wonders our Enemies boasted to Perform by Sea and Land, vanish'd into Smoak, and even, if it were possible, exceeded all his former Undertakings in the last Summer's Service, which hath been already taken notice of, and is too fresh in every honest Man's Memory, to want being inculcated. He has likewise been Honoured with a Noble Resolution in his Behalf by the House of Lords in a Full House, in these Words, Refolved that Sir George Rook had done his Duty pursuant to the Council of War, like a Brave Officer, to the Honour of the English Nation, tho' their Lordships did not think fit to give him their Thanks, which is an uncontestible Argument of his Merit, fince that August Assembly is not so Lavish of their Praise as to bestow it where it is not

deserv'd, But this Honourable Gentleman man is a profess'd Enemy to Innovations in Church and State, and of Confequence they must be his, even while they owe the preservation of their Trade to him; witness the Turkey Fleet, that had every Ship been taken but for his Prudent Forefight some Years ago, and the many fignal Successes at Sea, both in the last and the present Reign. I wish they may not want him this Year, for there is no small difference betwixt a Gentleman of Education, who has been bred up to Political Arts and Sciences, as well as a bare Infight into Marine Affairs, and one, who when out of his Compass, may be in all probability as much to feek as if he was in the Confines of Terra Australis Incognita, But to avoid Reflections upon particular Perfons, especially since it may give offence where we defign none, and enter upon another Topick which relates to the Occasional Bill, which was in agitation last Session of Parliament, to shew the desparity there is between the Church of England's Proceedings, and those of this perverse Faction of theirs.

The Words of the Bill it felf are the best Advocates in its behalf; therefore the Reader is desir'd to Peruse it as it has been lately Printed by the Order of the Honourable House of Commons, and if he is not Partial to the last Degree, he must acknowledge there is nothing in it that favours of the least spice of Persecution, nothing but shews that Christianity, and a true Spirit of Meekness runs thro' it. The Gospel teacherh us, That Dogs should not eat the Childrens Bread, (I make not use of the Expression as if these new Gospellers were of a Canine Species, or to be manag'd according to the nature of Brutes) and that which is to feed Chris's Flock with, is not to be given to Strangers.

Apostolical Church, as undoubtedly it is, if we derive our Doctrines, and Rites and Ceremonies from Christ and the Primitive Christians, if this Church is received as such in being National, it was but just in our Representatives, whose Names shall be had in Everlasting Remembrance, to separate the real Members of it from the pretended, and by wholesome and wise Precauti-

İŝ

s

Ì

t

rs

d

25

le

is

it

S,

t.

1

i-

ns

ons to make fuch Provisions, that none who Diffented from it should partake of those Offices and Places of Trust that were particularly appropriated and defign'd to be possess'd by such as are Members of it. This was what gave a Being to the Bill, but the House of Commons having fail'd twice before in endeavouring to Pass it into an Act, thro the Non-concurrence of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, (who in all probability mif-constru'd the Design of it, and imagin'd it savour'd of some hardship to the Diffenters, who had been very Serviceable in bringing our confus'd affairs in the beginning of the Revolution to a Settlement) could think of no other means to ascertain its having the Royal Affent, but by way of Consolidation, to use their own Term) to send it up with the Land-Tax, a Method which was fo far from being new, tho' there had been no necessity to make use of it for some Years, that it had often been put in Practice by precedent Parliaments. Accordingly there was a Motion made in the House for this pose, which was carry'd in the Negative, notwithstanding the Bill Pass'd a third Reading by a Majority, which was the occasion of its being lost.

This was the Caufe of a mighty Tri. umph to the Whig-Party, and the very Faction who had abolish'd the House of Lords in the Times of Rebellion and Sequestration, now call'd them their only Guardians and Protectors. Immediately a Ballad was made, and the burthen of the Song was, A Hundred and Thirty four (the number of those Honourable Members in the House of Commons, who were for fending it up to their Lordships by way of Clause to the Land-Tax,) intimating those worthy Patriots were for Fire and Faggot, like their Shortest-Way Scribe, and for bringing in the King of France, the P. of Wales, and Wooden Shooes, with the rest of the Trinkets that are the ufual attendants of Popery.

The Church-Party in the mean time said not a Word, but Comforting themselves under the Dispensations of Providence and a quiet Conscience, even when they were under the dismal Restlections of Her Majesty's being the last of the English Line, and that this Good Queen being Mortal, they could hope for no such Opportunities from Her Successors as they had reason to expect from Her propitious Reign.

They

T

P

ci

to 0 p

fr

W

fe

up

it

th

G

un

fin

an

Se

No

th

He

to

an

cei

ing

lea

W

Pu

ve

ri-

ve-

he

el-

m rs.

nd

111:

ose

of

p

to 1-ot,

10

ne

h

u-

10

D:

en e-

10

is

ld

m

to n.

ey

They were certain of this Illustrious Princess, from Her Education, Her Principles, Her Practices, and Her Affurances to Promote and Advance the Interest of the Church Establish'd; but could promise themselves no such Certainty from those that were to come after; who, though they were constrain'd by Act of Parliament to be of that Profession themselves, had no Obligation upon them to promote, and encourage it in others. Besides, they were under the greatest concern for Her Majesty's Glory. God had Bless'd Her with an uninterrupted Series of Success ever fince Her Accession to the Throne. and presented Her with Victories by Sea and Land, both in the Old and New World, and they wish'd for nothing more, than that it might be in Her Royal Power to return that Glory to God which was the Almighty's Due, and make an acceptable Acknowledgment for these manifold Blessings receiv'd from his Hands, by consummating the Felicities of the People, in leaving them the use of God's Holy Worship in its primitive Strength and Purity; which Actions of theirs were very remote from the Intentions and Practices

Practices of their Enemies, who Exalted themselves under the Church's Assistance, and Philistine like, through the considence of their Strength, prepar'd themselves to desie the Armies of the Living God.

The Press had been us'd by 'em as an Instrument of Conveyance, thro' which all their Filth and Ordure, their Offals of Scandal and Indignity had hitherto pass'd, and they got ready Rheams of Malignity to make its way into the open Light through that Common-shoar, at the Rising of the Parliament. New Elections were to come on before another Session, and the only way to get rid of fuch as had obstructed their Republican and Fanatical Systems, and were like to continue in the fame Temperament of Mind, was to make 'em Obnoxious to the publick Censure, and gain over those Votes by some Article or other which had been before given in their behalf.

But as the House of Commons had a greater Regard for their Honour and Priviledges of Parliament, than tamely to submit themselves to be Reproach'd and Calumniated, during this Session, so they deferr'd the Publication of their

villan

i

v

11.

to

M

re

bi

th

H

Co

aı

m

tl

ei

01

C

n

M

X-

h's

gh

re-

of

as

ro'

eir

hi-

dy

ay

mia-

on

nly

a-

Sy-

in

vas

ıb-

tes

ad

ad

nd

ely

'nd

on,

eir

an-

vilanous attempts upon the honestest Party of 'em, till it broke up. When off went the Signal of Anarchy and Confusion in a paper Rocket, or a New Black List of those Worthy Patriots, who, to prevent the Church of England from being Undermin'd by the Occasional Conformists, did, like true Noble Englishmen, Vote that the Bill to prevent Occasional Conformity might be Tack'd to the Land. Tax Bill to secure its Passing in the House of Lords; so that this their Zeal does appear (to all Wise Men) as Conspicuous for the Interest, as their Lives are Ornaments to that Church of which they are Members.

The Title was design'd for an Irony, but may be receiv'd for a Truth; for that the Gentlemen deserv'd the Title of Worthy Patriots, true Noble Englishmen, Conspicuous in their Zeal for the Church, and Ornamental in their Lives, is very much beyond a Question at this time, though it may be doubted whether the Persons that contriv'd this List are either as well Descended by their Births (yet possibly posses'd of Titles) or as Exemplary for their Lives and Conversation, since I cannot sind one among 'em that makes use of another Man's Wife, or has run away with the

Repu-

Reputation of another Man's Wit or Projection.

So that these Achitophels are defeated by their own Schemes of Destruction, and it were to be wish'd that there might have been three times the Number of Tackers to be transmitted to Posterity, with the Character of being Defenders of what all Members that fit in Parliament should be Proud to stand up in Vindication of, that their respective Counties and Corporations might have the same Plea for making Choice of them, as they have for these Gentlemen who are ready Mark'd out for their Election.

For, if they are in quest of Men of Estates, Lo! here they are; here are those whose Fortunes, and large Demains are sufficient Securities for them against any Popery and Arbitrary Power; if they feek after fuch as ferve in this Station purely for the fake of the Publick, they need not go a Jot farther, but may be supplied here with 134, as true and stanch Patriots as ever England bore: Men unshaken in their Duty to God, their Fidelity to their Prince, and their Service to their Country; who neglect Preferments for our Good,

and

21

ta

n

W

b tl

tv M

SI

01 So

h

TY

PI

u Si

m n of

> te Z

H

fu

el

The History of Faction, &c. and Postpone their own Secular Advantage to our Repose. But if they are making Enquiry after such as are Lukewarm, Men of no manner of Stability, but sometimes here, and sometimes there, as their Interest leads, I have two Sneakers at their Service, one not a Mile from Temple-Bar, another not ten Stones throw from the Horse-Guards, who will be of exceeding use to em.

or

t-

i-

re

1-

9-

g

at 0 ir

15

lt

n

C

n

-

n

Such as these deserve to be Mark'd out for their Country's Contempt and Scorn: and a List of the Sneakers, that hung down their Heads like Bull-rushes when the Question was going to be put, would be very proper to be hung up in every Freeholder's, and Burgher's Sight, to Inspire 'em with such Resentments as are adequate to their Offences against those, who with Meros, Came not to the Help of the Lord, to the Help of the Lord against the Mighty.

But these are Practices beneath the Sons of the Church, whose good Intentions for the common Caute, whose Zeal for the Government, and Considence in the Affections of the People, make 'em stand in need of nothing to support their Interest, but their Deserts, else they could Publish a List at the Differences Service, of fuch worthy Prelates, Lords and Commoners as were against the Bill, by way of Answer to this Libel of Names.

Dif-

It is in their Power likewise to particularife fuch Persons, as under the notion of propagating Wir, are strenuous Inventors of Scandal, at a certain Eating-House in the Pall-Mall. But the Club is so remarkable for their making Interest against the ensuing Elections, and meddling with Affairs the Majority have no concern in, though a certain Gentleman of the West of England is said to be Expell'd the Society not long fince, for not subscribing to to a certain Sum to be Rais'd for Purposes which would make void the Freedom of Elections fo lately recommended from the Throne, that their own Practice is enough to fet em forth for a Satyr upon themselves', without any others taking the Task off their Hands.

Not that I do doubt but there are, and have always been, even in the Differers Communion, fome Virtuous and Godly Men, who are rather moved by an Ignorant Zeal, and the Pestilent Influence of their Ring-leader,

6

C

n

1

n

t

e-

re

to

i-

0-

us

at-

he

la-

E.

he

gh

of

50-

ib-

s'd

bid

re-

eir

rth

out

eir

re,

the

ous

no-

the

ea-

ler,

ders, to commit these wicked Actions, than of themselves any thing Inclin'd to be Abettors of such scandalous Undertakings. Wherefore, I take it for granted, that it is the Duty of all Charitable Protestants to distinguish as far as possible between a Misseled Diffenter, and a Mis-leading Factioneer, and accordingly pity the one, but hate and detest the other. Pity those, who through their Credulity and well-meaning, are so deluded by the Instigations of their Superiors, that they unawares are forc'd to act against their Inclinations; but hate, and Cuffe, yes, hate them, and Curse them bitterly, whose Religion we find by Experience, is Rebellion, whose Faith is Faction, and whose Practice is the Destruction of Kings and Kingdoms, whenfoever they find Opportunity, and their Abilities correspond with their Malice.

Wherefore, my Beloved Countrymen, let us confider, how, as our Saviour was Crucified between Thieves, fo is the Church of England now endanger'd between two Extreams, the Protestant and Papist Diffenters, both being equally willing, tho' not equally able to Destroy us. The latter, I know, M

are

are no less apt than the former to promote their Superstition: But, through God's Providence, their Power is now fo weak and inconsiderable, that whenfoever they attempt our Ruin, they will but hasten their own; for I dare venture my Life, I might with a Thoufand, nay, Five Hundred Arm'd Men, destroy all the Papists in England at this present Hour. But the Ptotestant Diffenters are fo Numerous, and of fuch formidable Greatness, daily encreasing upon our Hands, that if not timely prevented by fome wholefome and falutary Law, our Orthodox Churches shall be e'er long but Cyphers to their Uncanonieal Conventicles. We hear how Infolently they fpeak every where, and especially in their Coffee-Houses (those Shops of Sedition, and Anvils of Rebellion) against the Episcopal Order, against our Representatives in Parliament, against the Queen and Government, labouring to Poison the shortfighted Rabble with their Seditious Libels and Pamphlets. We hear of the continuance of their Calves-Head-Feafts, by way of Ridicule, on the Murther of that Bleffed Martyr, Charles the First, who now Reigneth with the Holiest of Hobies, Holies, and yet, notwithstanding all these open Affronts to the Memory of Her Majesty's Royal Crandfather, all these odious Reflections upon Her own Royal Administration, all their Seditious Contrivances to Foment Divisions among Her Subjects; they are Tolerated, they are Countenanc'd, yea, feconded by Persons, who by their Places, by their Oaths, and by their Allegiance are oblig'd, with the hazard of their Lives, to maintain the Prerogatives of the Crown, and Liberties of the Church of England.

d

1

e

s,

of of

But what are Oaths and Obligations to fuch whose Consciences are fear d, as it were, with a hot Iron? Whatare the most solemn Ties, either Humane or Divine, to Minds, in which the Do-Erine of doing Evil is Inculcated, that Good may come of it? Our Wife Patriots in King Charles the Second's Time, to put a stop to their getting into the Parliament, enjoin'd all the Members of that Honourable House, solemnly to take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy ; both which, at least the latter, is directly repugnant to the Geneve han Gospel. Such an Headship (saith Alexander Henderson, a Notorious Ring leade M 2 leade of that Party) as the Kings of England have claim'd, and fuch a Supremacy as the two Houses of Parliament crave, with the Appeals from the Supream Ecclefiastical Judicature to them, as set over the Church in the same Line of Subordination, I do utterly disclaim. In his fecond Paper to our Royal Martyr, in the Book Entitul'd, Reliquie Carolina, page 334. Yet so rare is the Zeal of these publick Religionaries, and such is the Flexibility of their Tender Consciences, that to get themselves into that Station, wherein they are capable of promoting the Good Old Canfe, it is not to be thought, there is any Test or Oath Imaginable, which they would fcruple to swallow. Of them we may fay with Horace. Sat. 3. Lib. 2.

Effugiet tamen bac sceleratus Vincula Proteus.

But to make use of another Satyrik's Opinion.

Defendit Numerus junctæq; Umbone Pha-

For, if we may believe the Faction it self, they have the chiefest part of the great City of London to join with them in their great and unsearchable Designs. Yet so incredible a Story it is, that the Londoners, after their unspeakable Losses by the late Presbyterian Rebellion, should now Countenance, much less promote the like Insurrection, whereby whosoever wins, is sure to be a Loser; that I admire if any Man of Sence can give Credit to these things.

Is it possible that this famous Metropolitan City should be insensible of all the Indignities and Losses they fustain'd by these wicked Reformers, or forget what valt Sums of Money were daily squeez'd out of their Purses, without any hopes of Payment? How many Thousands of their Children, and Apprentices were press'd for Soldiers to Fight against their very Persons, to. whom they ow'd their Being and Education? How can they digest the Remembrance of their Lord Mayor's being violently Depos'd, their Aldermen and chief Citizens barbaroufly Imprifon'd by these Hellish Incendiaries, without any colour of Justice? And in brief. Can any length of Time wear out of their Memories the Inhumane Butcheries committed upon their un-arm'd Citizens in Easter, 1644. When the Arch-Tyrant, and Rebel Cromwell himself cried to the Soldiers to Kill Man, Woman and Child, and Fire the City about their Ears. These, and many other Indignities, cast upon this Great and Famous City for Imprudently adhering to this Impious Faction, are so strong in my Judgment, that I could sooner believe them destitute of all Sense and Reason, than inclinable now to prostitute their Loyalty to so Treacherous a Party.

OF

Tis a common Saying, If a Man Deceives me once, it is his Fault, but if he Deceives me again, it is my own. Wherefore, fince the Londoners by this Party's specious pretences, and promises of Restormation have been once deluded to side with them, and have by woeful Experience found they were deceived: If they should again Engage themselves in the like Troubles, surely neither Friend nor Foe would pity their Sufferings; neither God nor Man would pardon their Treacheries.

Y t in one thing, I must confess, and that of a very Heinous Nature, I cannot well well excuse them from the Censure of Wise and Judicious Men, who admire what may be their Reason to suffer so many Mutineers, and Seditious Fellows publickly to vent among them their pernicious and pestilent Libels, which Inslame the thoughtless Vulgar against the Government, both Spiritual and Temporal, to the unspeakable Reproach of the whole City, and the Imminent Danger of the Three Kingdoms.

It was wisely observed by that antient Author Arnobius, advers. Gentes. c. 4. Whosoever suffers Sinners to Sin, addeth Strength to their Boldness. And Seneca in Troade, A& 2. Qui non vetat Peccare, cum posset, jubet. And before them no less wisely delivered by the great Statesman, Cicero, who Orat. in Pisonem, saith, It is not much different, in a Consul, or Magistrate, whether he Vexeth the Commonwealth himself by Pernicious Laws, and Tumultuous Speeches, or suffers others to do it.

What shall we say then of these Magistrates, whose Duty and Office it is to Examine such Matters, and who daily hear and see Pamphlets of this Nature set forth on purpose to delude and draw aside the blind Rabble from the practice of their several Deties, yet seldom or never enquire after those Factious Spirits, but seem rather in a great proportion, either through Fear or Love, to Countenance their Infolency, which is already come to that Heighth, that it is altogether Intollerable? For though the Diffembling Hypocrites pretend to write against the Papists (as Edmand Hickeringill of Colchester, in his late Priestcraft in his Character and Consequences) yet insensibly they fall from thence to rail against our Bishops, and Learned Clergy, not without open Hints and Reflections upon Her Majesty's Person, and Government.

M 4 the

S

fi

Ca

bo

Ì

th

n

h ÿ

ti

J

el

V

A

Their Writing against the Papists, is only to put a plausible Appearance upon their Accursed Designs, and if they can but fill our Senses with the horrors of Popery, they are well assur'd Prest byter, will find means to get it self into play, without being Discover'd till its too late to attempt its Removal, and their Work is done, while they carry on their own Machinations and Contrivances with such Dexterity and Smoothness, that insensibly may Designoy us. In my Opinion therefore, it is our Interest at this time of Day, so to beware of the Plotting Papists, that we may have a Vigilant Eye over the Treacherous Presbyterians, &c. and narrowly sift and Examine their Proceedings and Pretences, lest at last we find a Snake in the Grass, as dangerous as that of the Rump-Parliament, whose Steps our Modern Whigs feem exactly to follow-

Else they had not, on the Thirtieth of January last, a Day set apart for them to Humble themselves before God on, and Deprecate the Divine Vengeance for the Sins of their Forefathers in the Barbarous Murther of King Charles the First, fung a Thanksgiving Psalm on that Occasion, both at Psalters-Hall, and Pinners-Hall, to shew Matters were Concerted between them for that Purpose, in these Words, This is the Joyful Day, This is the Noble Act. Nor would a Diffenting Preacher, who Din'd among others at Squire L - on a Commemoration-Feast held there on that Day, have had the Impudence to fay, That were he to have Preach'd on that sad Anniversary, He would have ebosen for his Text the Words of Martha to our Saviour, John xi. 39. Lord, by this time be Stink-eth. But as a very Ingenious Gentleman has observed in Print from the Observator's own Words, who gives out, That the All of Parliamen, nor any Royal Mandate requires the Diffenters to observe tbat that Day, That truly neither of them may relate to them; fince both require all the Queen's Loving Subjects, which is a Title they have no Claim to; fo I cannot but go on with his Comment on the same Person's Assertion, that He nor his Father thad any Hand in that Murther; wherefore, the Crimes of the Dead should not be charg'd upon the Living; which the Learned Author aforesaid, very pithily Explains, as an Excuse for the Papills, whose Fore-Fathers were as much Dead the Fifth of November, 1604, as the Diffenters on the

te

G

G

ap

th

by

th

M

Ti

to

Po

gli

Go

du

thi

pu

lan

Ai

ch

Pr

ple

Tv

far

in

he

aff

110

to

lan

ag

Thirtieth of Fanuary, 1648.

It is not the Name of Protestants, or Reform'd Christians . nor yet the smallness of our Differences in Religion, promises any Security from these unsociable Zealots; fince we have feen how the Holy Brethren had no fooner overthrown the Common Enemy, the Church of England, but they presently fell by the Ears among themfelves, one Faction endeavouring to suppress and destroy the other. So that what the Lord Threatn'd to Inflict upon the Ægytians, the same he exactly fullfill'd in these pretended Reformists: I will set the A. gyptians against the Ægyptians, and they shall Fight every one against his Brother, and every one against his Neighbour, City against City, and Kingdom against Kingdom, Ila. 19. 2. But if the Dependent Faction were fo eager against the Independent, who, no less than the former, stood up for the Presby: terian

ay

he

le

go i's

ny

be

n-

15,

e.

of

hę

10 ſs

es

le

ly

ne

ıt

n.

S

d

y

At

0

terian Discipline, and differ'd from them only in some small Formalities of Church-Government, is it possible they should be faithful to the Church of England, whose Gommunion they openly Censure as Popish and Antichristian? Do not we see even in these present Times, when we are allow'd by the standing Laws of the Realm for the Establish'd Church, with what Stratagems they endeavour to stop the Mouths of Her Majesty's Orthodox and Loyal Subjects? They know nothing can be more odious to a Protestant Nation, than Popery, and Popush Superstition; nor to Free-born English Subjects, than Tyrannical and Arbitrary Government; and who foever is found introducing either of these two Monsters into this Kingdom, he must undoubtedly be reputed a fworn Enemy to the People of England: Wherefore, because these Puritan's chief Aim and Defign is to Crush both Monars chy and Episcopacy under the Cloak of Property; this plausible Pretence they ple with fuch wonderful Dexterity, as a Two-Edg'd Sword against all their Adverfaries and Opposers.

For if any has but the Courage to speak in def nce of Her Majesty's Prerogative, he is immediately cry'd down as one disaffected to the Liberties of the English Nation. And likewise, whosoever presumes to Speak, or Write for the Church of England, or stand up in Vindication of Her against the Schismatical Sectaries, he is cry'd cry'd down for a Papist, at least one that is Popishly Inclin'd, and so expos'd to the Fury of the Merciles Rabble; like those Innocent Christians, Expos'd by the Tyrant Nero, to the Fury of the Dogs, in the Skins of Bears, and other Savage Beasts; though it is Evident to all the World, no Party can be apter to Introduce Papists and Popery, if they find it for their Advantage, than the Presbyterians themselves.

pro

gu

10 mu

La

cai

Pu

as lik

to

the

the

ag

ot

Di

th

th

AI

by

m ga Ch

ar

of

ac -fti

Si

P

We cannot, furely, forget how earnestly the Scottish Presbyterians, and particularly the Lord Lowdon, and others of the chief Confederates of that Kingdom, in the Year 1639, Courted the French King to favour their proceedings, and grant them his Affiltance against their Natural Sove-We know what Sway Cardinal Richlieu, the French King's prime Minister of State, bore among those Gospellers (who yet pretended to Fight for Religion) fending his own Chaplain, and a number of his Chief and most Inveterate Jesuits in to Scotland, to foment the Differences, and Exasperate the Rebels there. See Baker's Chron. pag. 489.

How then do we know but they are Influenc'd and Directed by the same Faction, even at this present time; and endeavouring to open the Sluices for Popery, tho they cry Whore first against the Ghurch of England? Certain it is, the French King has now also many Active Emissaries to pro-

that

the

like

by logs,

vage

the duce

their

hem:

effly

larly

chief

the

g to hem

ove

dinal

iftet

who fend-

r of in-

and

ker's

are

ion,

our-

tho'

h of ing

to

10-

promote his Defigns; and we may eafily guess it i's not the last of his Thoughts to Inflame this Kingdom, that gives him fo much Vexation in its Conquests by Sea and Land, into a Total Combustion, neither can he pitch upon fitter Instruments for his Purpose than those Fiery Spirits who are, as it were, Born to Embroil Kingdoms, and, like Ishmael, to have their Hand against every Man, and every Man's Hand against them. Gen. 16. 12.

But they are the most Inveterate against the French King and his Interest, how then can they be Inclin'd to promote their Defigns? They are indeed Invererate against him in some Particulars, but in others they jointly concur. Conveniunt in aliquo Tertio; both Parties are agreed to Divide and Inflame this Kingdom, and thereby Sacrifice it, the one to his Tyranny, the other to its Anarchical Democracy. And this was the Reason why the Presbyterians in their late Grand Rebellion fo much Courred the Affiftance of France against their Liege Lord and Sovereign, King Charles the First. The Truth is, they are to eagerly bent upon the Abolishing of Monarchical Government here, that to accomplish their Defires, they would not flick to fay with the Soreeres; Flettere si nequeo superos Acheronta movebo.

The chief Shield, under the Divine Providence, and our Gracious Sovereign's, that Protected us in former Reigns from the prefumptuous Arrogance of these Sedition Sectaries, was the Indefatigable Diligence of our Loyal, and Orthodox Parliaments which fince the beginning of Queen Ell zaberb's Reign, have, by good and whole fome Laws, fecur'd us from our Adver faries, until the Faral Appoplexy of 1641 when the Presbyterians, by their fecte Contrivances, deluding Hypocrifie, and pretence of Religion, gain'd fo far upon the Ignorant People, that few but Pres byterians were Elected Parliament-Men. But, if that Election prov'd then so Fatal to our King and Country, what shall we think of these present Times? Do we not fee how the Presbyterians, through the Mistakes of a late Reign, are grown fo Rich and powerful, as to Cope with the Episcopal Protestants of this Realm And yet shall we fit Idle, and not endeavour to Countermine the Trains they have faid to blow np the Constitution in the New Elections that are coming on? God forbid, let not our Supineness at this time be told in Gath, nor Publish'd in Askalon, lest the Uncircumcis'd Triumph, and and the Daughters of the Philistine Re-101ce.

For, what greater Security can we expect from such Members now, than from their Predecessors heretofore? Can these make greater Demonstrations of their Integrity, or pretend more Earnestly their Zeal for the true Protestant Religion, and their Loyalty

al

ce

L

M

CI

de

K

ce

pe

Re

A

47 ci

fo.

al

fic

16

So

to

I

47

41

Sa

H

01

PIL

th

li

fe

an

tion

genc

ents Eli

hole

dver

641 ecre

and 1pon

Pref

Men.

Fahall

We ugh

nwe

rith

n ?

61-

ave

the

boi

me

ka-

nd le-

B

ir ke

y,

OF

y-

alty to their Sovereign, than their Predeceffors? Do we not remember how the Long Parliament in their Remonstrance. May 19. 1641. thus speak in their Hypocritical Language? The Services which we defire to perform to Our Sovereign Lord the King, and to His Church and State, in proceeding for the publick Peace and Profperity of His Majesty, and all His Realms; within the Presence of the same All-seeing Deity, we protest to have been, and still to be the only End of all our Countils and Endeavours, wherein we have refolv'd to continue freed and enlarg'd from all private Aims, personal Respects or Poslions what soever.

Likewife, in their Declaration, Aug. 1. 1642. We the Lords and Commons, are resolv'd to expose our Lives and Fortunes for the Defence and Maintenance of the True Religion, the King's Person, Honour and Estate. And July 12. Resolv'd, That an Army Shall be forthwith Raifed for the Safety of the King's Person, Defence of both Houses of Parliament, and those who have Obey'd their Orders and Commands and preserving the True Religion, the Laws, Liberties, and Peace of the Kingdom. See these, and many other Expressions of the like Nature in the Histories of those Times. All true Protestants therefore, who prefer the Harmonious and Apostolical Order and Government of the Church of England before the confus'd Medly of the

Genes

Genevesian Discipline have now (I prefume) sufficient Reason to beware of such dangerous Contrivances for the future, and not fuffer themselves to be Gull'd again by fuch gilded Pretences, which, like the Apples of Sodom, are specious indeed, and Beau tiful without, but Base and filthy within. The Dissenters, to our Sorrow, have by this policy, once Deceiv'd us, and the Lord forgive them, but if they Deceive us again, the Lord forgive us. Improbe Neptunum accusat qui iterum Naufragium Facit. As for my part, I declare before God and Man, that I Renounce, with all my Heart and Soul as well the Idolatrous Papifts, as the Anarchical Presbyterians, whose blind Zeal, and transparent Hypocrifie, with all their Sinful Appertenances, abjuro, denego, deteftor. Having drawn this Conclusion from So. lomon. That there is a Generation that are Pure in their own Thoughts, and yet ibey are not wash'd from their Filthiness: Prov. 30. 12. And this from the Bleffed Apostle, St. Peter: Presumptuous they are; felf-will'd, they are not afraid to speak Evil of Dignities. 2 Pet: 2. 10.

FINIS.

Mario .